Overview & Current Events

Gentex supplies digital vision, connected car, dimmable glass, and fire protection technologies. They manufacture automatic-dimming automotive rearview mirrors and other electronics for the automotive industry. The corporation also makes dimmable aircraft windows for the aviation industry. The company was founded in 1974 and is headquartered in Zeeland, Michigan. The auto parts manufacturer has a market capitalization of $8.4 billion and trades on the NASDAQ under the ticker symbol GNTX. GNTX generated $1.7 billion of sales in 2020.

Gentex reported first quarter results on April 23rd. Q1 net sales of $438.7 million improved 7% year-over-year. First quarter revenue was negatively impacted by an estimated $45 million in missed revenue due to a parts shortage related to light vehicle production. The gross margin grew from 34.5% in Q1 2020 to 37.9% this quarter, driven by structural cost savings and tailwinds related to mirror unit shipment growth.

Net income of $113.5 million was up 27% from $89.5 million in Q1 2020. Earnings per diluted share were up similarly at 28% to $0.46 compared to $0.36 in the same prior year period. Dimmable aircraft window sales fell 70% year-over-year and the company expects this will continue until there is a recovery in the aerospace industry. The aircraft parts segment of the company is small in comparison to its auto parts division, so it does not meaningfully impact the consolidated results.

In the quarter, the company repurchased 2.8 million shares of their stock for roughly $99.2 million. Leadership has provided 2021 guidance, and estimates revenue of $1.94 - $2.02 billion for the year. They anticipate gross margins to grow to 39% to 40%, and to pay a tax rate of around 17%. Capex should come in around $90 million and depreciation & amortization around $108 million. The company even expects fiscal 2022 revenue to be 8% to 13% higher than estimated revenue for 2021 due to the ongoing increased consumer demand for light vehicles worldwide.

Gentex's earnings per share have moved up strongly in the past nine years at an annual average pace of 10.8%. In the last five years as the earnings are higher the growth has slowed down to 6% on average per year. There are a series of solid tailwinds which should see earnings grow at an estimated 7.5% in the near term.

We base our earnings growth estimate on an increased demand for light vehicle production in the next couple coming years, structural cost savings which can yield margin improvements, and new technology product developments. The company has also been successfully reducing its share count (down 3.6% in the last five year average), which can also result in increased EPS.

The dividend has grown by 8% over the last nine years, and we expect this will slow to 7% in the near term. We believe the company's earnings will support this dividend growth, and the payout ratio will remain stable.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	Now	2026
Avg. P/E	25.2	17.9	15.5	15.7	15.5	13.8	15.3	13.9	14.7	19.2	16.9	16.5
Avg. Yld.	1.7%	2.4%	2.3%	2.0%	2.0%	2.2%	2.0%	1.9%	1.9%	1.7%	1.4%	1.4%

Gentex's price-to-earnings multiple is slightly overvalued today at 16.9 based on 2021 forecasted earnings, and we believe the valuation will drop to meet our estimated valuation of 16.5 times earnings. We therefore see a headwind of 0.5% to total annual returns from a contracting valuation over time. We see the yield as remaining roughly where it is today as the dividend keeps pace with stock price appreciation.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	42%	43%	36%	32%	31%	30%	30%	27%	27%	33%	23%	23%

The payout ratio remains exceptionally low so the dividend is safe and should continue to grow in the years to come at roughly the rate of earnings. However, Gentex is also investing for growth and repurchasing shares, so we see the yield as remaining around 1.5% to 2.0% for the foreseeable future. Earnings per share fell significantly during the great financial crisis. At the lowest point, EPS were cut in half, and the payout ratio ballooned to 100% in 2008. The company maintained the dividend at $0.22 for three years following this but did not cut. The payout ratio fell to around 30% once the crisis subsided, and earnings surpassed their prior peak by 2010. The company believes that their patents (they own 38 U.S. Registered Trademarks and 719 U.S. Patents) and trade secrets provide them their competitive advantage in automotive rearview mirrors, variable dimmable devices, certain electronics, and fire protection products. However, the lack of intellectual property protection in certain countries, including China, represents an ongoing risk for the company.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We see Gentex as having a solid growth story, however today the stock price is about fully valued. Regardless, we estimate total annual returns of 8.2% for the next five years consisting of the current 1.4% dividend yield, 7.5% earnings growth and a -0.5% impact from the valuation. We find the stock attractive but at current prices we rate it a hold.
