Overview & Current Events

LTC Properties is a REIT that invests in senior housing and skilled nursing properties. Its portfolio consists of approximately 50% senior housing and 50% skilled nursing properties. The REIT owns 180 investments in 27 states with 29 operating partners and has a market capitalization of $1.4 billion.

Just like other healthcare REITs, LTC benefits from a strong secular trend, namely the high growth of the population that is above 80 years old. This growth results from the aging of the baby boomers' generation and the steady rise of life expectancy thanks to sustained progress in medical sciences.

LTC is currently facing a strong headwind, the bankruptcy of Senior Care Centers, which is the largest skilled nursing operator in Texas. Senior Care filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy in December-2018. Until 2018, it was generating 9.7% of the annual revenues of LTC and was the fifth largest customer of LTC. The latter is currently trying to assign those properties to another Texas operator under similar terms.

In late July, LTC reported (7/30/20) financial results for the second quarter of fiscal 2020. Funds from operations (FFO) per unit plunged from $0.75 in last year's quarter to $0.31 due to a non-recurring write-off of $17.7 million of rent receivable. Excluding the one-time write-off, FFO per unit edged up from $0.75 to $0.76. The REIT is facing a headwind due to the recession caused by the pandemic and thus it has suspended its guidance. It will also take longer to assign the aforementioned properties of Senior Care due to the pandemic and thus the turnaround is on hold right now.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2025
FFO	$1.83	$2.01	$2.26	$2.29	$2.55	$2.77	$3.06	$3.10	$3.06	$3.08	$2.90	$3.36

Shares¹	24.6	29.2	30.3	33.1	36.6	37.3	38.6	39.6	39.9	39.8	39.1	45.0

Thanks to the aforementioned favorable underlying fundamentals of the healthcare sector, LTC has grown its funds from operations at a 5.0% average annual rate in the last decade. Moreover, the REIT has most of its assets in the states with the highest projected increases in the 80+ population cohort over the next decade. On the other hand, growth has stalled in the last four years, partly due to the bankruptcy of Senior Care. We also prefer to be somewhat cautious in our future estimates as a large number of leases, which generate 8.3% of total revenues, mature by the end of this year. The REIT will be affected by the pandemic this year, but we expect it to recover from next year, along with the economy. We continue to expect 3.0% growth in funds from operations per unit over the next five years.

LTC has traded at an average price-to-FFO ratio of 15.1 during the last decade. The stock has consistently traded around this valuation level in the last five years. Due to a -28% decline caused by the coronavirus in the last six months, LTC is now trading at an FFO multiple of 12.4. If it trades at its average valuation level five years from now, it will enjoy a 4.0% annualized gain in its returns.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2025
Payout	86.3%	83.6%	79.2%	83.4%	80.0%	74.7%	71.6%	73.5%	74.5%	74.0%	78.6%	71.3%

LTC implements a strict screening process before purchasing its assets while it tries to minimize its risk via geographical diversification and security deposits. While it benefits from sustained growth in the health care industry, it does not have a meaningful competitive advantage, as evidenced by its stagnation in the last three years. In addition, the default of a major customer of LTC proved that the REIT has tenant bankruptcy risk.

LTC is offering an attractive 6.3% dividend yield. Since 2008, it has raised its dividend at a 3.9% average annual rate. However, it has frozen its dividend in the last three years due to the absence of underlying growth. Consequently, it is prudent to expect lackluster dividend growth for the foreseeable future. On the other hand, the payout ratio is a healthy 79% and the balance sheet is decent, with a debt to adjusted EBITDA of 4.6x and an interest coverage ratio above 3.0. As a result, the dividend can be sustained if the pandemic begins to attenuate soon. The REIT has a smooth debt maturity schedule until next year but it may be somewhat pressured in 2022, when 20.5% of its debt ($142 million out of $694 million) matures, particularly if the prevailing business conditions are not favorable in that year. Moreover, investors should be aware that the dividend will be at the risk of being cut if the pandemic does not diminish soon.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

LTC is poised to fail to grow its funds from operations for a fourth year in a row in 2020. With that said, we expect the REIT to overcome the headwinds from the bankruptcy of its major customer and the pandemic and return to growth mode next year. As a result, the stock could offer an 11.7% average annual return over the next five years, mostly thanks to its 6.3% dividend. We thus maintain our buy rating.
