HNI Corporation was founded in 1944 as an office furniture manufacturer. The company continues to be a leader in that space as it has expanded its portfolio of brands and added a full array of hearth products including fireplaces, inserts and stoves. HNI generates about $2.2 billion in annual revenues.

HNI released earnings results for the third quarter on 10/25/2021. Revenue grew nearly 16% to $586.8 million, but missed estimates by $5.4 million. Adjusted earnings-per-share of $0.43 compared very unfavorably to adjusted earnings-per-share of $0.71 in the prior year and was $0.02 below analysts' estimates.

Organic growth was up 13.8% companywide. The Workplace Furnishings segment improved 11.3% to $393.1 million as higher volumes, better productivity and acquisitions were offset by higher input prices. Residential Building Products revenue had another excellent quarter, with revenues higher by 26% to $193.6 million. Higher volumes and lower compensation were only partially offset by higher input costs, lower productivity and higher freight and investments costs. HNI is expected to earn $1.66 per share in 2021, down from $2.26 previously.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Because of HNI's extreme cyclicity, earnings-per-share have been volatile over the past decade. Importantly, the trend has been up, but growth has been anything but linear. The company has struggled at times with revenue growth due to its cyclicity, which hurts its growth potential.

We maintain our earnings-per-share growth estimate of to 5.5% per year through 2026, which nearly matches the company's growth rate for the last decade. Our growth estimate is made up of low-single-digit revenue growth, flat to slightly higher margins, and share repurchases. Again, these results may not occur in a linear fashion, but if the company is able to see a reversal in slowing in the office furniture segment, HNI looks setup for further growth. Margins should also improve in 2021 as weak results from the COVID-19 pandemic are lapped.

We see the dividend continuing to rise as well, given HNI's track record of returning excess cash to shareholders. HNI increased its dividend by 1.6% for the 6/1/2021 payment. The company did not raise its dividend as it normally does for the June payment in 2020, likely in response to the ongoing pandemic. Shareholders had received the same dividend for eight consecutive quarters. Still, we forecast dividends per share of $1.52 or so in five years.

HNI's price-to-earnings multiple has experienced volatility over the last decade, which is something you'd expect for a cyclical stock. We are reaffirming our 2026 target price-to-earnings ratio of 14 due for the year. The share price has fallen $2, or 5.3%, since our 7/30/2021 report. Based on the current price and earnings estimates for 2021, HNI trades with a P/E ratio of 21.7. We are therefore forecasting an 8.4% headwind to annual total returns due to multiple reversion over the next five years. Shares offer a current yield of 3.4%.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	86%	84%	66%	49%	40%	41%	56%	49%	47%	68%	75%	70%

HNI's quality metrics have been somewhat volatile during the past decade but again, its results are expected to be as such. Its balance sheet has looked very much the same in terms of leverage at around 60% debt financing and excluding 2009, its interest coverage has been more than sufficient. The payout ratio has also been relatively low, and we see it moving slightly lower over time as earnings growth outpaces dividend growth by a small margin; this also allows for increased safety of the dividend during the next downturn. The somewhat troubling trend stems from gross margins, which have been weakening since 2016. Efficiency efforts and the closing of the small office furniture business should help. However, it certainly bears watching in the coming quarters for any signs of weakness.

HNI's competitive advantage is its scale furniture business, as well as its long operating history and track record with customers. HNI has some of the most recognizable brands in the sector but that doesn't save it from recessions; the COVID-19 pandemic caused a sizable downswing in HNI's earnings.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Following third quarter results, HNI Corporation is now expected to return 0.8% annually through 2026, down from our previous estimate of 4.9%. Our return projection stems from a 5.5% earnings growth rate and starting yield of 3.4% that are nearly offset by a high single-digit headwind from multiple compression. HNI saw strong results in both segments during the quarter. That said, the stock trades at 155% of our fair value estimate. We have also lowered our five-year price target $11 to $30 and rate shares of the company as a sell.
