Overview & Current Events

Sienna Senior Living provides senior housing and long-term care (LTC) services in Canada. The company offers a range of seniors' living options, including independent and assisted living, memory care, long-term care, and specialized programs and services, as well as management services. As of its latest report, Sienna owned and operated a total of 70 senior living residences, including 27 retirement residences and 35 LTC residences. The company also manages only an additional 13 senior living residences. Sienna generates around $520 million in annual revenues and is based in Markham, Canada.

It's worth noting that while its operations involve heavy use of its real estate assets and reports AFFO (Adjusted Funds from Operations) instead of EPS, the company has not registered itself as a REIT. Additionally, the stock is originally listed on the TSX (Toronto Stock Exchange). All numbers in this report have been converted to USD unless otherwise noted.

On May 12th, 2022, Sienna Senior Living reported its Q1-2022 results for the period ending March 31st, 2022. For the quarter, revenue grew by 8.1% year-over-year (in constant currency) to $136.8 million. Specifically, In the Retirement segment, revenues grew 6.4%, driven by occupancy growth and annual rental rate increases in line with market conditions. In the LTC segment, LTC revenues grew 8.6%, primarily due to funding for direct care hours, annual inflationary funding increases, and higher preferred accommodation revenues from higher occupancy in private and semi-private rooms.

AFFO declined by 28.3% year-over-year to $12.90 million, or $0.13/share. This was caused by NOI declining by 27.4% to $25.2 million. However, the decrease was only due to retroactive pandemic funding received in Q1-2021 related to pandemic expenses during the year ended December 31st, 2020.

The company's average occupancy now stands at 87%, further improving from last quarter's 84.6% and last year's 81.5%. In fact, amid reduced risks for seniors amid the pandemic easing, resident move-ins and rent deposits increased by 58% and 51%, respectively, compared to last year. We have set our FY2022 AFFO/share earnings power estimate at $0.85, excluding any one-off effects related to COVID-19 expenses and government funding.

Sienna Senior Living's AFFO/share has been slowly but gradually growing in its original CAD reporting. However, due to the depreciation of the Canadian Dollar against the U.S. dollar during some years, American investors have seen slightly weaker financials. The same applies to DPS, which the company pays out on a monthly basis. Since 2010, DPS on the TSX has gradually grown from C$0.071 per month to C$0.078 as of now. However, shares trading over the counter (OTC) have suffered FX fluctuations, resulting in lower dividends over time. While we expect the company to slightly grow its AFFO following occupancy levels returning to normal and new sites under development coming online, we estimate 0% growth in both AFFO/share and DPS going forward. This is to be prudent against an inflationary environment with rising interest rates, which could negatively affect both the company's operating and financial expenses. FX effects could also sway results either way, though mostly marginally.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	Now	2027
P/AFFO	10.5	8.8	14.3	13.5	11.7	11.3	12.9	14.1	13.7	14.1	12.4	12.5
Avg. Yld.	7.7%	0.7%	6.7%	5.2%	5.1%	5.1%	5.0%	5.1%	5.1%	6.0%	7.0%	7.0%

Investors have priced shares with a relatively low multiple over the years. The company has been able to produce resilient results and even grow its dividend slowly, but gradually (in $C terms). Shares have undergone a notable valuation compression lately, likely attributable to risks related to inflation and rising rates. We believe the current P/AFFO of 12.4, while humble, is well-justified. Thus, unless the macroeconomic environment improves, we don't see the multiple having expansion prospects. The stock's yield is currently 7% and is the highest it has been in years. We expect both the valuation and, consequently, the yield to remain rather stable going forward.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	72%	75%	90%	73%	59%	63%	63%	70%	90%	86%	87%	87%

Sienna Senior Living's dividend should be pretty safe for now. DPS fluctuations have been entirely due to CAD/USD fluctuations, as management has been increasing DPS throughout the years. While the company doesn't hold any significant competitive advantage, its robust revenue generation during the adverse environment caused by COVID-19 showcases a likely strong performance amid a future prolonged recession. Additionally, its Ontario and British Columbia residents, which comprise the majority of its rental revenues, received full funding for vacancies by the Canadian government during the pandemic. This was reflected in last year's rental collection rate which was nearly 100%. Government funding is likely to be resumed amid a potential COVID-19 resurgence next year, potentially shielding the company. Sienna's liquidity currently stands at C$326.4 million, while its average cost of debt remains stable sequentially at 3.4%.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Sienna Senior Living is a conservatively managed company providing relatively stable returns to its shareholders. Due to the lack of sufficient growth catalysts both in its AFFO/share and DPS and relatively stable valuation expectations ahead, we forecast annualized returns of around 6.3% in the medium-term. Shares earn a hold rating.
