Overview & Current Events

UMB Financial Corporation is a financial services holding company headquartered in Kansas City, Missouri. Through several operating subsidiaries, UMB offers complete banking, asset management, health spending solutions, and related financial services to commercial, institutional, and personal customers nationwide. The company's most prominent operating subsidiary is UMB Bank, N.A. UMB has increased its dividend for an impressive 29 consecutive years. It trades with a $4.7 billion market capitalization and produces about $1.2 billion in annual revenue.

UMB reported first quarter earnings on April 27th, 2021, with results coming in better than expectations for profits, but lower than expected on revenue. Net interest income was $194 million during the quarter, essentially equal to the linked quarter. The company saw balance sheet growth in Q1, but that was offset by the impact of lower loan fees, as well as lower Paycheck Protection Program fees during the quarter. Average earning assets rose 9% to $2.6 billion, while interest-bearing liabilities rose $1.6 billion, or about 9% as well.

Net interest margin was 2.59% during Q1, down 19bps from the linked quarter. Earning asset yields fell 21bps while interest-bearing liabilities' costs declined just three basis points. Thus, net interest spread fell 18bps to 2.50%, and was down from Q1 of 2020 as well.

Average deposits were up 7.5% to the previous quarter and up 29% year-over-year, similar to other banks in our coverage universe. Non-interest-bearing demand deposits were up 50% year-over-year, which is a key, very low-cost source of funds for UMB. Noninterest income was down $119 million, or 52% to the previous quarter because Q4 saw a massive investment securities gain that did not repeat. Otherwise, noninterest income was essentially flat.

We've boosted our estimate for this year to $7.00 in earnings-per-share following Q1 results but note that higher results this year will almost certainly be transitory, and that some level of earnings declines are expected in the years to come.

UMB's adjusted earnings-per-share have compounded at about 8% per year in the past decade. However, short-term headwinds exist in the form of the flattened yield curve, which is crimping lending margins. In addition, 2020's earnings had a huge boost from the bank's investment in TTCF. We see now see -3% annual growth from 2021 earnings, which is primarily because of yield curve and lending spread concerns. In addition, the bank is seeing loan loss reserves reverse from the COVID crisis, which is transitory. We think continued asset base expansion is the key as UMB is working away from fee generation and more towards traditional lending, and a modest boost in fee income. If rates remain unfavorable, it should see some downward pressure on earnings expansion. However, the bank has thus far been able to overcome an unfavorable yield curve by swiftly expanding the amount of lending it is doing, as it showed in 2019 and 2020. We think this growth will be difficult to replicate as the current economic cycle matures, so we have become more cautious on the bank's projected growth, and in particular, from its currently very high base of earnings.

The dividend could continue to grow at 3% annually in the coming years, rising from $1.28 this year to $1.48 or so in 2026. UMB does not appear to have any interest in boosting the payout ratio and chooses instead to build its capital buffer or increase its lending capacity. UMB raised its payout by 3.2% at the end of October 2020.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	Now	2026
Avg. P/E	14.1	15.0	17.0	22.3	21.4	17.7	20.2	18.5	13.3	9.2	13.9	13.0
Avg. Yld.	2.0%	1.8%	1.6%	1.5%	1.8%	1.7%	1.4%	1.6%	1.8%	2.2%	1.3%	1.9%

UMB now trades at 13.9 times earnings estimates for this year, against our estimate of fair value at 13. We see the stock as overvalued as a result. We expect the dividend yield to remain under 2% for the foreseeable future.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	29%	27%	27%	34%	39%	31%	28%	30%	24%	20%	18%	25%

UMB's payout ratio is just one-fifth of earnings, and the bank boasts a 29-year dividend increase streak following its last payout increase. Given these factors, we see the dividend as safe with lots of room to grow in the future. As mentioned, we don't see a lot of upside to the payout ratio, so the dividend should grow modestly, keeping the payout ratio under 30% for the foreseeable future.

UMB Financial Corporation's largest competitive advantage is its entrenched position in the financial services sector. Because of industry regulations, it is very difficult for a new competitor to enter the market and take market share from established lenders like UMB. The company's small size is also a potential advantage, as it allows the company to explore smaller, less-competitive growth opportunities that the big banks would not be interested in pursuing. Of course, recessions aren't kind to banks of any size, but we note UMB weathered 2020 quite well.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

With the stock already well in excess of our 2026 price target, we see projected annual returns at -2.6% moving forward. As such, we continue to rate UMB a sell following the massive rally in the stock in recent months.
