Overview & Current Events

Hanesbrands is a leading marketer of everyday basic innerwear and activewear apparel. It has a market capitalization of $4.4 billion and sells its products under well-known brands, including Hanes and Champion, in America, Europe, Australia and the Asia-Pacific region.

Hanesbrands spent $2.9 billion on acquisitions in the last seven years but has dramatically underperformed the S&P 500 in the last five years, losing -44% while the index rallied 66%. The company is trying to assimilate its past acquisitions while it is facing intense competition and a secular shift towards online sales. The high debt load from past acquisitions burdens the company via high interest expense.

In early May, Hanesbrands reported (5/5/21) financial results for the first quarter of fiscal 2022. Revenue grew 5% over the prior year's quarter, with 6% growth in the global Champion brand and 1.5% growth in the U.S. innerwear business. However, the company was hurt by supply chain disruptions and high cost inflation. As a result, its adjusted earnings-per-share dipped -13%, from $0.39 to $0.34.

Due to the above headwinds, Hanesbrands reiterated its lackluster guidance for 2022. It expects 4% revenue growth and adjusted earnings-per-share of $1.64-$1.81. Given the recent deceleration in business performance, we have lowered our forecast for annual earnings-per-share from $1.82 to $1.75. We also note that the absence of growth for one more year is disappointing.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027

Hanesbrands has grown its earnings-per-share at a 12.0% average annual rate over the last decade but it has failed to grow in the last five years. After four consecutive years of poor sales, the company managed to grow its sales in 2018-2019, but it has failed to grow its earnings-per-share due to the above-mentioned challenges facing the company. On the bright side, Hanesbrands now has a long-term growth plan, which includes growing the Champion brand globally, growing Innerwear sales with products that appeal to young consumers and improving online sales. We expect Hanesbrands to grow its earnings-per-share at a 6.0% average annual rate over the next five years.

Hanesbrands (HBI)

Updated May 10th, 2022 by Aristofanis Papadatos

Hanesbrands is currently trading at a 10-year low price-to-earnings ratio of 7.4, which is much lower than its 10-year average price-to-earnings ratio of 12.5. Due to the challenges facing the company and its uncertain long-term outlook, we have assumed a fair earnings multiple of 10.0. If the stock trades at our fair valuation level in five years, it will enjoy a 6.1% annualized gain thanks to the expansion of its valuation level over this period.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	---	15.3%	21.1%	24.1%	23.8%	31.1%	35.1%	34.1%	41.4%	32.8%	34.3%	27.6%

Hanesbrands' well-known Champion brand gives the company a slight competitive advantage. However, the company is engaged in a highly competitive business, which does not allow it to command high margins or grow quickly.

Due to its acquisitions, Hanesbrands has leveraged its balance sheet in recent years, with its debt/assets ratio rising from 70% in 2013 to 89% now. Its interest expense currently consumes 17% of its operating income. The company has paid the same dividend for 22 consecutive quarters. As the payout ratio is low, the reason for the absence of a dividend hike is probably the leveraged balance sheet and the uncertain business outlook. Fortunately, management is in the process of reducing the debt load.

Hanesbrands is also vulnerable to recessions. During rough economic periods, consumers reduce the amounts they spend on apparel and thus exert pressure on the earnings of apparel companies.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Hanesbrands is in turnaround mode but it has volatile and unreliable business performance. Nevertheless, we expect the stock to offer a 15.4% average annual return over the next five years thanks to 6.0% earnings growth, its 4.6% dividend and a 6.1% valuation gain. We also note that the stock is trading at a 10-year low valuation level and hence we find it attractive. We rate the stock as a buy but only for investors who are comfortable with the volatile business performance and can wait patiently for inflation to subside.
