Overview & Current Events

Tootsie Roll Industries traces its roots back to the late 1890's when its namesake product, the Tootsie Roll, was first created. The company has grown since then and now sells a wider variety of candy and gum products. Other well-known brands include DOTS, Junior Mints, Andes, Charms, and Dubble Bubble. Tootsie Roll has a dual-class share structure with the Chairwoman and CEO, Ellen R. Gordon owning 53.9% of common stock and 82.8% of Class B shares giving her effective control of the company. The company has a market capitalization of roughly $2.36B.

Tootsie Roll reported Q1 2019 earnings on April 24, 2019. Net sales were $101.02M compared to $100.86M in Q1 2018 and increase of $160k. Net earnings increased 10% to $8.96M in Q1 2019 compared to $8.13M in Q1 2018. Diluted earnings per share increased $0.02 to $0.14 from $0.12 on a year-over-year basis. Results in Q1 2019 benefited from higher prices allowing the company to recoup some of the higher freight and delivery costs being experienced by many packaged food companies. This was offset by a stronger U.S. Dollar and foreign exchange headwinds. The company also faced a higher tax rate of 24.3% in Q1 2019 compared to 21.8% in Q1 2018. Earnings per share benefitted from a lower share count. Note that Tootsie Roll's top line has slowly declined since 2014. So, the sales gain in this quarter is a positive. However, changing tastes and the trend to smaller portions combined with the relative lack of product innovation have caused the company's top line to struggle. Saying that, the company recently introduced Tootsie Fruit Chews Mini Bites and Tootsie Roll Mini Bites. Note that EPS date reported below is not adjusted for the 3% annual stock dividends.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2024
EPS	$0.73	$0.74	$0.62	$0.75	$0.88	$0.93	$0.99	$1.02	$1.24	$0.89	$0.92	$1.06
DPS	$0.32	$0.32	$0.32	$0.32	$0.32	$0.32	$0.35	$0.36	$0.36	$0.36	$0.36	$0.36
Shares	74.9	73.7	72.8	71.6	70.7	69.7	68.5	67.6	66.6	66.1	65.4	62.2

Tootsie Roll should achieve on average 3.0% earnings per share growth moving forward, mostly via small amounts of revenue growth driven by incremental product innovation and price increases. Influences on earnings per share growth include commodity input and freight cost inflation on the downside, and volume and price increases to the upside. Earnings per share growth will also benefit from ongoing share buybacks. The company has reduced share count from about 74.9M in 2009 to 66.1M in 2018. We expect the share count to decrease 1% on average annually.

The dividend was last increased in 2016 and is currently $0.36 per share. We are not expecting an increase of the regular dividend in the near future. But saying that, the payout ratio is only ~39% and there is room for an increase. The company does issue a 3% stock dividend each year in addition to the regular dividend giving a ~4% effective yield.

Tootsie Roll's P/E ratio is currently 41.4 and is significantly elevated relative to the S&P 500's average P/E ratio and the company's 10-year historical average P/E ratio of about 30.0. We attribute the high P/E ratio to the limited number of shares available to trade and generally stable revenue and earnings per share over the past decade. Using our expected 2019 earnings and long-term P/E ratio our fair value estimate is $28. Our 5-year price target based is currently $32. But certainly, expected bottom line growth is limited and if our 3% growth estimate is high then there is little appeal here.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	44%	43%	52%	43%	36%	34%	35%	35%	29%	40%	39%	34%

The company's competitive advantage is the brand strength of its core product, the Tootsie Roll, and its lack of direct competition given the uniqueness of the product. This afforded it decent performance during the Great Recession. Some of the company's other brands are also well known providing an advantage. But saying that, Tootsie Roll tends to move slowly with product changes and growth initiatives. Changing tastes to more healthier options and small portion sizes have contributed to slow decline of the top line. Margins have deteriorated slowly in the past couple of years due to higher packaging and commodity costs in addition to more recent pricing pressure from retailers, but the damage has been incremental. Tootsie Roll's balance sheet is conservative. The company's long-term debt in an industrial revenue bond has been only $7.5M since 2014. The interest rate resets weekly based on the current market rate so there is little risk of rapidly increasing interest expense.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

At present we are forecasting -2.2% annualized returns over the next five years comprising mostly of 3.0% EPS growth, 1.0% dividend and -6.2% from P/E multiple contraction. Notably, the stock price has increased since our last report. At the current share price, Tootsie Roll is not attractive from a total return perspective. However, this stock may be of interest to those seeking income due to the combined regular and stock dividends. Tootsie Roll earns a strong sell recommendation from Sure Dividend at current prices.
