Overview & Current Events

Leggett & Platt is an engineered products manufacturer. The company's products include furniture, bedding components, store fixtures, die castings, and industrial products. Leggett & Platt has 14 business units, 22,000 employees, and 130 manufacturing facilities across 18 countries. The company qualifies for the Dividend Aristocrats Index as it has 47 years of consecutive dividend increases. Leggett & Platt was founded in 1883, is headquartered in Carthage, MO, and is currently valued at $4.8 billion.

Leggett & Platt reported its second quarter earnings results on July 29. The company reported revenues of $1.21 billion for the quarter, which represents a 10.0% growth rate compared to the prior year's quarter. Revenues nevertheless missed the consensus analyst estimate slightly. The company's revenue growth was based on a 16% sales gain thanks to the impact of acquisitions, while organic revenues declined by 6% year over year.

Leggett & Platt generated earnings-per-share of $0.64 during the second quarter, which represents a small gain versus earnings-per-share of $0.63 during the previous year's quarter. Leggett & Platt's earnings-per-share for the second quarter also beat the analyst consensus estimate by $0.01, or roughly 1.5%.

Leggett & Platt's guidance ranges for sales and earnings-per-share were reduced compared to the previous level. The company forecasts revenues of $4.70 billion to $4.85 billion for fiscal 2019, which represents a revenue growth rate of 10% to 14% compared to the revenues that the company generated during fiscal 2018. Revenue growth will be positively impacted by the acquisition of Elite Comfort Solutions that closed earlier this year. Adjusted for that, revenues would have been down according to management's guidance numbers. Leggett & Platt guides for earnings-per-share in a range of $2.40 to $2.60 for fiscal 2019.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Leggett & Platt grew its earnings-per-share by 14.4% annually between 2009 and 2018, which is a highly compelling growth rate. This included easy comparables following the last financial crisis, though. More recently, Leggett & Platt's earnings-per-share growth rate has declined substantially. Between 2013 and 2018 Leggett & Platt grew its earnings-per-share by 10% annually, and following 2016, there was no positive growth at all. Leggett & Platt's profitability is also vulnerable during recessions. Between 2008 and 2009, Leggett & Platt's earnings-per-share declined by more than 50%, although they recovered to a new record level during the following years.

In the long run, Leggett & Platt will likely continue to deliver earnings-per-share growth through a combination of sales increases, acquisitions, and ongoing share repurchases, which have lowered the company's share count considerably over the last couple of years. Earnings-per-share growth will not be as high as it was in the past, though.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	Now	2024
Avg. P/E	21.9	18.6	21.9	14.1	20.1	19.4	19.5	18.3	20.0	14.5	14.8	16.0
Avg. Yld.	6.3%	5.0%	4.8%	4.9%	3.8%	3.5%	2.8%	2.8%	2.9%	4.1%	4.3%	3.9%

Leggett & Platt traded at a relatively high valuation throughout much of the last decade, with shares being valued at a high-teens to low-20s earnings multiple during most of these years. Right now shares look comparatively cheap, although we believe that shares will likely trade somewhat lower than the long-term median earnings multiple going forward. We nevertheless see upside potential towards a fair price to earnings multiple of 16, which should result in a multiple expansion tailwind. Leggett & Platt offers an above-average dividend yield of 4.3% on top of that.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2024
Payout	138%	92.2%	106%	68.7%	76.6%	68.5%	53.8%	51.1%	57.7%	60.5%	64.0%	62.7%

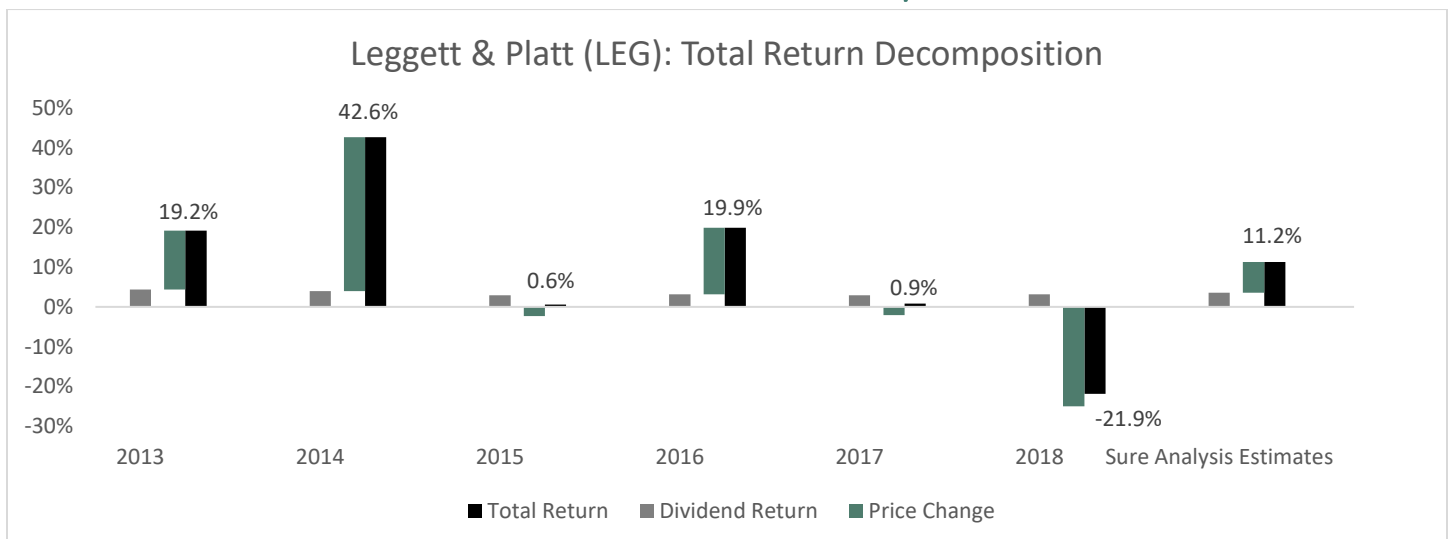

Leggett & Platt's dividend payout ratio was very high - well above 100% - during the last financial crisis. The company did not cut its dividend during those troubled times, though. Since then the dividend payout ratio has declined considerably, and dividend coverage is solid today. Leggett & Platt's dividend payout ratio could rise above 100% during another recession, but due to the decades-long dividend track record, we still rate the payout as relatively safe.

Leggett & Platt has a long and successful history, but during the last financial crisis its earnings were decimated. It is likely that another deep recession would hurt Leggett & Platt. The company is thus not recession-resilient. Leggett & Platt will likely continue to make acquisitions in order to grow its size and scale, which serve as advantages versus peers.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Leggett & Platt is a company that has performed very well in the past, both in terms of generating earnings growth, as well as when it comes to its decades-long dividend growth track record. Going forward, we believe Leggett & Platt's earnings-per-share growth rate will be substantially lower, but the company's shares still offer a solid total return outlook over the coming years. Leggett & Platt is vulnerable to steep economic downturns, but for those that are not afraid of this risk, the company earns a buy recommendation around current prices.
