Overview & Current Events

Tapestry Inc. (TPR) was founded in 2017 as a transformation from Coach IP Holdings LLC (founded in 1941) and is a leading American multinational luxury fashion holding company. The Company is based in New York and is the parent company of three brands: Coach, Kate Spade, and Stuart Weitzman. The Company's renaming came after Coach acquired Stuart Weitzman and Kate Spade and expanded from making Coach-brand handbags to producing a wider variety of products through their three primary brands. These products include various leather goods, footwear, accessories, clothes, fragrances, and jewelry. Tapestry has a market capitalization of approximately $12.5 billion, over 20,000 employees, and $4.9 billion in annual revenue. Coach continues to make up 70% of company sales, Kate Spade represents about a quarter of sales, and Stuart Weitzman is a small but growing segment in the overall business. The Company sells products worldwide from its 1,500+ branded retail locations, brand websites, and through thousands of distributor retail locations.

Tapestry reported Fiscal Year (FY)2021 second-quarter results on February 04, 2021. Sales were down (7)% Year over Year (YoY) from $1.82 billion to $1.69 billion; however, it improved from last quarter. For the first six months of the fiscal year, sales are down (9.9)% vs. FY2020. On the other hand, operating income is up 42.7% for the first six months compared to the first six months of FY2020. Net income for the quarter was $311 million, with earnings per diluted share of $1.11. This is compared to the net income of $299 million with earnings per diluted share of $1.08 in the prior year. During the quarter, The Company saw an increase in growth in China by 30% year-over-year.

The Company is not providing an FY2021 outlook because of the dynamic nature of the COVID-19 pandemic. However, the consensus estimate that Tapestry will make $2.61 per share for the entire year of 2021. This is an improvement from the last quarter report of $2.34 per share for FY2021. Thus, we will use $2.61 per share as our fair value and an annual return calculation rate.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2026
EPS	$2.92	$3.53	$3.72	$3.10	$1.92	$1.98	$2.15	$2.63	$2.57	$0.97	$2.61	$3.83
DPS	$0.68	$0.98	$1.24	$1.35	$1.35	$1.35	$1.35	$1.35	$1.35	$1.02	---	---
Shares¹	255.5	285.1	281.9	274.4	276.6	278.5	281.9	288.0	286.8	278.0	279.0	279.0

Tapestry had experienced negative earnings growth of (11.5)% since 2011, when it earned $2.98 per share, but has had (13.3)% annual growth over the past five years. Revenue has continued to grow at a CAGR of 9.5% for the past five years, while operating margins have deteriorated, resulting in flat and choppy earnings in recent years. We expect earnings to grow 8.0% for the next five years. Still, the outcome is highly dependent on Tapestry's ability to maintain margins and sustain at least mild topline growth.

The Company looks to reinstate the dividend as TRP paid down $700 million of its revolver with free cash flow and paid the remaining $200 million after the quarter ended. This will leave Tapestry with zero net debt, which is a positive step towards reinstating the dividend.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	Now	2026
Avg. P/E	17.3	18.4	14.9	16.2	19.4	17.4	18.3	17.4	15.2	13.7	17.2	15.0
Avg. Yld.	1.3%	1.5%	2.2%	2.7%	3.6%	3.9%	3.4%	3.0%	3.5%	0.0%	---	---

Over the past decade, Tapestry has averaged a P/E ratio of 16.8. However, for most of that period, the Company consisted entirely of the Coach brand and enjoyed higher returns on invested capital. With slowing sales and declining margins in a competitive environment of online competition and slower global growth, we consider a P/E ratio of 15 to be fair until the Company can demonstrate a resumption of growth and stabilized margins. The Company has a headwind of (2.7)% valuation multiple towards the mean of a P/E ratio of 15. Thus, the stock looks to be overvalued.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	23.3%	27.8%	33.3%	43.5%	70.3%	68.2%	62.8%	51.3%	52.5%	105.2%	---	---

Tapestry's luxury brands, especially Coach, give the company at least a small economic moat. This is evidenced by its historically high returns on invested capital and considerable market outperformance since Coach went public in the early 2000s. However, the company's returns on invested capital have been declining in recent years, indicating a deterioration in brand strength or cyclical as online retail puts margin pressure on all physical retailers. Overall, their investment returns and profitability remain above average but diminishing. The ongoing trade dispute between the United States and China puts further pressure on Tapestry, as a small portion of its products is made in China, but a significant amount of its sales are earned from China. Tapestry currently has a BBB- credit rating, which puts them on the low side of investment grade. The company's balance has gotten better, with a Debt/Equity ratio of 1.2 compared to the last reported 1.7. Still, the inconsistency of their earnings and the company's economic vulnerability appears to be driving lower overall credit quality from the rating agencies. The security does not necessarily offer growth or stability that many retirees rely on. The company did remain highly profitable during the previous two recessions as the primary Coach brand, but the expanded Tapestry company is untested by a downturn in its current form.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Tapestry has decent brands but faces stiff competition, global tariff uncertainty, a lingering coronavirus outbreak, and diminishing profitability. The good news is that Tapestry is the manufacturer of its products, rather than just a middleman, and has various online platforms from which to grow. We expect moderate forward returns of 5.1% per annum from Tapestry as a baseline case, but the actual result is expected to be highly variable. Overall, business uncertainty remains high. We consider Tapestry to be a Sell after its recent run-up given the low expected future returns at the current price.
