Overview & Current Events

Hormel Foods was founded in 1891 in Minnesota. Since that time, the company has grown into a $25 billion market capitalization juggernaut in the food products industry with about $12 billion in annual revenue. Hormel has kept with its core competency as a processor of meat products for well over a hundred years but has also grown into other business lines through acquisitions. The company sells its products in 80 countries worldwide, and its brands include Skippy, SPAM, Applegate, Justin's, and more than 30 others. In addition, Hormel is a member of the Dividend Kings, having increased its dividend for 56 consecutive years.

Hormel reported fourth quarter and full-year earnings on December 9th, 2021, and results were strong against expectations on both the top and bottom lines. Total revenue was $3.45 billion, up a staggering 43% year-over-year, and beating estimates by $230 million. Volume was 1.4 billion pounds, up 14% year-over-year, as organic volume was up 8%. That number excludes acquisitions and divestitures. The company said all four segments delivered sales and earnings growth, particularly in the Planters business.

Grocery Products revenue came to $905 million, up 18%, Refrigerated Foods revenue was $1.89 billion, up 41% year-over-year, Jennie-O saw $460 million in revenue, up 23%, and International & Other revenue rose 24% to $202 million. US retail net sales were up 34%, while foodservice sales rose 72% as restaurants continue to recover.

Operating margin was 10.4% of revenue, down from 11.4% in the year-ago period. Earnings-per-share came to 51 cents, beating expectations by a penny. The company guided for $11.7 billion to $12.5 billion in revenue, and earnings-per-share are now expected to be $1.87 to $2.03. We're out with an initial estimate of $1.95 for this year, as we see operating margins as a wildcard given inflationary pressures for input costs.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027

DPS	$0.30	$0.34	$0.40	$0.50	$0.58	$0.68	$0.75	$0.84	$0.93	$0.98	$1.04	$1.33
Shares¹	528	526	527	527	528	528	529	544	548	542	542	542

Hormel's earnings-per-share has grown nicely throughout the past decade, only dipping year-over-year three times in this span. Relatively consistent results have come from a steady stream of acquisitions and a bit of organic growth. This has afforded Hormel the ability to consistently raise its dividend as well.

We are forecasting forward earnings growth of 4% annually as Hormel could grow more slowly than it has in the past. We see sales growth as the primary driver of earnings-per-share expansion moving forward as recent results continue to show that margins and volumes can be unpredictable for this business. Hormel will likely continue to buy growth because its legacy businesses are not currently producing it outside of an extraordinary circumstance early in 2020. This strategy has certainly worked in the past, and Planters is yet another recent example.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	Now	2027
Avg. P/E	15.6	19.8	21.3	21.6	23.4	21.8	19.3	24.2	28.4	26.9	23.6	22.0
Avg. Yld.	2.1%	1.8%	1.7%	1.8%	1.5%	2.0%	2.1%	2.0%	2.0%	2.1%	2.3%	2.5%

Hormel's price-to-earnings ratio has been volatile in the last decade, sinking as low as 13 in 2009 before rebounding to 23.4 in 2016. It sits at 23.6 now and we believe it could move lower over time towards our fair value estimate of 22 times earnings. That works out to a modest headwind to total returns over the next five years as the stock remains expensive. Given Hormel's struggles with volume and margins, we believe investors are much more likely to reduce the earnings multiple than expand it further. We are forecasting a higher yield five years from now as the stock's valuation could move lower.

Hormel boosted its dividend once more, this time adding just over 6% to its payout, marking its 56th consecutive year of dividend increases.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	30%	33%	34%	35%	33%	41%	40%	48%	56%	57%	53%	56%

Hormel's payout ratio is just over half of earnings, and we expect that it will remain this way for the foreseeable future. Management is certainly committed to the dividend, but it wants to acquire growth as well, which uses cash.

Hormel's main competitive advantage is its ~40 products that are either #1 or #2 in their category. Hormel has brands that are proven, and that leadership position is difficult for competitors to supplant. In addition, Hormel has a global network of distributors that few food companies can rival. Hormel's earnings-per-share actually grew during the Great Recession while most of the world was in rather dire straits, a testament to the company's defensive nature.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Hormel looks overvalued today in our view, which is consistent with our last update. The company is in a tough spot as it tries to grow without sacrificing margins, which simply isn't working, as seen again in Q4. With the valuation still elevated and margins struggling, we forecast just 4.8% total annual returns for Hormel. However, we're reiterating Hormel at a hold rating.
