Overview & Current Events

Kimco Realty is a real estate investment trust that owns, develops, manages and operates shopping centers. Kimco, in particular, specializes in open-air shopping centers. The trust was founded in 1973, is headquartered in New Hyde Park, NY, and currently trades with a market capitalization of $5.1 billion.

Kimco Realty reported its first quarter earnings results on May 8th. FFO per share came in at $0.37, down from $0.38 in the year-ago period. Revenue also declined to $289.7 million from $295 million in the year-ago period. The near-term outlook is highly uncertain given that it received rent deferral requests representing 35% of its pro-rata minimum base rent for April and granted deferral for 14% of minimum base rent for that period. That said, the REIT had access to over $2.2 billion of immediate liquidity with almost $900 million of cash and $1.3 billion available under the company's unsecured revolving credit facility at the end of April.

Kimco also temporarily suspended its dividend before the Q2 payment. We expect Kimco will reinstate the payout as soon as is practical.

As REITs have high non-cash expenses, primarily due to depreciation, their net earnings are usually relatively low and are therefore not reflective of the underlying earnings power and ability to generate cash flows. It thus makes sense to look at funds from operations, or FFO. Kimco Realty's FFOPS is substantially lower than before the financial crisis, but the trust has performed relatively well over the last couple of years. Between 2010 and 2017, its FFO per share grew by 4.2% annually, although FFO-per-share has declined during the most recent years due to the company undergoing a portfolio repositioning and transformation.

Once the asset sales are completed and the current economic upheaval from the Coronavirus pandemic subsides, Kimco Realty should be able to grow its FFO through rent increases and rising operating income. The underlying operating performance of Kimco Realty is strong, which is reflected in positive same-property NOI growth and it owns high quality assets in strong markets. The trust is not facing any problems due to e-commerce hurting sales at its properties so far as many of its tenants are relatively immune to e-commerce.

Kimco Realty (KIM)

Updated June 30th, 2020 by Samuel Smith

Kimco Realty trades for 16.4 times this year's expected funds from operations, which represents a premium to our fair value estimate of 10 times funds from operations. During the majority of the last decade Kimco traded at a higher valuation, but going forward the valuation will likely not reach the mid-teens range again due to the decline in growth opportunities in bricks-and-mortar retail and the likely fallout from the coronavirus pandemic.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2025
Payout	57.9%	60.8%	61.9%	64.7%	65.7%	67.1%	68.0%	71.1%	76.2%	76.7%	68.5%	74.9%

Kimco was forced to temporarily suspend its dividend due to weak economic conditions earlier this year. We expect the payout to return as quickly as possible, but there is no dividend for now.

Some mall REITs are under a lot of pressure due to declining traffic at the malls they own, which leads to lower occupancy rates and to lower rents at the same time. Kimco Realty's focus on outdoor shopping-centers has shielded the trust from such developments so far. Traffic at its properties is solid, and its tenant base is strong as well. Top tenants include Home Depot, TJX, Walmart, as well as many grocers. During the last financial crisis Kimco Realty did not remain profitable (using FFO), but during less severe recessions the trust would likely not be impacted significantly.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Kimco Realty is a retail REIT, but its shopping-center focus provides some protection versus the rise of e-commerce companies, and the underlying performance of Kimco's assets has been very solid in the recent past. Once the asset sales have been completed and coronavirus-related disruptions to the economy pass, per-share FFO should begin to grow again. Kimco Realty earns a hold recommendation from Sure Dividend as shares offer 5.4% expected annualized total returns. That being said, the uncertainty is pretty high here as the REIT has temporarily suspended its dividend, so we do not recommend conservative dividend growth investors buy the stock.
