Overview & Current Events

Ritchie Bros. offers end-to-end solutions for buying and selling used heavy equipment, trucks, and other assets. The company's primary selling channels include Ritchie Bros. Auctioneers, the world's largest industrial auctioneer featuring online bidding, IronPlanet, an online marketplace with weekly auctions, and IronClad Assurance, which provides equipment condition certification. The company has a market cap of $5.66 billion, generates around $1.4 billion in annual revenues, and is based in Burnaby, Canada. Investors can trade its shares both on the TSX and NYSE. All figures in this report are in US dollars.

On February 17th, 2022, Ritchie Bros. reported its Q4-2021 results for the period ending December 31st, 2021. For the quarter, revenues declined 6.3% year-over-year to $359.4 million. This was due to inventory sales revenues declining by 24% as a result of a lower mix of inventory contracts, primarily in Canada. Service revenues growing by 6% offset this decline.

Net income and EPS fell to $30.5 million and $0.28, respectively, with both declining by about 38% compared to Q4-2020. This was due to lower sales and substantially higher acquisition-related costs. Overall, despite Ritchie's seemingly weak results, note that FY2020's results were inflated from COVID-19 boosting auction volumes. Hence, the recent pullback is only reasonable. Further, note that the company continues to enjoy strong momentum in its growth initiatives with its RBFS (Ritchie Bros. Financial Services) division posting growth of 61% to $14.7 million and its cumulative IMS (Inventory Management System) activations increasing 89% compared to last quarter. We have set our initial FY2022 EPS estimates at $1.50.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027

Despite Ritchie Bros. consistently growing revenues over the past decade, profitability had lagged, particularly in the 2016-2019 time period, as the company was reinvesting towards growth. We retain our EPS growth estimates at 10% over the medium term to reflect the company's growing GMV and accretive acquisitions. The company is seeing strong demand for its auction services, while its acquisitions should unlock cost efficiencies, boosting net income. We believe strongly in Ritchie's potential synergies amongst its services (for example, certification provision before auction listing and vertical integration). Hence EPS growth is likely to remain solid. Due to profitability improving drastically, management has been accelerating its dividend growth recently. Dividend growth had fallen to as low as 3% in 2017, in line with stagnating EPS. In conjunction with the latest 14% dividend jump, we retain our dividend growth expectations at 10% in the medium term, comfortably supported by the company's underlining net income. Ritchie Bros. has been growing its dividends annually without any exception since 2004, marking a 17-year dividend growth record.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	Now	2027
Avg. P/E	26.3	26.4	27.9	30.6	25.0	25.8	43.7	31.2	42.5	51.4	43.6	33.0
Avg. Yld.	2.2%	2.6%	2.2%	2.2%	2.2%	2.2%	2.0%	1.9%	1.9%	1.4%	1.5%	2.0%

Ritchie Bros' valuation has been incredibly consistent over the years, typically hovering from 25x to 30x earnings-per-share. Since 2020 the stock's P/E has skyrocketed. It now stands at 43.6 as investors appear to remain very optimistic in regards to the company's EPS growth. We continue to warn that a valuation compression is quite likely, despite the stock being deserving of its premium. We expect the stock's P/E to settle in the low 30's in the medium term, though we could be looking at a more optimistic multiple if EPS growth does not slow down. Shares have historically traded with a yield of around 2%, though the yield is now 1.5% due to the stock's valuation expansion. It is likely to converge back towards 2% in the medium-term following any valuation headwinds materializing.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	64%	58%	65%	49%	78%	97%	63%	57%	56%	71%	67%	67%

Ritchie Bros.' dividend coverage remains quite healthy. Despite the recent acceleration in dividend growth, the stock's payout ratio based on the company's expected FY2022 EPS is just around 67%. The company is the largest industrial-equipment auctioneer in the world, holding a significant competitive advantage due to its long-term expertise in the sector and the wide network effect of its online participants. Additionally, while its business model sounds sensitive to the industrial sector's cyclicalities, the company is benefiting during such times as more equipment is brought forward to be auctioned (e.g., amid a company's liquidation), increasing its fees. During the Great Financial Crisis, for example, the company continued to enjoy revenue growth, despite the overall challenges in the economy. Hence, the company should remain resilient during a potential recession, enjoying robust cash flows.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Ritchie Bros. has generally offered investors consistent, low volatility returns over the past couple of decades, featuring a well-managed dividend growth record. While last year's results normalized over an inflated FY2020, we believe that the company's growth prospects remain solid. Powered by acquisition synergies and organic growth, profitability growth should resume in FY2022. That said, we forecast annualized returns of just 5.7% in the medium term due to the possibility of strong valuation headwinds ahead. We, therefore, rate shares a hold at the moment.
