Overview & Current Events

Genuine Parts Company was founded in 1928 and since that time, it has grown into a sprawling conglomerate that sells automotive and industrial parts, electrical materials and general business products. Its global span reaches throughout North America, Australia, New Zealand and Europe and is comprised of more than 3,000 locations. It has about 50,000 employees and trades with a market capitalization of $18 billion, with about $18 billion in annual revenue.

Genuine Parts posted second quarter results on July 22nd, 2021, and results were better than expected on both the top and bottom lines. Sales were $4.8 billion, up 25% year-over-year. The gain was due to a 20% increase in comparable sales, a 1.5% gain from acquisitions, and a 4% gain from favorable currency translation.

The company said its sales growth was due to a continually strengthening global economy and positive sales environment in both Automotive and Industrial. Automotive posted double-digit gains in all regions, and Industrial sales saw the fourth consecutive quarter of gains. Genuine Parts posted its 15th consecutive quarter of gross margin expansion, resulting from stronger sales and ongoing expense initiatives.

Net income was $253 million on an adjusted basis, an increase of 33% from the $191 million from a year ago. On a per-share basis, adjusted net income was $1.74 against $1.32 a year ago.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Earnings-per-share growth has seen stops and starts but over the long-term, Genuine Parts delivers. The company's businesses are all what could be considered staples as it serves businesses and consumers in areas where there is likely to be demand for the long run. The company's acquisitions have led the way in terms of growth and will continue to do so moving forward. We are forecasting 6% annualized earnings-per-share growth for the next five years in a continuation of this trend, in addition to positive organic sales in the Automotive segment. The company's nearly constant acquisitions should help keep the top line moving, but we note that margins have been less than stellar of late, which we believe will keep a lid on future growth. In addition, the company's Industrial segment continues to struggle with COVID-related issues, but those seem to be abating somewhat. We note gains improving sales and margins are helping earnings to rebound in 2021.

Genuine Parts' pipeline of new acquisitions should keep the trend of higher revenue in place for the foreseeable future, with sales growth being the primary driver of earnings-per-share growth moving forward, in concert with a small amount of share repurchases. We are concerned by the company's inability to grow margins while revenue is moving in the right direction, but thus far, it has been able to overcome this with share repurchases and revenue growth. Gross margins continue to gradually improve in 2021.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	Now	2026
Avg. P/E	15.1	15.2	18.6	19.3	19.5	20.8	19.2	17.0	17.8	17.1	20.5	17.0
Avg. Yld.	3.3%	3.2%	2.7%	2.6%	2.7%	2.8%	3.0%	3.0%	3.0%	3.5%	2.5%	2.8%

Genuine Parts' price-to-earnings ratio rose steadily in the period from 2009 to 2017, moving from 13.8 to 19.2 in that time frame. The stock now trades for 20.5 times our earnings estimate for this year. With the price-to-earnings ratio still above our long-term fair value estimate at 17, we see an annual headwind to total returns from the valuation.

Genuine Parts is famous for its dividend, as its 60+ consecutive years of increases makes it a Dividend King. The current yield of 2.5% is low by historical norms, and we expect the yield to remain under 3% for the foreseeable future.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	49%	46%	50%	49%	52%	56%	57%	51%	54%	60%	52%	47%

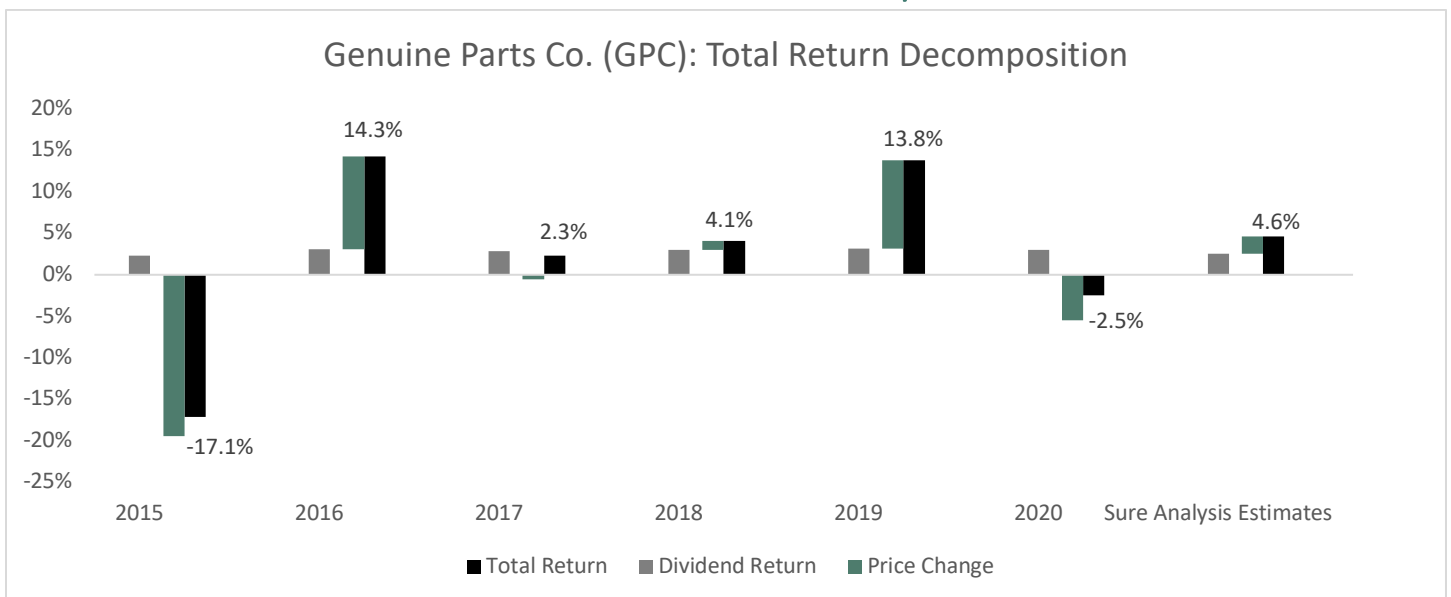

Genuine Parts' payout ratio has been quite steady between 50% and 60% of earnings for many years, and we do not expect that to change anytime soon. We see the dividend rising slightly slower than earnings, keeping the payout ratio at around half of earnings in the years to come, consistent with the past decade.

Genuine Parts' competitive advantages include its wide array of industries and customers served, geographic reach and the fact that it sells what amount to industrial staples. Genuine Parts is still prone to earnings declines during recessions but performs relatively well; this is a defensive stock for a retailer/wholesaler.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Overall, Genuine Parts Company looks significantly overvalued based upon both its current valuation and dividend yield. Given this, we are expecting total annual returns of 4.6% for the next five years. Returns could accrue from the current 2.5% yield and 6% earnings growth offset by a headwind from the valuation. Given this total return outlook, shares earn a hold rating.
