Overview & Current Events

PulteGroup was founded in 1950 by Bill Pulte. The company has delivered nearly 750,000 homes across the United States. It is the nation's third largest homebuilders and has operations in over 40 major cities. The company is marketed under the following brands: Pulte, Centex, Del Webb, DiVosta, American West, and John Wieland Homes and Neighborhoods. The company caters to the needs of first-time, move-up, luxury and active adult homebuyers. The company trades on the NYSE under the ticker PHM and is based in Georgia, Atlanta. In 2021, PulteGroup recorded $13.9 billion in home sale revenues.

PulteGroup reported strong fourth quarter results on February 1st. Home sale revenue for the fourth quarter was $4.2 billion, a 38% year-over-year increase. The company generated adjusted net income of $637 million, a 54% improvement over the same prior year period. Pulte's adjusted earnings per share grew 64% from $1.53 to $2.51.

Net new orders decreased 4% to 6,769 homes. The net new order value increased 16% to $3.8 billion. The favorable demand environment allowed for a homebuilding gross margin improvement of 180 basis points to 26.8%. The quarter-end backlog increased 19% to 18,003 homes and has a value of $9.9 billion, which increased 45%. Average sales price increased 10% from the prior year, to $490,000.

The company repurchased $897 million worth of its common shares in 2021, which account for 6% of outstanding common shares. At year-end, the company had $1.8 billion of cash and a net debt-to-capital of 2.5%.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

PulteGroup has grown its earnings per share strongly in the last five years, at a 5-year average annual growth rate of 35%. Even dating back from 2014 to 2021, PHM has grown earnings by 29% over the seven year period.

The housing market which PulteGroup operates in is red hot, as demand is high, and the supply is limited. PHM has many brands which allow for them to sell to a variety of clientele interested in purchasing housing. The company has a backlog of home orders to construct, and we anticipate the increased demand to continue as net new orders and the value of these orders grow annually. The increasing average sale price will also add to the company's earnings growth. Finally, the company's share count has been reduced by 32% since 2012, which significantly increases the earnings per share as earnings are spread across fewer outstanding shares. The current $1.5 billion share authorization accounts for 12% of the company's current market cap of $12.7 billion. We conservatively forecast the company can grow earnings per share by 1% into 2027, due to the cyclical nature of the business and the current relative high point. The threat of rising interest rates could wear on the company, as the demand for homes and the average sale price could hit a snag.

The corporation's dividend has grown by 11% on average over the past five years, and we estimate it will grow at around 5% in the next five years.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	Now	2027
Avg. P/E	21.9	12.7	15.4	14.9	11.3	11.3	8.4	9.0	7.5	8.8	4.9	8.0
Avg. Yld.	0.0%	0.8%	1.2%	1.6%	1.9%	1.4%	1.3%	1.4%	1.3%	1.0%	1.2%	0.9%

Pulte's price-to-earnings multiple is undervalued today at 4.9 based on 2022 forecasted earnings, and we believe the valuation will grow to meet our estimated valuation of 8.0 times earnings. We see a massive tailwind of 10.1% to total annual returns from an expanding valuation over time. PHM is not an income stock with its yield of 1.2%, and we expect the yield to remain around here as the company prefers to repurchase shares and invest in the business.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	0%	10%	18%	24%	22%	16%	11%	12%	10%	8%	6%	7%

The payout ratio remains exceptionally low so the dividend is safe and should continue to grow in the years to come at roughly the rate of earnings. However, PulteGroup is more interested in investing for growth than it is in becoming an income stock. PulteGroup is not recession resistant and was clobbered in the Great Financial Crisis. In fact, the corporation reported higher net income per share in 2005 than it did in 2020. From 2007 to 2011, the company reported net losses and slashed its dividend to zero. While the company is benefiting from strong demand today, interest rates and housing demand can cause volatile earnings in a recession. We don't see any significant competitive advantage over its peers, but we like the fact that PHM has different banners catering to a variety of client types.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We see PulteGroup as attractive for those looking to invest in the homebuilding market, and PHM is forecasted to earn 12.1% in total annual returns. We estimate the company will grow primarily through valuation expansion of 10.1% annually, with 1% earnings growth off this strong 2022 base, and a 1.2% yield. Our earnings estimate It's possible that returns could come in stronger if supply remains limited for the huge demand. Today we rate PHM a Buy.
