Overview & Current Events

Colgate-Palmolive has been in existence for more than 200 years, having been founded in 1806. It operates in many consumer staples markets, including Oral Care, Personal Care, Home Care, and more recently, Pet Nutrition. These segments afford the company more than $17 billion in annual revenue. The stock's market capitalization sits at $70 billion after very little movement since our last update.

Colgate-Palmolive reported first quarter earnings on April 30th, 2021, with results coming in ahead of expectations on both the top and bottom lines, although expectations were somewhat muted as the company lapped the early stages of the pandemic. The company saw total revenue grow 6% to $4.3 billion in Q1, which was driven nearly entirely by another strong organic sales gain of 5%, which was well ahead of expectations of +2.8%. North America posted an organic sales decline of -1.5% and Europe was -2.0%, but Latin America was +9.5%, Asia Pacific was +11.0%, Africa/Eurasia was +13%, and Pet Nutrition was +7.0%.

Adjusted gross margin was up 40bps to 60.7%, essentially matching expectations. Adjusted operating margin was 23.1% of sales. Earnings-per-share were 80 cents, up from 75 cents in the year-ago period, a 7% gain.

Guidance for the year was reiterated, and our estimate is for $3.30 in earnings-per-share, a very slight improvement over our prior estimate of $3.25. Colgate-Palmolive also boosted its dividend for the 58th consecutive year, this time adding a penny per share per quarter to a new payout of $1.80 annually.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

We expect moderate growth for Colgate-Palmolive at 5% annually. Organic revenue growth continues, but forex translation has sabotaged the top line in some cases despite the company's best efforts. The cost savings program also is not producing enough margin expansion and while the buyback is helping, it is not enough on its own to offset significant weakness in the company's legacy businesses. Finally, commodity volatility is not helping either, and we see an uphill battle for Colgate-Palmolive to return to a significant level of growth. Margin weakness seems to have reversed course in earnest after Q1 results, so that is a positive. We think Colgate-Palmolive will continue to reap the benefits of pantry stocking, but that isn't necessarily translating into sustainable profit gains. We also note that behavior will almost certainly abate at some point in the relatively near future. To be fair, Colgate-Palmolive hasn't shown any signs of weakness just yet, but the pandemic is being lapped as of Q2 2021.

The dividend should rise at about the rate of earnings growth, perhaps hitting $2.30 per share in 2025. Colgate-Palmolive's dividend increase streak should remain intact for years to come as its payout is still a reasonable percentage of earnings.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	Now	2026
Avg. P/E	17.3	19.6	25.1	28.0	44.1	25.8	27.9	24.2	25.1	24.6	24.8	23.0
Avg. Yld.	2.7%	2.4%	2.2%	2.2%	2.2%	2.2%	2.2%	2.5%	2.5%	2.3%	2.2%	2.4%

As growth has been very tough to come by, we don't believe investors will be willing to pay the same premium for this stock that they have in the past. At 24.8 times earnings today, we see the stock as modestly overvalued, leading to a small headwind to total annual returns should it revert to our estimate of fair value at 23 times earnings. The stock is yielding 2.2%, in line with historical yields. We see the combination of the rising payout and lagging share price as boosting the yield to 2.4% in the coming years and believe there could be an opportunity for a better price and yield, even with earnings estimates rising.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	49%	52%	62%	66%	108%	62%	67%	60%	62%	57%	55%	55%

The payout ratio is 55% of earnings, somewhat lower than recent years. We see the dividend as safe, and we believe Colgate-Palmolive will produce many more years of dividend increases. This is a recession-resistant stock given the staple nature of the products it sells, and its competitive advantage is found in the dominant brands it owns. While Colgate-Palmolive operates in highly competitive product categories, it has strong share in many of them as well as the ability to maintain pricing power. We also note that even though the stock is defensive in nature, its valuation was in the mid-teens during the last recession, so that is a potential risk in future recessions.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

With the stock having traded mostly flat since our last update, Colgate-Palmolive looks about the same as it did at the time of our last update. The company seems to have turned the corner on revenue growth and margins, but how sustainable that will be remains to be seen. We forecast 5.5% total returns in the coming years as 5% earnings growth and the yield could be slightly offset by a headwind from the valuation. We are reiterating the stock at a hold rating.
