Overview & Current Events

McKesson Corporation traces its lineage to 1833 when its founders began to offer wholesale chemicals and pharmaceuticals in New York City. In the 188 years since, McKesson has grown into a powerhouse in the pharmaceutical and medical distribution industry and today, generates nearly $240 billion in annual revenue and trades with a $30 billion market capitalization.

McKesson reported third quarter earnings on February 2nd, 2021 with results coming in ahead of expectations on both the top and bottom lines. Total revenue was $62.6 billion in Q3, up 6% year-over-year. As with prior quarters, the gain was driven by the US Pharm segment, with market growth and higher specialty volumes being partially offset by the conversion of consumers from branded drugs to generic.

The international business saw revenue decline -6% on a reported basis and -10% on a forex-adjusted basis, driven by lower contributions from the company's joint venture in Germany with Walgreens. Med-Surg Solutions revenue was up 43% year-over-year to $3.1 billion, driven by demand for COVID-19 tests. The Prescriptions Technology Solutions business saw revenues rise 9% year-over-year to $777 million, driven by new brand support programs and higher volumes of existing programs.

The company took a pre-tax charge of $8.1 billion related to opioid litigation, but on an adjusted basis, earnings-per-share rose 21% year-over-year to $4.60. Following strong results in Q3, we have raised our estimate of earnings-per-share for this year to $17.20.

McKesson also authorized a further $2 billion in share repurchases, good for another ~6% of the float. We've lowered our share count forecasts for this year and 2026 accordingly.

McKesson's earnings-per-share history is quite robust, having grown nearly every year in the past decade. Indeed, McKesson has managed to average more than 10% earnings-per-share growth annually over this time frame through organic revenue growth and many acquisitions. We do not believe that sort of growth is likely for the longer term as McKesson has grown much larger. As a result, it seems to have neared a plateau on operating margins and revenue growth, but we do still see 5% annual earnings-per-share growth as sustainable moving forward.

McKesson can achieve this result largely via revenue gains, which we forecast will be in the area of 3% to 5% for the foreseeable future. It continues to acquire growth in bolt-on acquisitions with companies that supplement its current offerings, a strategy that is unlikely to change. Margins have been flat for some time, so we expect that will continue.

The buyback should continue to meaningfully reduce the float over time, which we see as a key driver of earnings-pershare growth. We remain somewhat cautious due to an increasingly hostile regulatory environment for drug wholesalers like McKesson. In addition, constant pressure on pricing from regulators, as well as strong generic conversion are headwinds. However, recent results have been quite supportive of long-term growth.

The dividend has never been a priority for McKesson and that is not likely to change anytime soon. We see the payout rising from today's $1.68 to $2.36 in five years, but the dividend remains just a small fraction of earnings.

Valuation Analysis

|-----------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|
| Avg. P/E | 13.6 | 13.8 | 14.9 | 16.8 | 17.9 | 20.1 | 14.1 | 12.0 | 9.7 | 9.3 | 10.8 | 12.0 |
| Avg. Yld. | 1.1% | 1.0% | 0.8% | 0.7% | 0.5% | 0.5% | 0.7% | 0.5% | 1.1% | 1.2% | 0.9% | 0.9% |

The stock's price-to-earnings ratio has ebbed and flowed in the past decade but today, at 10.8 times earnings, it appears to be undervalued relative to its historical norm. We see fair value as 12 times earnings and thus, McKesson offers a reasonable value to prospective shareholders in our view. This could provide a small tailwind to total returns over the next five years if the stock's valuation reverts to more normalized levels. The yield should remain about where it is for the foreseeable future.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

| Payout | 13% | 13% | 13% | 11% | 9% | 11% | 10% | 10% | 11% | 11% | 10% | 11% |

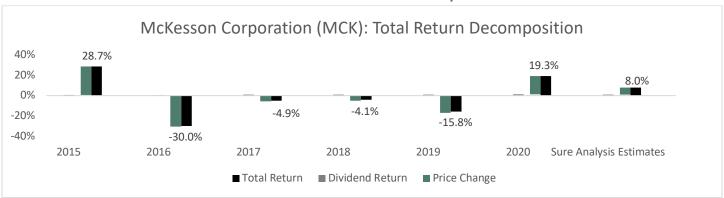

The payout ratio will remain very low barring a material strategic shift, which we are not forecasting. Instead, McKesson will almost certainly continue to boost earnings-per-share by reducing the float, as it did once again in fiscal 2020.

Its competitive advantage is in its willingness to adapt and shift to the changing needs of its customers, its willingness to buy growth and its immense scale, which affords purchasing power. McKesson held up well during 2020 given its product assortment that offers healthcare consumers things they need, and not discretionary items.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

McKesson continues to look somewhat attractive as it offers a decent growth outlook, a robust share repurchase program and a valuation that is still under our view of fair value. We are forecasting 8% annual total returns going forward, consisting of the current 0.9% yield, 5% earnings-per-share growth and a tailwind from a rising valuation. That would make McKesson attractive for investors seeking growth or value, but its low yield would make it unattractive for investors seeking high levels of income. We reiterate the stock at a hold rating.
