Overview & Current Events

Community Trust Bancorp is a regional bank with 84 branch locations in 35 counties in Kentucky, Tennessee, and West Virginia. It is the second-largest bank holding company in Kentucky and has a market cap of $749 million. Community Trust Bancorp operates with a $4.4 billion balance sheet. Due to its small market cap, it does not belong to the S&P 500 index and hence it is not considered a Dividend Aristocrat even though it has raised its dividend for 39 consecutive years. In mid-July, Community Trust Bancorp reported (7/17/19) financial results for the second quarter of fiscal 2019. The bank exceeded analysts' earnings-per-share estimates by a wide margin ($1.03 vs. $0.85) but only thanks to a non-recurring tax benefit. Without that benefit, the company would have missed the analysts' consensus by $0.03 per share. The earnings report was very similar to the one of the previous quarter. Community Trust Bancorp grew its net interest income by 2.5% over the last year's quarter but its non-interest income decreased 10.8%. Both metrics were nearly flat over the previous quarter. Adjusted earnings-per-share slightly decreased sequentially, from $0.84 in the first quarter to $0.82, but they increased 24% over last year's quarter. Thanks to the positive results and the decent growth prospects, management raised the dividend by 5.6%, from $0.36 to $0.38 per quarter.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Community Trust Bancorp has grown its earnings-per-share at a 9.3% average annual rate during the last decade. However, in the last six years, it has grown its earnings-per-share by only 4.1% per year on average. As the Fed has adopted a more dovish stance this year, it will provide a mild headwind to the growth efforts of the bank. As a result, we do not expect the company to accelerate its growth pattern in the upcoming years.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	Now	2024
Avg. P/E	16.3	12.5	10.8	11.3	13.2	14.3	12.8	13.5	16.3	14.1	11.9	13.0
Avg. Yld.	4.5%	4.5%	4.5%	3.8%	3.4%	3.3%	3.6%	3.5%	2.9%	2.9%	3.5%	3.1%

Community Trust Bancorp is currently trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of 11.9, which is lower than its 10-year average price-to-earnings ratio of 13.4. Due to the small market cap of the stock, we prefer to be somewhat conservative and assume a price-to-earnings ratio around 13.0 by 2024. In such a case, the stock will enjoy a 1.8% annualized gain thanks to the expansion of its valuation level over the next five years.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2024
Payout	72.7%	56.1%	48.7%	43.3%	43.9%	47.4%	45.9%	46.7%	44.7%	40.3%	41.5%	41.1%

Community Trust Bancorp proved that it was well managed in the Great Recession. In the worst financial crisis of the last 80 years, when most banks cut their dividends, this bank remained profitable and continued raising its dividend.

As a recession has not materialized for a whole decade, investors should be watchful. In the event a recession occurs, Community Trust Bancorp will certainly be affected, but its business performance will probably be superior to that of most other banks thanks to its conservative loan portfolio. To provide a perspective, the bank reported net loan charge-offs of only 0.20% in the most recent quarter.

On the other hand, whenever the market incurs a meaningful correction, Community Trust Bancorp tends to underperform its sector due to its low market cap and its resultant low trading liquidity. Only investors who can remain focused on the fundamentals and ignore pressure on the stock price should consider purchasing this stock.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Community Trust Bancorp is a well-managed bank, which can offer a 9.3% average annual return over the next five years. The bank accelerated its growth pattern in 2018 thanks to higher interest rates and its reduced tax rate but it will now decelerate due to the pause of interest rate hikes by the Fed and the absence of the one-time benefit from tax reform. The stock is reasonably valued and has a low payout ratio so it has ample room to keep raising its dividend. It is thus eligible for income-oriented investors, particularly given its exceptional dividend growth record. Nevertheless, due to the risks that accompany small-cap stocks and the lackluster earnings growth rate of Community Trust Bancorp going forward, we maintain our hold rating for this stock.
