Overview & Current Events

SEI Investments was founded in 1968 and over the last 50+ years has grown into a market capitalization of $7.4 billion. SEI is a global provider of investment processing, investment management, and investment operations solutions for financial institutions and advisors. SEI has $283 billion in assets under management and $632 billion in assets under administration. The company should produce $1.6 billion in revenue this year.

SEI reported first quarter earnings on April 23rd, with results beating expectations on the top line, but with profit coming in weaker than expected. Revenue rose 3% year-over-year to $415 million, led by the Investment Advisors and Investment Managers businesses, which posted 8% and 11% gains in their respective top lines. Private Banks revenue fell -4% and Institutional Investors revenue fell fractionally.

Expenses rose 3% on a companywide basis, but operating profits rose 6%, led by the Investment Advisors and Investment Managers segments once again, which posted 18% and 19% gains in operating profits, respectively. Operating profits in the Private Banks segment plummeted by two-thirds, offsetting some of these gains.

Assets under administration soared 14% year-over-year despite the market weakness that occurred in March. Assets under management rose 6% year-over-year, but the company did suffer minor client losses, as well as reduced fee activity thanks to the global COVID-19 pandemic.

We think SEI is in good shape in terms of weathering the economic weakness from COVID-19, but we've cut our estimate for this year to $2.75 per share on reduced client activity and lower AUM.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Since 2013, SEI has managed to double its earnings and looking forward we believe that strong growth can continue. SEI has seen higher earnings-per-share in each year since 2011. We are forecasting 10% earnings-per-share growth over the next five years as the low base of earnings from 2020 should provide better growth rates moving forward. We see SEI achieving this result through continued revenue expansion as more customers adopt its SEI Wealth Platform, and assets under management and advisement continue to grow. We see mid-single-digit revenue growth as the primary driver of earnings going forward. SEI also buys back stock at low single-digit rates and is seeing margin expansion with its higher revenue. The key is revenue growth as SEI invests heavily in its future. The company recently boosted its authorization by another $250 million given the weakness in its share price.

Updated May 3rd, 2020 by Josh Arnold

SEI's dividend growth has been decent in recent years but it is not an income stock at this point. We see moderate dividend growth going forward, but keep in mind that investors own SEI for the earnings growth potential, not for the yield, and that is not going to change anytime soon. Indeed, the payout ratio remains very low and given how much SEI invests in its platform on a regular basis, we expect the ratio to remain fairly constant moving forward.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	Now	2025
Avg. P/E	17.1	18.1	17.4	18.4	19.0	24.4	22.6	22.3	20.3	15.8	18.1	17.0
Avg. Yld.	1.0%	1.3%	1.5%	1.4%	1.3%	1.0%	1.2%	1.0%	1.0%	1.2%	1.4%	1.4%

SEI's price-to-earnings multiple has come off of its recent highs. However, we still see it as trading in excess of our estimate of fair value. Thus, we are forecasting a -1.2% headwind to the valuation in the coming years. The dividend is not a priority for SEI as it continues to spend cash on its products and services to fuel future growth. Indeed, this is not a stock one owns for the yield or dividend growth prospects.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2025
Payout	17%	24%	11%	33%	12%	23%	24%	25%	20%	21%	26%	23%

The payout ratio is very low as earnings-per-share expansion has far outpaced dividend growth in recent years, something we think will continue. There may come a time when the dividend is a significant source of returns, but SEI is understandably focused on growth today.

SEI's competitive advantage is in its platform and services, which allow it to drive efficiencies and lower risk for its clients. That does not make it immune from economic downturns, however, as the Great Recession dinged revenue and earnings meaningfully. Given the industry SEI serves, it is reasonable to expect material weakness during a recession, so that is something investors should take into account. Indeed, we've accounted for that in our updated 2020 estimates.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Overall, SEI looks like an overvalued stock with lots of growth potential. We are forecasting 9.9% total annual returns going forward, comprised of the small current yield, a minor headwind from the valuation, and 10% earnings-per-share growth. SEI may become an income stock in the future, but it is still very much in its growth stage, so that is a long way off. After Q1 results, we're upgrading SEI to a buy rating. We still see it as having an attractive long-term growth runway, and with the valuation improving, we think it is a strong pick in a relatively weak market.
