Overview & Current Events

Fox Corporation is a television broadcasting company with a $\$ 20$ billion market cap. The company, known among insiders as "New Fox," was spun off from the former $21^{\text {st }}$ Century Fox when The Walt Disney Co. (DIS) acquired the majority of that company's assets, including its cinema entertainment business, in 2019. Since the spinoff, Fox Corp. has been a much more focused company, with its operations centered on Cable Networks \& Television.

In August 2019, Fox announced that it would purchase a $67 \%$ stake in online loan origination marketplace Credible Labs for $\$ 265$ million. Fox will also invest up to an additional $\$ 75$ million in growth capital over a period of about two years in the San Francisco-based company, which helps consumers find and refinance student loans. Fox also announced that it would purchase hit animation studio Bento Box Entertainment for a yet-undisclosed amount. Back in May, Fox announced it had purchased a roughly $5 \%$ equity stake in The Stars Group for more than $\$ 236$ million. With this purchase, Fox is joining forces with Stars to create a Fox-branded sports betting platform. This project, FOX Bet, launched in New Jersey on September 2 ${ }^{\text {nd }}$, just in time for football season.
On November 6, 2019, Fox Corp. reported quarterly results for the first quarter that beat or met Wall Street's expectations - in thanks, largely, to increased affiliate fees. The company reported adjusted earnings for the quarter of 83 cents per share, handily beating Wall Street's estimates of 70 cents per share. This represented year-over-year growth of $1.2 \%$.
Revenue also rose for the quarter, by roughly $5 \%$ year over year, to $$ 2.67$ billion. This growth was driven largely by a $14 \%$ increase in Fox's Television segment. In the Other Revenues category, Fox reported a 54\% increase, reflecting revenue growth for the Fox Studios Lot business, which hosts productions for third-party entertainment companies.

Since the last financial crisis, $21^{\text {st }}$ Century Fox's profitability has recovered relatively quickly, with earnings-per-share rising by $14 \%$ annually between 2009 and 2018. The sale of the majority of the company's assets to Disney, which went hand in hand with the creation of the new Fox Corp., means that the numbers in the above table for 2009-2018 are not very reflective of the company's current state, evidenced, for example, by the big change in its share count.
Fox Corp. is a more focused company following the asset sale. Fox News, Fox Business, Fox Sports, Fox Broadcasting, and the company's other TV assets will remain highly relevant. It helps that Fox News really has no mainstream competition in the conservative news arena. The assets that Fox retained are not very cyclical or vulnerable to recessions, compared to, for example, the more cyclical filmed entertainment business.
Currently, Fox's biggest growth prospects are with FOX Bet. Analysts expect the sports betting industry to generate $$ 9$ billion in gambling revenue over the next few years. Fox Corp. is in good position to grab a chunk of that. We foresee Fox shareholders continuing to benefit from a solid earnings-per-share growth rate.

How $21^{\text {st }}$ Century Fox was valued in the past is only somewhat reflective of how Fox Corp. should be valued in the future, due to the changes in the business model.

Fox Corp. is trading at a low double-digit valuation today, but we see the potential for modest valuation multiple expansion off the low current base.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

$21^{\text {st }}$ Century Fox paid out $\sim 20 \%$ of its net profits in the form of dividends throughout most of the last decade. The payout ratio has been even lower during some of the last couple of years. Fox Corp. is expected to pay out $9 \%$ of its profits in 2019 with an estimated 2024 payout conservatively continuing around $9 \%$. The very low payout ratio means that the dividend looks very safe, although the low dividend yield is not especially attractive for income-focused investors.
Fox Corp. 's strongest position, relative to peers, has always been in its news channels and sport programming - assets the company continues to own after the deal with Disney. The sale of some assets could improve Fox's position in the long run, as it allows the company to focus on the businesses it is best at: Cable & TV broadcasting. The TV business is not very cyclical, so Fox Corp. will likely be less vulnerable in future recessions.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

If you're feeling speculative, now would be a good time to place your bet on Fox's performance through the 2020 election season. Based on our estimates, shares are currently inexpensive, and it's likely that Fox is slightly undervalued. Overall, we expect solid, but unspectacular total returns for Fox. The company earns a hold rating at current prices.
