Overview & Current Events

WestRock was formed in July 2015 by the merger of Rock-Tenn and Mead-Westvaco. It is a leading provider of differentiated paper and packaging solutions, with a market capitalization of $13.5 billion. In its fiscal 2020, which ended on 9/30/2020, the corrugated packaging segment and the consumer packaging segment generated 64% and 36% of its total revenues and 76% and 24% of its pre-tax income, respectively.

WestRock completed the acquisition of KapStone Paper in November, 2018. The deal increased the leverage (Net Debt/EBITDA) of WestRock to 2.9 but the company has been reducing its debt at a fast clip since then. The acquisition of KapStone has enhanced the product offerings and the geographical presence of the company.

In early August, WestRock reported (8/5/21) financial results for the third quarter of fiscal 2021. The company enjoyed strong demand in all its markets and its price hikes more than offset inflation. Box shipments per day in North America grew 9% over last year's quarter, to a record third-quarter level. As a result, total sales grew 14%, to a record level, and adjusted earnings-per-share grew 32%, from $0.76 to $1.00. WestRock has missed analysts' consensus in only 3 of the last 25 quarters. Thanks to strong momentum in North American box shipments and the recent price hikes, the company raised its quarterly dividend 20% this year, from $0.20 to $0.24.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2026
EPS	---	---	---	---	$3.89	$2.53	$2.62	$4.08	$3.98	$2.74	$3.45	$4.62
DPS	---	---	---	---	$0.38	$1.50	$1.60	$1.72	$1.82	$1.07	$0.92	$1.35
Shares²	---	---	---	---	257.0	251.0	254.5	259.2	259.0	260.0	270.0	260.0

WestRock has a short and somewhat volatile historical record. Since its foundation in its current form, the company grew its earnings-per-share at a 0.6% average annual rate until 2019 and incurred a decline in its earnings in fiscal 2020 due to the pandemic. Moreover, even before the pandemic, there were increasing concerns over high inventories in the containerboard market and a surge in the global supply of containerboard products in upcoming years. This factor, which is out of WestRock's control, may adversely affect its margins. However, the pandemic has begun to subside and the company has begun to recover strongly. In addition, WestRock is likely to benefit from the growing North American corrugated market in the long run. Overall, we expect the company to grow its earnings-per-share by about 6% per year on average over the next five years.

Updated August 27th, 2021 by Aristofanis Papadatos

WestRock is trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of 14.5, which is slightly lower than its 4-year average of 14.9. Due to its short historical record, its increased amount of debt from the KapStone acquisition, and its cyclical business, the stock warrants a reduced valuation. We assume a fair price-to-earnings ratio of 11.0 for the stock. If the stock reaches our fair valuation level over the next five years, it will incur a -5.4% annualized drag in its returns.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	---	---	---	---	9.8%	59.3%	61.1%	42.2%	45.7%	39.1%	26.7%	29.3%

WestRock cannot control the total supply of paper products. As a result, it is vulnerable to the total production volume of its competitors. The business of WestRock is highly cyclical and hence investors should be especially careful before initiating a position in the stock. If they invest near the peak of the cycle, when business prospects usually look bright and the earnings multiple of the stock usually seems too low, they run the risk of incurring excessive losses.

Moreover, due to the high debt load that has resulted from the acquisition of KapStone, WestRock will be vulnerable if the pandemic takes a turn for the worse. Its interest expense consumes 32% of operating income while its net debt of $14.7 billion is about 16 times its annual earnings and hence it is excessive. The weak balance sheet of the company helps explain the -57% dividend cut last year amid the pandemic.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

WestRock is recovering strongly from the pandemic this year. However, the stock has doubled off its bottom last year thanks to its positive business momentum. Due to its rich valuation, the stock may offer just a 2.5% average annual return over the next five years. We thus rate it as a hold. The stock may maintain its strong momentum in the short run, but investors should be aware of the high cyclicity of this business and the risk of investing in richly valued stocks.
