Overview & Current Events

Honeywell International is a diversified industrial company. The company has four divisions: Aerospace, Honeywell Building Technologies, Performance Materials & Technologies and Safety & Productivity Solutions. Honeywell International has more than 130,000 employees around the world and more than 40% of sales come from international markets. The company generates $32 billion in annual revenues. Honeywell International completed its spin-off of its Transportation Systems unit, called Garret Motion, on 10/1/2018. The company then spun off its Homes & Global Distribution business, called Resideo Technologies, on 10/29/2018.

Honeywell International released earnings results for the second quarter on 7/24/2020. Revenue was lower by 19% to $7.5 billion, but this was $200 million above what was expected by the analyst community. Adjusted earnings-per-share fell $0.84, or 40%, To $1.26. This topped estimates by $0.02. Organic sales fell 18% while segment margins contracted 280 basis points.

Much of the year-over-year declines were attributed to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. Organic sales for Aerospace decreased 27% as strength in U.S. defense and space were more than offset by lower demand for commercial aftermarket services and reduced volumes in commercial end markets. Segment margins were down 510 basis points to 20.8%. The Safety & Productivity Solutions segment had 1% organic growth for the quarter and segment margins improved 150 basis points to 13.8%. SPS was the lone business to see growth for both metrics. Demand for the company's Intelligrated business remains strong as do sales for personal protective equipment. Portable gas sensing remains weak. Sales for Honeywell Building Technologies dropped 17%, but margins improved 50 basis points to 21.2%. Lower volumes in multiple businesses were the primary reasons for the decline in sales. Performance Materials & Technologies suffered a 17% decline in sales and a 460 basis point decline in margins. Specialty products were in high demand during the quarter, but gas processing and volume declines in other businesses more than offset this strength. Honeywell International did achieve $500 million of costs savings that were announced earlier in the year. The company also expects to deliver an additional round of costs savings that will ultimately lower expenses by $1.4 billion to $1.6 billion in 2020. The company declined to provide guidance for the year, but analysts expect that Honeywell International will earn $7.01 per share in 2020, down from the previous estimate of $7.33.

While Honeywell International did see earnings decline 24% during the last recession, the company has managed to grow earnings every year since 2010. While the short term will be challenging for the company, we expect earnings growth to accelerate following a recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic. Therefore, we are reaffirming our expected growth rate through 2025 to 9% from 7% due to a combination of organic growth, margin expansion and share repurchases.

Honeywell International has paused, but not cut, its dividend growth several times over the past two decades, most recently in 2010. The company increased its dividend 9.8% for the 12/6/2019. This is the tenth 10%+ increase since 2010. In order to be conservative, we forecast that dividend will grow in line with earnings going forward.

Valuation Analysis

| Year      | 2010 | 2011 | 2012 | 2013 | 2014 | 2015 | 2016 | 2017 | 2018 | 2019 | Now  | 2025 |

Honeywell International shares have increased $14, or 10.4%, since our 5/5/2020 report. Factoring in revised earnings-per-share estimates for 2020, shares have a forward multiple of 21.4. We reaffirm our target price-to-earnings multiple of 16 for the stock, slightly above the 10-year average multiple of 15.6. If shares reverted to our target multiple by 2025, total returns could be reduced 5.6% per year over this time frame.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

| Year   | 2010 | 2011 | 2012 | 2013 | 2014 | 2015 | 2016 | 2017 | 2018 | 2019 | 2020 | 2025 |
| Payout | 40%  | 36%  | 34%  | 34%  | 34%  | 36%  | 37%  | 39%  | 38%  | 41%  | 51%  | 51%  |

Industrial companies tend to perform very well when the economy is strong, but struggle in weak economic climates. As with most industrial companies, Honeywell International is seeing earnings decline in this recession. Honeywell International divested two lower margin businesses in the form of spin offs last October. This should allow the company to focus on its higher margin businesses, particularly in Aerospace, where military products and aftermarket services should see growth as well. With a strong economy, the company's other products, such as Intelligrated and industrial products like Solstice, should perform well. We see Honeywell's strong position in these markets as its competitive advantage.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

After reviewing second quarter results, Honeywell International is now expected to return 5.5% annually through 2025, down from our previous estimate of 8.4%. Q2 results were again impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic, but there were some areas of strength within the company's results. Certain segments, like Aerospace, likely need a recovery from the pandemic to return to growth. Once that recovery is allowed to take place, we believe that Honeywell International will be able to grow earnings at a faster than usual rate. We have lowered our 2025 price target $7 to $173 and maintain our hold rating on the stock.
