Overview & Current Events

OGE Energy (OGE) was founded in 1995, in Oklahoma. It is the parent company of Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company (OG&E), a regulated electric utility that serves more than 860,000 customers in Oklahoma and western Arkansas. OGE Energy also owns $25.5 \%$ of Enable Midstream Partners (ENBL), a Master Limited Partnership (MLP) that owns and operates pipeline networks and storage tanks of natural gas and crude oil. OGE Energy has a market cap of $$ 6.8$ billion and generates $80 \%-85 \%$ of its annual utility earnings in the second and third quarter.
On February $16^{\text {th }}, 2021$ Enable Midstream Partners agreed to be acquired by Energy Transfer (ET) in an all-stock deal, which is expected to close this year. When the deal materializes, OGE Energy will own approximately $3.0 \%$ of Energy Transfer. The latter is an MLP which owns and operates one of the largest midstream portfolios in the U.S., with immense pipeline networks and storage tanks of natural gas, crude oil and natural gas liquids.
In early May, OGE Energy reported (5/6/21) financial results for the first quarter of fiscal 2021. Adjusted earnings-pershare decreased from $$ 0.49$ to $$ 0.26$, primarily due to the impact of winter storm Uri and lower distributions from Enable Midstream Partners. Management reiterated its guidance for the full year, expecting earnings-per-share of $$ 1.76-$ 1.86$ from the utility business plus $$ 0.30-$ 0.37$ from the midstream investments for a total of $$ 2.06-$ 2.23$. However, due to the impact of winter storm Uri, OGE Energy now expects its earnings-per-share to be in the lower half of the range of its guidance.

As shown in the above table, OGE Energy has exhibited a lackluster performance record. The company has grown its earnings-per-share at a modest $2.1 \%$ average annual rate over the last decade. The record earnings in 2017 resulted from a non-recurring tax benefit and hence this is not representative of the current profit capability of OGE Energy.
With that said, the outlook of the company seems brighter than the last decade. OGE Energy has invested $$ 3.3$ billion in growth projects in the last five years. In addition, the strong economy in Oklahoma and Arkansas are likely to drive material organic growth for OGE Energy in the upcoming years. Thanks to the recent completion of some growth projects and the focus of management in growing the utility business of OGE Energy, the company could grow its earnings-per-share at a $5.0 \%$ average annual rate over the next five years. This is in line with the guidance of management for the upcoming years. Management also recently reiterated its commitment to keep growing the dividend significantly while maintaining a healthy balance sheet and a flat share count.

Investors should be especially careful with the valuation of slow-growth stocks, such as utilities. If they overpay for such stocks, they may need years to breakeven. Fortunately, this does not appear to be the case for OGE Energy right now. OGE Energy is currently trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of 15.7 , which is lower than its 10 -year average of 16.9 . We expect the stock to trade close to its average valuation level in five years. If this occurs, the stock will enjoy a $1.5 \%$ annualized expansion of its price-to-earnings ratio.

OGE Energy does its best to maintain its electricity rates as low as possible. Its rates are currently more than - $30 \%$ below the national average and thus they result in high customer satisfaction rates, which enable the company to grow its customer base. This is a major competitive advantage. The other competitive advantage of OGE Energy is the immense investment required from potential new entrants to build the infrastructure of the regulated business. This poses high barriers to entry and thus protects OGE Energy from potential new competitors.
On the other hand, OGE Energy is less resilient to downturns than most utilities due to its investment in the natural gas midstream business. Unlike most utility stocks, which have retrieved most of their COVID-driven losses, OGE Energy is still trading $-26 \%$ below its pre-COVID level. However, OGE Energy has stated that it will divest its midstream business at an opportune moment in order to become a pure utility. Moreover, it is now offering a nearly 10-year high dividend yield of $4.9 \%$. Thanks to its healthy payout ratio of $76 \%$ and its strong balance sheet, which has a BBB+ credit rating, OGE Energy can continue raising its dividend in the upcoming years. The stock is thus suitable for income-oriented investors.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

OGE Energy passes under the radar of most investors due to its lackluster performance record. However, we expect the company to improve its performance in the upcoming years while its valuation is attractive, particularly given the rich valuation of the broad market. We also view the future divestment of its midstream business as a potential catalyst for the stock price. Overall, OGE Energy could offer a 10.6\% average annual return over the next five years thanks to its $4.9 \%$ dividend, $5.0 \%$ earnings growth and a $1.5 \%$ annualized expansion of its valuation level. It maintains its buy rating.
