Updated May 5th, 2022 by Derek English

KKR is trading below its 10-year average P/E ratio of 13.6 and looks to be attractively valued with a fair price of 23% above the current $55 share price. Applying our targeted P/E ratio of 15 for 2027 and our expected $7.05 DE/share for 2027, we arrive at our five-year price target of $106, which could mean substantial share price returns before the contribution from the 1.1% dividend yield.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

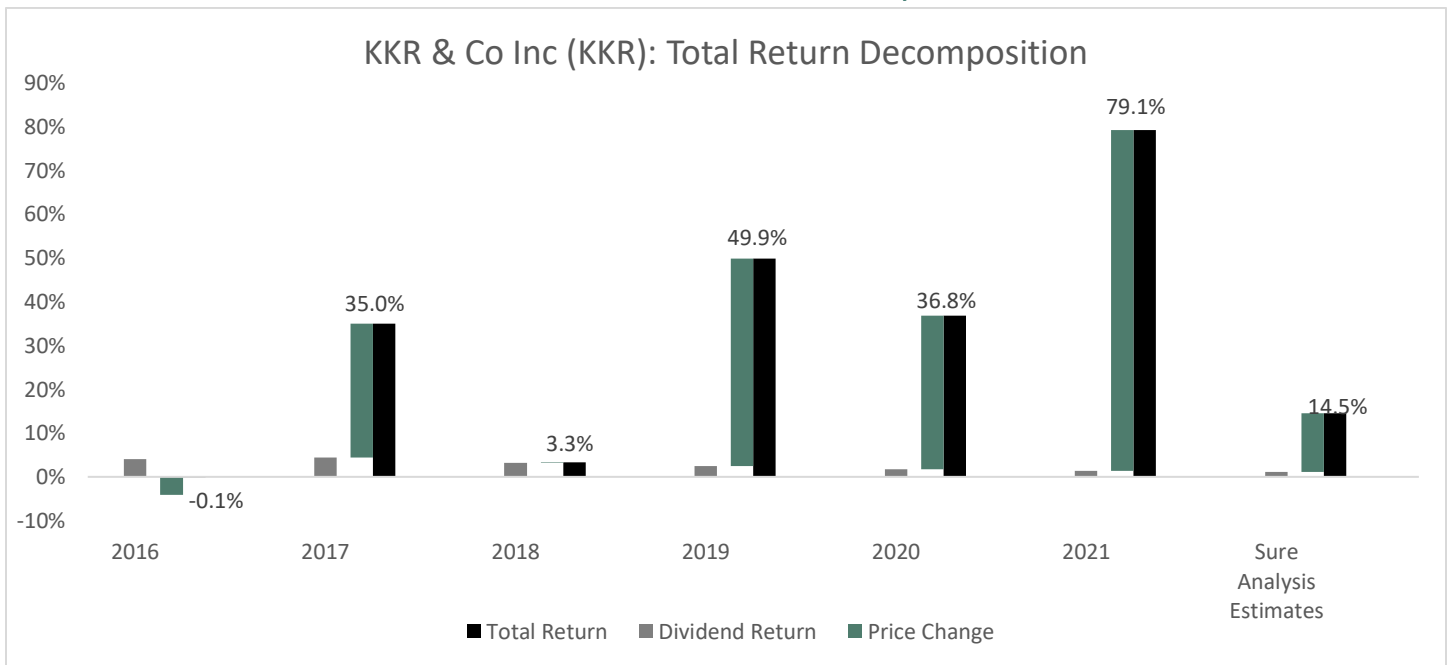

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	29%	54%	110%	131%	94%	28%	33%	30%	26%	13%	13%	10%

Scale and reputation carry more weight within the asset management industry than a traditional company. We can see from the rate at which KKR AUM is growing that they have a stellar reputation, and the scale of the company allows them to take advantage of regions such as Asia. The company has some significant growth opportunities ahead as it is in the top 3 for most of its investment strategies. On April 28th 2022, the company closed the acquisition of KJR management, one of Japan's largest real estate asset managers, for ~$1.8 billion. The company is scaling faster than expected as AUM has grown 98% since 2018, including the acquisition of Global Atlantic. However, the company has some risks; KKR has benefited from the low-interest-rate environment over the last decade. Inflation could increase interest rates and negatively impact KKR's current investments. If the valuations of these investments are affected, then the growth in AUM may slow down to the broader market average.

Final Thoughts & Recommendations

KKR has many attributes that make the company a strong investment choice for investors seeking decent ROIs. AUM has been growing at double the industry rate, fee-related earnings are increasing, and after-tax distributable earnings are also expanding. In addition, the acquisition of Global Atlantic has dramatically increased revenues. With a dividend yield of 1.1% and a P/E ratio of 11.5, We estimate a total return of 14.5% through 2027. Currently, we estimate a fair value price of $72 and would recommend KKR as a buy at current prices due to projected returns mainly from price appreciation.
