Overview & Current Events

Novo Nordisk A/S ADR is a global healthcare company headquartered in Denmark. Today, the company focuses on two core business segments that are Diabetes & Obesity Care, and Biopharmaceuticals. The Diabetes & Obesity Care segment manufactures insulin, related delivery systems, oral anti-diabetic products, and products to treat obesity. The Biopharmaceuticals segment manufactures products for hemophilia, growth hormone therapy, and hormone replacement therapy. Novo Nordisk derives ~55% of revenue from insulin drugs. The company's products are marketed in 170 countries but approximately 48% of net sales are from North America (mostly U.S.) and the rest is international sales. Novo Nordisk has a ~$149.53B market capitalization.¹

Novo Nordisk reported solid full year 2019 results on February 5th, 2020. Companywide sales increased 9% in Danish kroner to 122,021B ($17,823B) and earnings per share increased 3% to 16.38 DKK ($2.39) from 15.94 DKK ($2.33) on a year-over-year basis driven by growth in all markets. Diabetes & Obesity sales increased 10% due to strong uptake of Saxenda (obesity), which grew 47%. Saxenda is now launched in 46 countries. Long acting insulin drugs Tresiba and Xultophy grew sales at 15% and 37%, respectively. Premix insulin drug Ryzodeg increased sales 39%. Fiasp (fast acting insulin) sales grew 111%. Total GLP-1 sales grew 27% on the expansion of Ozempic to the U.S. In the U.S., the company launched Rybelsus for type 2 diabetes. Biopharmaceuticals segment sales grew 7%. Novo Nordisk continues to expand distribution of its latest therapies and gain approval for new indications. NovoEight sales grew 13%. Refixia and Esperoct are being launched globally.

Novo Nordisk experienced strong earnings growth in the years after the last recession driven by the global economic recovery, rising drug prices, and reduction of share count. However, earnings growth has recently slowed due to patent expirations and heightened competition from generics. But the company recently launched Ozempic that should revive growth. Novo Nordisk should also have sales strong growth from Xultophy, Ryzodeg, Tresiba, Fiasp, and Saxenda. According to Novo Nordisk, more than 425 million people around the world have diabetes. The prevalence of diabetes is expected to soar in the coming decades as a result of an increasingly overweight and aging worldwide population. Going forward, we are forecasting 6% growth in EPS out to 2025 due to higher volumes and pricing. Novo Nordisk changed its annual dividend to a bi-annual dividend in 2016. Novo Nordisk has been paying a consistent and growing dividend in DKK. However, currency effects can influence this consistency when translated to USD and investors could have a withholding tax on dividends. But on average we are forecasting 7% annual growth in the dividend out to 2025.

¹ Novo Nordisk trades as an American Depositary Receipt or 'ADR' on the NYSE. The company reports quarterly earnings in Danish kroner (DKK). This report will use USD at the prevailing exchange rates.

² Share count is in millions.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	Now	2024
Avg. P/E	19.6	22.2	21.4	19.8	27.1	27.1	23.0	17.2	19.8	20.9	25.2	20.0
Avg. Yld.	1.6%	1.6%	1.7%	1.8%	1.9%	1.4%	2.9%	2.7%	2.8%	2.5%	2.1%	2.8%

Novo Nordisk's stock price continues to rise due to top line and bottom line growth. But it is now trading above our fair value estimate and the trailing 10-year average multiple of ~21.8. We gave increased our fair value multiple to 20.0. Our current fair value estimate is now $51. Our 5-year price target is now $68.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2025
Payout	31%	37%	36%	36%	51%	37%	67%	46%	52%	52%	53%	55%

Novo Nordisk has a large competitive advantage with ~47% market share of the global insulin market, about 28% of the global diabetes market, roughly 68% of the obesity market, and about 45% of the GLP-1 market. The company has global manufacturing, distribution and marketing scale to maintain this market share. Furthermore, Novo Nordisk spends on R&D to develop new therapies and expand to other indications. Saying that, branded competitors exist with Sanofi and Eli Lilly for insulin. In addition, off patent insulin is available as a generic. But complex manufacturing requirements, high upfront costs, and low insulin pricing will keep most generics at bay. Novo Nordisk has recession resistant characteristics, as people require insulin and diabetes drugs in good times or bad. The company does face patent expiration risk and pricing risk as insulin and diabetes drugs are subject to price cuts from U.S. Medicare and Medicaid.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

At present we are forecasting a 3.6% annualized total return through 2025 down from our last report due to market gains. Novo Nordisk's global market leadership and growth in its key markets gives it a wide moat. Furthermore, the company is expanding distribution of therapies to new countries and there are several drugs in the R&D pipeline which portends well for future earnings. But the stock price has gotten ahead of itself and we rate this stock a hold.
