Overview & Current Events

Hanesbrands is a leading marketer of everyday basic innerwear and activewear apparel. It has a market capitalization of $5.5 billion and sells its products under well-known brands, including Hanes and Champion, in America, Europe, Australia and the Asia-Pacific region.

Hanesbrands spent $2.9 billion on acquisitions in the last seven years but has dramatically underperformed the S&P 500 in the last five years, losing 39% while the index rallied 50%. The company is striving to assimilate its past acquisitions while it is facing increasing competition in intimate apparel and a secular shift towards online sales. The high debt load from past acquisitions burdens the company via high interest expenses.

In early August, Hanesbrands reported (8/1/19) financial results for the second quarter of fiscal 2019. The company increased its sales 3% and its constant-currency sales 5% thanks to double-digit growth in activewear, 4% international growth, and rapid global expansion of Champion. It was the 8th consecutive quarter of constant-currency organic sales growth. Despite decent sales growth, adjusted earnings-per-share remained flat at $0.45 due to lower margins.

Thanks to positive business momentum, management slightly improved its guidance for this year and thus it now expects adjusted earnings-per-share in the top half of its previously guided range $1.72-$1.80. We have kept our estimate intact, at $1.78.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2024

Hanesbrands has grown its earnings-per-share at a 4.8% average annual rate over the last four years. Although the company managed to grow its sales for the first time in four years last year, we do not expect it to exceed its recent earnings-per-share growth rate due to the above-mentioned challenges facing the company. Overall, we expect a 3.0% annual earnings-per-share growth rate over the next five years, from $1.78 this year to $2.06 in 2024.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	Now	2024
Avg. P/E	10.2	12.4	10.0	11.5	13.8	16.2	18.6	14.3	11.4	10.9	8.4	12.9
Avg. Yld.	---	---	---	---	1.1%	1.3%	1.3%	1.7%	2.7%	3.2%	4.0%	2.6%

Hanesbrands is currently trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of 8.4, which is much lower than its 10-year average price-to-earnings ratio of 12.9. As the stock begins to recover, it could revert to its average valuation level in the next five years. If this happens it will enjoy a 9.0% annualized gain thanks to the expansion of its valuation level over this period.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2024
Payout	---	---	---	---	15.3%	21.1%	24.1%	23.8%	31.1%	35.1%	33.7%	34.0%

Hanesbrands' well-known Champion brand gives the company a slight competitive advantage. However, the company is engaged in a highly competitive business that does not allow it to command high margins or grow quickly.

Due to its acquisitions, Hanesbrands has leveraged its balance sheet in recent years, with its debt/assets ratio rising from 69.9% in 2013 to 85.6% now. Its interest expense currently consumes 25% of its operating income. The company has paid the same dividend for 11 consecutive quarters. As the payout ratio is low, the reason for the absence of a dividend hike is probably the leveraged balance sheet and the uncertain business outlook. Fortunately, management is in the process of reducing the debt load. The company has reduced its leverage (Net Debt/EBITDA) from 3.9 to 3.5 in the last 12 months and remains on track to reduce it further to 2.9 by the end of the year.

Hanesbrands is also vulnerable to recessions. During rough economic periods, consumers reduce the amounts they spend on apparel and thus exert pressure on the earnings of apparel companies. As a recession has not shown up for a whole decade, this is a risk factor to consider for Hanesbrands.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Hanesbrands is doing its best to address its challenges and can reward its shareholders if its turnaround succeeds. The stock can offer a 16.0% average annual return over the next five years thanks to 3.0% annual earnings-per-share growth, its 4.0% dividend and a 9.0% annualized expansion of its valuation level. However, the company has a long way to go until it reaps the benefits from its past acquisitions. Due to its leveraged balance sheet, lackluster growth prospects and vulnerability to recessions, offset by high expected total returns, we rate the stock as a buy for investors with a high appetite for risk.
