Overview & Current Events

Lowe's Companies is the second-largest home improvement retailer in the US (after Home Depot). The company, which has a current market capitalization of $91 billion, was founded in 1946 and is headquartered in Mooresville, NC. Lowe's operates over 2,000 home improvement and hardware stores in the U.S. and Canada.

Lowe's reported third quarter results on November 20th, and recorded net earnings of $1.0 billion, compared to $629 million in the same period a year ago. Adjusted diluted earnings per share increased 36% year-over-year, from $1.04 to $1.41. The company generated revenues of $17.4 billion, a minor 0.2% decrease from last year. Consolidated comparable sales increased by 2.2%, while comparable sales specifically in the U.S. increased by 3.0%.

The company spent $53 million this quarter to perform a strategic review of its Canadian operations, which led to announcing the closure of 34 underperforming stores in Canada. The company will also simplify multiple Canadian store banners to reduce operational complexity and reorganize the corporate structure across Canada.

The company continued its generous share buyback program and purchased $835 million worth of stock, as well as paid $428 million in dividends for the quarter. Diluted common shares outstanding are down 4.6% from one year ago.

Due to improved execution and strong earnings per share growth, management decided to upgrade guidance. Adjusted earnings per share for 2019 is expected at $5.63 to $5.70, up from $5.45 to $5.65. Revenue and comparable sales growth are expected to be 2% and 3%, unchanged from the prior outlook.

Lowe's is not opening many new stores right now, but the company still managed to grow its earnings-per-share at a very attractive pace in the past. This is due to several factors, including a strong comparable store sales performance, which lifts revenues as well as margins. Between 2009 and 2018 Lowe's grew its earnings-per-share by 17.3% a year. 2009's profits were impacted by the financial crisis, though, which has resulted in a low starting base for Lowe's earnings-per-share growth during that particular year.

Earnings-per-share are driven by comparable store sales growth, increasing margins, and the company's share repurchases, which have lowered the share count meaningfully. Significant buybacks mean that the company's net earnings are split over a lower number of shares, which accelerates growth in per-share net income. Especially when Lowe's valuation was lower during the last couple of years these share repurchases were highly accretive. Lowe's would likely ramp up its buybacks if its valuation declined meaningfully. Housing has seen a bit of a resurgence recently, and consumers have plenty of disposable income. Lowe's should be able to grow its sales over the coming years, but its earnings-per-share growth will be somewhat lower going forward compared to the last couple of years.

Lowé's Companies (LOW)

Updated November 27th, 2019 by Quinn Mohammed

Lowé's is a Dividend King - the company has raised the dividend annually for more than 50 years in a row - and its dividend growth rate was very high in recent years. Lowé's has raised its dividend by 21% per year over the last 5 years. We expect this dividend growth to moderate in the coming years but remain in double-digit territory.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	Now	2024
Avg. P/E	16.8	16.1	14.1	17.3	20.4	19.8	21.8	18.6	18.7	18.0	20.8	18.5
Avg. Yld.	1.7%	1.8%	2.2%	2.0%	1.6%	1.6%	1.5%	1.8%	1.9%	2.1%	1.9%	2.4%

Lowé's trades just above 20 times this year's expected earnings-per-share right now, which is just above the 5-year average of 19.4. The current valuation is moderately higher than our fair valuation of 18.5 times earnings. We estimate a 2.3% annual headwind in the coming 5 years from the valuation multiple contraction.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2024
Payout	30%	29%	31%	35%	32%	33%	33%	33%	36%	34%	39%	42%

Lowé's is a Dividend King, the company has raised its dividend annually for more than 50 years in a row, even during recessions and the last financial crisis. This very strong track record, coupled with the fact that Lowé's dividend payout ratio is quite low, shows that Lowé's is a very reliable and low-risk dividend stock where investors do not have to worry about a dividend cut. In addition, many years of dividend growth should be in front of the company.

Lowé's business is somewhat cyclical, but the company performed relatively well during the last financial crisis, nevertheless. Earnings-per-share declined by less than 20%, despite the housing market hit. Lowé's enjoys competitive advantages from scale and brand power as it operates in a duopoly with Home Depot. Neither of the two are expanding their store count significantly, and neither is interested in a price war. Both should remain highly profitable, as the home improvement market in the US is large enough for two companies to make a lot of money.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Lowé's offers 7.8% total return potential thanks to its 1.9% dividend yield, expected 8.2% annual growth rate, and 2.3% expected annual multiple compression. Shares are trading slightly above fair value today, but also offer compelling growth potential for both earnings and the dividend. While growth prospects are intact, given shares currently trade above fair value, we rate Lowé's a Hold.
