Overview & Current Events

1st Source was founded back in 1863 and since that time, has grown into a regional bank with $6.7 billion in assets. The company is headquartered in Indiana and has about 80 branches to service its customers. 1st Source's market capitalization is $813 million, and it is expected to produce about $320 million in revenue this year. 1st Source also has an exceptional dividend increase streak that stands at 32 years, which very few banks can match.

1st Source reported Q1 earnings on April 23rd, with revenue coming in ahead of expectations, but earnings slightly missing estimates. Net interest income was essentially even with last year's Q1, while noninterest income was up 2%. Noninterest expenses rose 3%, more than offsetting the small gains in revenue.

Loan loss provisions totaled $11.35 million, which is more than double the $4.92 million in the same period last year. Net charge-offs were $1.81 million, and nonperforming assets were 0.68%, compared to $3.54 million and 0.49%, respectively, from the year-ago period.

Average loans were up $240 million, or 5% from last year's Q1, while deposits were up $213 million, or 4.2%. Return on assets came in at just 1.00% in Q1, down from 1.43% in last year's Q1, thanks to loan loss provisions.

Net income was $16.4 million, down -26% year-over-year. On a per-share basis, earnings fell from $0.86 to $0.64.

1st Source also cut its most recent dividend declaration by -3%, falling from $0.29 to $0.28 per share. However, due to 1st Source's unusual dividend policy, it is still an increase over last year's Q2 dividend of $0.27.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Earnings-per-share growth has been robust since the bottom in 2009. Recent growth has been fueled by gains in its asset base, averaging 7%+ in the past four years. 1st Source's strong balance sheet growth has been accompanied by expanding margins and prudent operating expenditures, allowing for a rise in returns on its asset base. However, we've lowered our growth estimate from 4% annually to 2% given the lending margin headwinds banks are facing, which are showing no signs of abating. 1st Source is trying to build more fee revenue, but its business is still heavily dependent upon lending margins, and we think growth will slow because of the unfavorable interest rate environment.

Our expectation for the dividend is now $1.25 in 2025 as we think COVID-19-related economic weakness will force banks to conserve capital.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	Now	2024
Avg. P/E	14.5	10.9	11.3	11.8	12.8	13.9	15.3	18.4	16.4	13.1	9.4	11.5
Avg. Yld.	3.5%	3.0%	2.9%	2.6%	2.3%	2.2%	2.1%	1.6%	1.9%	2.4%	3.3%	2.7%

Since we see the reduction in earnings related to COVID-19 as temporary, we are using an earnings power estimate of $3.60 per share for our fair value and valuation calculations, rather than actual earnings projections for 2020.

1st Source's price-to-earnings multiple has been fairly steady, all things considered, for the past decade. It is trading for 9.4 times earnings today, which is far below its own historical valuations. The recent selloff in the stock means the valuation could produce a 4% tailwind to total annual returns.

We see the yield falling over time as the valuation rises over time, sending the yield from 3.3% to 2.7%.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2025
Payout	50%	33%	33%	31%	30%	32%	34%	30%	30%	31%	45%	31%

The payout ratio should be in the area of one-third of normalized earnings, given that dividend raises will likely be in line with earnings growth in the coming years. We see the dividend as safe and with a lot of room to grow given 1st Source's commitment to raising the payout, as well as the low payout ratio, and the bank's decent earnings growth rates.

1st Source's competitive advantage is in its clean balance sheet, strong profitability metrics and robust market position in the areas it serves. The advantage of a community or regional bank is that it can generate sizable market share in lots of small markets, creating a sustainable competitive advantage. It is obviously not immune from recessions but given its performance during the Great Recession, 1st Source looks well positioned for this economic downturn.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We believe total returns for 1st Source investors could be 8.9% annually, consisting of the current 3.3% yield, a moderate tailwind from the valuation and low single-digit earnings-per-share growth. 1st Source is a high-quality bank stock, but we are reiterating our hold rating. 1st Source is one of the best regional banks in our coverage universe and we see the company as attractive, but there are much cheaper bank stocks for this unique environment.
