HNI Corporation was founded in 1944 as an office furniture manufacturer. The company continues to be a leader in that space as it has expanded its portfolio of brands and added a full array of hearth products including fireplaces, inserts and stoves. HNI generates about $2 billion in annual revenues.

On 7/22/2020, HNI reported second quarter earnings results. The company earned $0.20 per share during the quarter $0.51 ahead of estimates, but a decline of 47% compared to the previous year. Revenue decreased nearly 21% to $417.5 million, but this was $38 million above expectations.

Organic sales declined 21.2% in the second quarter. Sales for Workplace Furnishings declined 24.8% to $308 million as lower volumes more than offset productivity gains, lower expenses and higher price realization. Residential Buildings Products sales were lower by 6.1% to $109.4 million. Lower volumes and unfavorable product mix were the primary reasons for the year-over-year sales decline. The purchase of building products distributors added $2.9 million to sales during the quarter. Gross profit margins declined 50 basis points to 36.1% while SG&A expenses increased 60 basis points to 32.6%. HNI is now expected to earn $1.35 per share in 2020, down from $2.17 previously.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2025

Because of HNI's extreme cyclical, earnings-per-share have been volatile over the past decade. Importantly, the trend has been up, but growth has been anything but linear. Revenue growth has averaged -1% in the past decade but if we exclude the Great Recession, that number moves to 4% annually.

We maintain our earnings-per-share growth estimate of to 5.5% per year through 2025. Our growth estimate is made up of low-single-digit revenue growth, flat to slightly higher margins, and share repurchases. Again, these results may not occur in a linear fashion, but if the company is able to see a reversal in slowing in the office furniture segment, HNI looks setup for further growth. Margins should also improve in 2020 as the closing of the small office furniture business is lapped, but the impact will be relatively small.

We see the dividend continuing to rise as well, given HNI's track record of returning excess cash to shareholders. HNI increased its dividend by 3.4% for the 6/3/2019 payment. The company did not raise its dividend as it normally does for the June payment this year, likely in response to the ongoing pandemic. We forecast dividends per share of $1.50 or so in five years.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	Now	2025
Avg. P/E	31.5	24.3	23.7	25.0	19.7	18.7	16.7	21.1	15.8	14.5	22.2	14.0
Avg. Yld.	3.1%	3.6%	3.6%	2.7%	2.5%	2.2%	2.5%	2.7%	3.0%	3.3%	4.1%	6.1%

HNI's price-to-earnings multiple has moved around a lot, which is something you'd expect for a cyclical stock. We are reaffirming our 2025 target price-to-earnings ratio of 14 due to lower EPS estimates for the year. The share price is higher by $8, or 36% since our 4/25/2020 report. Based on the current price and earnings estimates for 2020, HNI trades with a P/E ratio of 22.2. We are therefore forecasting an 8.8% headwind to annual total returns due to multiple reversion over time. Shares offer a current yield of 4.1%.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2025
Payout	111%	86%	84%	66%	49%	40%	41%	56%	49%	47%	90%	85%

HNI's quality metrics have been somewhat volatile during the past decade but again, its results are expected to be as such. Its balance sheet has looked very much the same in terms of leverage at around 60% debt financing and excluding 2009, its interest coverage has been more than sufficient. The payout ratio has also been relatively low, and we see it moving slightly lower over time as earnings growth outpaces dividend growth by a small margin; this also allows for increased safety of the dividend during the next downturn. The somewhat troubling trend stems from gross margins, which have been weakening since 2016. Efficiency efforts and the closing of the small office furniture business should help. However, it certainly bears watching in the coming quarters for any signs of weakness.

HNI's competitive advantage is its scale in the office furniture business, as well as its long operating history and track record with customers. HNI has some of the most recognizable brands in the sector but that doesn't save it from recessions; the next time a recession hits there will almost undoubtedly be a sizable downswing in HNI's earnings.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Following second quarter results, HNI Corporation is now expected to offer an annual return of 1.1% through 2025, down from our previous estimate of 16.2%. The COVID-19 pandemic continues to impact results and the company saw a severe decline in revenue and earnings-per-share in the quarter. HNI did manage to beat expectations on both the top and bottom-lines, but the company likely won't return to growth until a recovery from the pandemic can take place. We have lowered our 2025 price target $15 to $25 due to revised earnings estimates for the year and rate shares as a sell due to projected returns.
