Overview & Current Events

From its somewhat inauspicious beginnings as a Washington, D.C. root-beer stand in 1927, Marriott has become an international hospitality juggernaut, with more than 7,000 properties operating under 30 brands in more than 130 countries and territories. In fact, it's the largest hotel chain in the world.

The Marriott Intl. that we know today was created in 1993 when the former Marriott Corp. split into two publicly traded companies, Marriott Intl. and Host Marriott Corp. (HST) (now known as Host Hotels & Resorts). Marriott Intl. manages and franchises a portfolio of hospital brands that range from the classic splendor of The Ritz-Carlton to the Fairfield Inns you find along the highway. Internationally, Marriott's Starwood subsidiary gives the company a significant foothold in Europe and elsewhere.

Marriott currently boasts a market cap north of $42 billion. Annual revenue for fiscal 2018 clocked in at $20.66 billion. Marriott Intl. pays out a quarterly dividend that has hovered around 1.3-1.5% during the past few years.

The company lost some goodwill in 2018 when it revealed its Starwood guest reservation database had been hacked. U.K. authorities have reported they will levy a $126 million fine on the company for the breach.

Marriott Intl. held its most recent earnings call on August 5, 2019. In the second quarter of 2019, revenue also shrank, by 2% to $5.3 billion. Reported net income in the second quarter showed a 65% year-over-year decrease, at $232 million. Marriott's Q2 diluted earnings per share (EPS) totaled $0.69, compared to $1.87 in the year-ago quarter, a year-over-year loss of 63%. On an adjusted basis, EPS decreased 10% year-over-year, to $1.56. Marriott also reported that during the second quarter it repurchased 3.8 million of its shares for a total of $500 million. The company's full-year outlook for fiscal 2019 reflects a decrease of between 2% and 4% year over year, with expected per-share earnings between $5.97 and $6.06.

Despite Marriott Intl.'s large size, the company continues to grow at a relatively brisk pace. The company expects continued growth in the number of new projects using Marriott's 30 brands. Across the hospitality industry, luxury lodging continues to be a strong trend. Marriott currently has more than 700 luxury properties open or under development, with 60% of 200 luxury pipeline properties already under construction. Marriott also expects to grow in the trendy and growing all-inclusive space. The company is working to expand its all-inclusive portfolio not only in North and South America and the Caribbean, but also in Europe and Southeast Asia.

The company is wise in seeking opportunities beyond the typical hotel stay. The continued rise of homestay platforms such as Airbnb has demonstrated that this is no overnight fad. The hospitality industry as a whole has to "up its game" to stay competitive. This is also where Marriott's pioneering loyalty program, Bonvoy, will come into play by offering attractive rewards. There's no denying that, despite growth prospects, there's plenty of challenge in the industry.

Therefore, we conservatively believe Marriott will hold onto a slow-but-steady pace with expected 2019 and 2024 EPS of $6.05 and $8.25, respectively. That reflects estimated 5-year growth of 6.4%.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2024
Avg. P/E	23.5	29.5	25.4	21.5	21.1	25.0	24.0	26.3	19.6	24.0	21.2	18.5
Avg. Yld.	0.4%	0.6%	1.1%	1.3%	1.5%	1.2%	1.3%	1.7%	1.3%	1.2%	1.4%	1.5%

Looking at Marriott's performance during the last 10 years, we notice the P/E has tended to remain solidly in the 21-25 range. Given this year's earnings decrease (along with a sluggish stock price), we can conservatively expect MAR's 2019 P/E to hang around 21.2.

Looking ahead to 2024, we'll assign an expected P/E of 18.5, given the continuing challenges in the hospitality industry. When it comes to dividend payouts, Marriott has a history of playing it slow but steady. We see this trend continuing for the foreseeable future.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	19%	10%	28%	33%	31%	30%	29%	48%	24%	28%	26.4%	28.4%

Although Marriott Intl. trades in excitement – luxury getaways, exotic destinations, and even room amenities that might trick you out of believing you're on business travel – the company's stock performance has been anything but thrilling. The company's best advantage is its sheer size. At this point, if you're staying at a chain hotel anywhere in the world, there's a decent chance Marriott owns the brand.

During the first decade of the 21st century – which saw one of the greatest historical slumps in travel – Marriott remained profitable. The company used that time to develop new luxury brands and programs and found ways to trim the fat. The lowest EPS that the company clocked was in 2009, at $0.94. However, since then, it has continued to steadily rise. The company did reduce its dividend in 2009 unnecessarily, before hitting new dividend highs by 2011. On the down side, Marriott carries debt of $11.43 billion. That figure has also steadily risen over the years.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Marriott Intl. is not alone in the hospitality industry in the challenges it faces – first and foremost, the expected continued growth of alternative stay platforms such as Airbnb. The company will continue to spend money on growth in order to combat this threat; however, this will likely result in sluggish stock and dividend growth. If you aren't already in MAR, look for profits elsewhere. Otherwise, it's a hold.
