Overview & Current Events

Williams-Sonoma is a specialty retailer that operates home furnishing and houseware brands such as Williams-Sonoma, Pottery Barn, West Elm, Rejuvenation, Mark & Graham and others. Williams-Sonoma operates traditional brick-andmortar retail locations but also sells its goods through e-commerce and direct-mail catalogs. Williams-Sonoma was founded in 1956, is headquartered in San Francisco, and currently trades with a market capitalization of $$ 9$ billion.
On March $17^{\text {th }}$, 2020 Williams-Sonoma announced that the company temporarily closed all of its stores as a precautionary measure to combat the spread of the coronavirus. The stores have been reopened, but Williams-Sonoma continues to focus on e-commerce as its leading strategic focus.
On November 19 $9^{\text {th }}, 2020$ Williams-Sonoma reported Q3 fiscal year 2020 results for the period ending November $1^{\text {st }}$, 2020. (Williams-Sonoma's fiscal year ends the Sunday closest to January 31 ${ }^{\text {st }}$.) For the quarter revenue increased 22.4\% to $\$ 1.765$ billion, as the company's e-commerce segment grew $49.3 \%$. Comparable brand revenue growth equaled $24.1 \%, 21.8 \%, 30.4 \%$ and $23.8 \%$ across the Pottery Barn, West Elm, Williams Sonoma and Pottery Barn Kids and Teen segments respectively. Earnings-per-share equaled $\$ 2.54$ compared to $\$ 0.94$ in the year ago period.
While Williams-Sonoma is not providing 2020 guidance due to the uncertainty surrounding the coronavirus, the company does target mid-to-high single-digit revenue growth over the long-term.

Williams-Sonoma has a solid growth history. Since 2010, the company has grown earnings-per-share by an average compound rate of over 10\% per annum. However, this is skewed somewhat, as recent results have been aided significantly by a lower tax rate. Stripping away this benefit, the company has been able to improve in the mid-single digits. This mirrors the type of cautious growth expectation, $4 \%$ annually off a higher base, that we are anticipating. Unlike many other retailers, Williams-Sonoma has been able to increase its profits through the last couple of years, which is, among other factors, due to its consistent revenue growth. Thanks to its robust Omni-channel sales strategy, Williams-Sonoma has established a strong e-commerce business. As online sales continue to outpace company-wide revenue growth, Williams-Sonoma will become even more of an online retail company in the coming years.
This strategy is showing promise amid the coronavirus crisis, as the e-commerce portion of the business took up the slack for closed retail locations in Q1 and posted significant improvement in Q2. Further, results were exceptional in Q3. In the short-term the coronavirus poses a challenge, but early signs suggest Williams-Sonoma is better positioned to weather the storm and indeed is thriving in the current environment. We are encouraged by the Q2 and Q3 reports. We have once again significantly increased our earnings estimate for this year.

Williams-Sonoma has an interesting valuation history, with a typical multiple in the mid-teens coupled with occasional bouts of a 20+ earnings multiple. Taking into consideration the company's past performance, growth prospects, balance sheet and current situation, we believe a mid-teens multiple is a fair starting baseline for the security. With today's valuation near 16 times expected earnings, which have been boosted significantly, this implies a small headwind.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Williams-Sonoma's competitive advantage lies in its unique product portfolio and successful move to the online space. Still, the company competes against formidable foes including traditional brick-and-mortar home improvement retailers such as Home Depot and Lowe's, and e-commerce players such as Amazon. Results have been solid in the last decade, but we caution that the company's business model can be cyclical, as consumers tend to avoid discretionary items during economic downturns. During the last recession Williams-Sonoma posted earnings-per-share of $$ 1.76, $ 0.28$, $$ 0.72$ and $$ 1.83$ during the 2007 through 2010 stretch while the dividend was held steady and ultimately increased. Williams-Sonoma operates a relatively asset-light business model relative to other retailers, thanks to a high portion of online sales. As of the most recent report the company held $$ 773$ million in cash, $$ 2.1$ billion in current assets and $$ 4.3$ billion in total assets against $$ 1.5$ billion in current liabilities and $$ 2.9$ billion in total liabilities.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

After being up $185 \%$ and $9 \%$ in our last two reports, shares are up another $19 \%$ in the last three months, while earnings expectations continue to improve. Williams-Sonoma has transformed itself into an Omni-channel retailer with a large ecommerce presence, which is proving resilient during the current crisis. We are forecasting $4.0 \%$ annual total return potential, stemming from $4 \%$ growth and the $1.7 \%$ dividend yield offset by a small valuation headwind. Shares earn a hold rating.
