Overview & Current Events

SEI Investments was founded in 1968 and over the last 51 years, has grown into a market capitalization of $7.7 billion. SEI is a global provider of investment processing, investment management, and investment operations solutions for financial institutions and advisors. SEI has more than $300 billion in assets under management and almost $600 billion in assets under administration. The company should produce $1.6 billion in revenue once again this year.

SEI reported Q4 earnings on 1/30/19 and results were somewhat weak, offsetting strength in the rest of 2018. Revenue fell 1% on a consolidated basis as the private bank segment reported a 4% decline, investment advisors lost 1%, institutional investors ceded 7%, and investment managers came in with the only year-over-year top line gain at +9%. SEI's revenue tends to be somewhat cyclical but Q4 was a bit weaker than we expected, with the exception of the investment managers segment.

Operating expenses were flat on a consolidated basis, but higher overhead costs sent operating income down 4%. The private bank's segment posted the largest decline in operating profit, losing 18% in Q4. Investment advisors operating income was flat, while the institutional investors segment saw a 7% decline. Again, investment managers was the lone bright spot, gaining 3% in operating profits as expense growth outpaced revenue growth.

In total, earnings-per-share came in at 75 cents versus 78 cents in the year-ago period, reflecting expense growth. We are out with an initial estimate of $3.10 in earnings-per-share for 2019, reflecting these same concerns.

In December, SEI announced a $250 million increase to its existing stock repurchase authorization. The increase is good for about 3% of its market capitalization, and given how much the company repurchased in 2018, we expect all of it will be used in 2019. This is an important tailwind for earnings-per-share and continues a years-long practice for SEI.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2024
EPS	$0.94	$1.22	$1.11	$1.18	$1.64	$1.85	$1.96	$2.03	$2.42	$3.14	$3.10	$4.99
DPS	$0.17	$0.20	$0.27	$0.31	$0.42	$0.46	$0.50	$0.54	$0.58	$0.63	$0.66	$0.90
Shares	190	186	177	172	169	167	164	159	157	154	151	138

Since 2012, SEI has managed to double its earnings and looking forward that record of growth is set to continue. SEI has seen higher earnings-per-share in each year since 2011, although that streak is in danger in 2019. We are forecasting 10% earnings-per-share growth over the next five years, implying a slowdown from historical growth levels. We see SEI achieving these results through continued revenue expansion as more customers adopt its SEI Wealth Platform, and assets under management and advisement continue to grow. We see mid- to high single digit revenue growth as the primary driver of earnings going forward. SEI also buys back stock at low single digit rates and is seeing margin expansion with its higher revenue, Q4 results notwithstanding. The key is revenue growth as SEI invests heavily in its future.

SEI's dividend growth has been decent in recent years but it is not an income stock at this point. We see moderate dividend growth going forward but keep in mind that investors own SEI for the earnings growth potential, not for the yield, and that is not going to change anytime soon. Indeed, the payout ratio remains very low and given how much SEI invests in its platform on a regular basis, we expect the ratio to remain fairly constant moving forward.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	Now	2024
Avg. P/E	17.3	17.1	18.1	17.4	18.4	19.0	24.4	22.6	22.3	20.3	15.9	15.0
Avg. Yld.	1.0%	1.0%	1.3%	1.5%	1.4%	1.3%	1.0%	1.2%	1.0%	1.0%	1.3%	1.2%

SEI's price-to-earnings multiple has come off of its recent highs, however, we still see it as trading slightly in excess of fair value. Thus, we are forecasting a 1.3% headwind to the valuation in the coming years. The yield has moved higher as a result of the recent selloff, but we expect it will stay in the low-1% range over time. The dividend is not a priority for SEI as it continues to spend cash on its products and services to fuel future growth. Indeed, this is not a stock one owns for the yield or dividend growth prospects.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	12%	17%	24%	11%	33%	12%	23%	24%	25%	20%	21%	18%

SEI's quality metrics have been remarkably steady for a company that has transformed itself into a growth machine in recent years. Its gross margins have steadily trekked higher but appear to have reached a plateau for now. We do not see gross margin expansion as an earnings driver for the foreseeable future. SEI has basically no debt to speak of, so its balance sheet is in excellent shape and interest coverage is not a concern. SEI has the financial firepower to develop its platform and chase growth without fear of overworking its balance sheet. The payout ratio is very low as earnings-per-share expansion has far outpaced dividend growth in recent years, something we think will continue. There may come a time when the dividend is a significant source of returns but SEI is understandably focused on growth today.

SEI's competitive advantage is in its platform and services, which allow it to drive efficiencies and lower risk for its clients. That does not make it immune from economic downturns, however, as the Great Recession dinged revenue and earnings meaningfully. Given the industry SEI serves, it is reasonable to expect material weakness during the next recession, so that is something investors should take into account.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Overall, SEI looks like an undervalued stock with lots of growth potential. We are forecasting 10.0% in total annual returns going forward, comprised of the 1.3% current yield, a 1.3% headwind from the valuation and 10% earnings-per-share growth. That would make SEI attractive for those seeking growth at a reasonable price, but not necessarily for value investors. SEI may become an income stock in the future, but it is still very much in its growth stage, so that is a long way off. Still, we rate SEI a buy after the recent selloff as our growth outlook is unchanged.
