Overview & Current Events

Pembina Pipeline Corporation is based in Calgary, Canada. It has been serving the energy industry of North America with its transportation and midstream services for 65 years. It owns an integrated system of pipelines that transport various hydrocarbon liquids and natural gas products produced primarily in western Canada. The company also has gathering and processing facilities. Pembina has a market cap of $17.4 billion and operates in three segments: Pipelines, Facilities, and Marketing & New Ventures. In 2020, these segments generated 57%, 30% and 13% of the company's total gross profit, respectively. All the figures in this report are in US dollars.

In early May, Pembina reported (5/6/21) financial results for the first quarter of fiscal 2021. Pembina failed to benefit from the improved prices of crude oil and NGLs. Due to its hedges at low prices, the positive effect from increased volumes and higher prices was offset by the losses in hedging derivatives. As a result, its EBITDA and its earnings-per-share remained flat vs. last year's quarter.

Pembina is facing a headwind from the pandemic, which has caused a downturn in the energy market. This downturn has caught Pembina off guard, with a material debt load. As a result, Pembina cut its capital expenses by -37% last year and deferred some growth projects. On the bright side, the energy market has begun to recover from the pandemic.

On June 1st, 2021, Pembina agreed to acquire Inter Pipeline for C$8.3 billion, in an all-stock deal. The two companies have highly connected and complementary assets and hence they expect to achieve synergies of C$150-C$200 million per year. The combination will create one of the largest Canadian energy infrastructure companies.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2026

DPS	$1.58	$1.60	$1.60	$1.50	$1.35	$1.38	$1.57	$1.73	$1.78	$1.87	$1.98	$2.00
Shares¹	168	259	308	328	348	389	432	509	518	550	550	700

During the last decade, although Pembina has more than tripled its share count, it has grown its earnings-per-share at a 5.9% average annual rate. This growth has not been uniform, as the company failed to grow its earnings-per-share from 2010 to 2016. Nevertheless, the company has a long backlog of additional growth projects. Thanks to these projects, management previously stated that it expected to grow adjusted cash flow per share by 8%-10% per year and raise the dividend by about 5% per year beyond this year. Due to the volatile record of Pembina, we prefer to be somewhat conservative and thus we expect the company to grow its earnings-per-share by 4% per year beyond this year.

Pembina Pipeline Corp. (PBA)

Updated June 4th, 2021 by Aristofanis Papadatos

Pembina has traded at remarkably high price-to-earnings ratios through much of the last decade. In addition, due to its huge capital expenses on growth projects, the company has posted negative free cash flows in most years so we cannot use cash flows to evaluate the stock. The stock is now trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of 16.0, which is higher than our assumed fair earnings multiple of 12.0. We have assumed such a low fair earnings multiple due to the appreciable debt load of the company. If the stock trades at our fair value estimate in five years, it will incur a -5.6% annualized drag in its returns.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	158%	184%	147%	162%	176%	188%	110%	98.2%	89.1%	111%	99.0%	82.4%

The competitive advantage of Pembina lies in its large scale and its integrated assets in some of the most prolific resource plays in North America. Pembina has steadily increased the fee-based portion of its EBITDA, from 77% in 2015 to 90%-95% this year. It has pursued this strategy in order to secure a reliable and growing dividend, which is the top priority of management. Pembina has raised its dividend (in CAD) for 8 consecutive years and pays dividends on a monthly basis, which is enticing for income-oriented investors. In addition, it has a stronger balance sheet than most midstream companies, with its credit rating standing at a BBB level. However, the company has been caught in the ongoing downturn with a significant debt load, with its current liabilities of $1.2 billion (due in the next 12 months) exceeding its current assets of $0.8 billion. If the pandemic lasts longer than expected, investors should be aware that the dividend may come under pressure due to the elevated payout ratio and the significant debt load of the company.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Pembina is likely to recover from the pandemic in the second half of the year, but the market has already priced part of the recovery in the stock. As a result, we expect the stock to offer a 4.1% average annual return over the next five years. We thus rate the stock as a hold.
