Overview & Current Events

Kimco Realty is a real estate investment trust that owns, develops, manages and operates shopping centers. Kimco, in particular, specializes in open-air shopping centers. The trust was founded in 1973, is headquartered in New Hyde Park, NY, and currently trades with a market capitalization of $8.1 billion.

Kimco Realty reported its third quarter earnings results on October 24th. Adjusted FFO-per-share came in at $0.37, beating consensus estimates and year-over-year results by a penny. The company set an all-time record for pro-rata occupancy at quarter end with a 96.4% number thanks to a 60 basis point year-over-year improvement, signaling a very healthy business model. Same-property net operating income also grew by a healthy 2.2% year-over-year.

However, part of the reason for this strong performance in occupancy and NOI was due to the trust selling off weaker properties. As a result, FFO-per-share growth was rather muted, and revenue actually declined slightly ($0.2 million) year-over-year. The company also slightly increased the midpoint of its 2019 adjusted FFO-per-share guidance to $1.465 from $1.46 previously, and its same-property NOI growth guidance to 2.65% from 2.35% previously.

As REITs have high non-cash expenses, primarily due to depreciation, net earnings are usually relatively low and are therefore not reflective of the underlying earnings power and ability to generate cash flows. It thus makes sense to look at funds from operations, or FFO. Kimco Realty's FFOPS is substantially lower than before the financial crisis, but the trust has performed relatively well over the last couple of years. Between 2010 and 2017, its FFO per share grew by 4.2% annually, although growth has been a bit slower during the most recent years.

During 2018, Kimco Realty's funds from operations declined by a mid-single-digit rate compared to 2017. The decline was due to a planned reduction of Kimco Realty's asset base. The trust sold more than $900 million worth of properties during fiscal 2018, which has lowered Kimco Realty's rent proceeds as well, as its funds from operations declined substantially. Kimco Realty has used the majority of these proceeds to pay down debt; $650 million of debt was paid down between December of 2017 and December of 2018. Getting rid of weaker assets negatively impacts Kimco Realty's earnings power in the short term, but lower interest expenses will be a benefit in the long run.

Once the asset sales are completed, Kimco Realty should be able to grow its FFO through rent increases and rising operating income. The underlying operating performance of Kimco Realty is strong, which is reflected in positive same-property NOI growth. The trust is not facing any problems due to e-commerce hurting sales at its properties so far.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	Now	2024
P/FFO	8.7	13.4	14.3	15.1	16.2	16.4	17.3	18.8	13.5	9.9	13.7	13.0
Avg. Yld.	6.2%	4.3%	4.2%	4.1%	4.0%	4.0%	3.9%	3.6%	5.3%	7.7%	5.6%	6.0%

Kimco Realty trades for 13.7 times this year's expected funds from operations, which represents a slight premium over our fair value estimate. During the majority of the last decade Kimco traded at a higher valuation, but going forward the valuation will likely not reach the mid-teens range again due to the decline in growth opportunities in bricks-and-mortar retail.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2024
Payout	---	57.9%	60.8%	61.9%	64.7%	65.7%	67.1%	68.0%	71.1%	76.2%	76.7%	78.6%

Kimco Realty's dividend payout ratio is relatively high at first sight. Many other REITs have payout ratios of 70% or more, but we nevertheless do not think that Kimco Realty's dividend is overly safe. During the last financial crisis Kimco was forced to cut its dividend, and something similar could happen again during a major recession or other crisis.

Some mall REITs are under a lot of pressure due to declining traffic at the malls they own, which leads to lower occupancy rates and to lower rents at the same time. Kimco Realty's focus on outdoor shopping-centers has shielded the trust from such developments so far. Traffic at its properties is solid, and its tenant base is strong as well. Top tenants include Home Depot, TJX, Walmart, as well as many grocers. During the last financial crisis Kimco Realty did not remain profitable (using FFO), but during less severe recessions the trust would likely not be impacted significantly.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Kimco Realty is a retail REIT, but its shopping-center focus provides some protection versus the rise of e-commerce companies, and the underlying performance of Kimco's assets has been very solid in the recent past. Once the asset sales have been completed, per-share FFO should begin to grow again. Kimco Realty earns a hold recommendation from Sure Dividend as shares trade slightly above fair value but offer a very strong dividend yield, leading to a respectable 7.6% expected annualized total return.
