Overview & Current Events

Silgan Holdings manufactures and sells metal and plastic containers, as well as packaging closures. Its containers are found in everyday food consumables such as pet food, fruits and vegetables, and drinks, while its closures are applied to the beverage, garden, and personal care products. The company generates nearly $5.7 billion in revenues and is based in Stamford, Connecticut.

On February 23rd, Silgan raised its dividend by 14.3% to a quarterly rate of $0.16.

On April 27th, 2022, Silgan reported its Q1-2022 results for the period ending March 31st, 2022. Quarterly revenues rose 16.1% year-over-year, reaching $1.44 billion, while adjusted EPS came in at $0.78, which was a 4% increase versus Q1-2021. The company's revenue growth was again driven by higher net sales across all segments. Specifically, while the metal containers segment experienced a decline of 14% in unit volumes year-over-year, its sales grew 17.4% to $650.7 million as a result of higher prices. The decrease in unit volumes was principally the result of higher customer purchases in late 2021 in advance of significant price increases due to the unprecedented inflation in metals. The dispensing & closures division performed well, with sales reaching $597.9 million, also 17.4% higher year-over-year. This increase was primarily the result of higher unit volumes of approximately 8% and the pass-through of higher raw material and other manufacturing costs. Finally, custom containers recorded a 10.6% revenue growth to $193.3 million as price increases exceeded lower unit volumes, which came in 8% lower.

For FY2022, management expects continued strong performance from recent acquisitions and the ability to pass through raw material and other inflationary costs to its customers successfully. Consequently, management raised its guidance. Silgan expects adjusted EPS to land between $3.90 and $4.05 for the year (previously $3.80 to $4.00). We have utilized the midpoint of this range in our estimates.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027

DPS	$0.24	$0.28	$0.30	$0.32	$0.34	$0.36	$0.40	$0.44	$0.48	$0.56	$0.64	$1.03
Shares²	139.1	128.5	126.9	122.0	119.7	110.4	110.6	110.9	110.7	110.3	110.6	100.0

Over the past decade, Silgan has averaged an EPS and DPS CAGR of 12.9% and 9.9%, respectively. Despite the work-from-home economy gradually fading, demand for packaged and canned foods, as well as sanitization products, has remained at strong levels. Following exceptional pricing power and management's positive remarks going forward, we retain our EPS CAGR estimates at 9%. A potential decline in volumes caused by COVID-19 retreating and/or an oversupply of Silgan's products could slow down profitability growth, nonetheless. That said, Silgan's unit volumes and pricing mix seems to be yield robust results, challenging the scenario that its performance bump was only temporary.

Further, we retain our DPS CAGR forecast at 10% to reflect management's latest bold payout hike in line with a low payout ratio and a favorable business environment. Silgan has grown its DPS annually for 18 consecutive years.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	Now	2027
Avg. P/E	16	16.8	17.1	19.9	20.1	22.6	11.1	17.6	12.5	13.5	11.1	13.0
Avg. Yld.	1.1%	1.2%	1.2%	1.3%	1.3%	1.1%	1.6%	1.5%	1.5%	1.3%	1.4%	1.3%

Silgan's valuation has remained relatively reasonable over the years, rarely outrunning its underlying financial growth. Based on the management's confident guidance, shares are relatively cheaply priced at 11.1 times their FY2022 expected adjusted EPS. We forecast a fair P/E ratio of 13 moving forward. The stock's yield has always remained relatively low, at around 1%-2%. Despite the rapid dividend increases, aggregate dividends (as well as buybacks) have remained quite humble as the company reinvests most of its proceeds back into the business.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	22%	19%	21%	23%	27%	15%	20%	25%	17%	17%	16%	17%

Investors can rely on Silgan's dividends since the company's payout ratio has mostly remained incredibly low. It currently stands at 16%. Since the company's IPO in 1996, Silgan has never reported a money-losing quarter. Its products are vital for various consumer staples. Hence its operations are quite stable, displayed in its 18-year dividend growth record. At the same time, however, Silgan operates in a massively competitive space, with quite thin margins. The company's competitors include firms that are multiple times larger than Silgan, such as the Ball Corp. (BLL), the Packaging Corporation of America (PKG), keeping Silgan's net profit margins as low as 6%.

Overall, we believe that the company has showcased decades of robust cash flow generation, with little volatility to its financials. Its operations should remain quite stable even under adverse economic conditions. Silgan's financial resiliency is evident by the 2026 senior secured notes issue last year, in which Silgan managed to secure $500 million at an ultra-low rate of 1.4%.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Silgan has a long history of stable returns, lacking any wild fluctuations in its share price throughout the decades. Combining our relatively modest growth expectations, the dividend yield, and potential for a valuation expansion towards its average, we estimate annualized returns of around 13.6% in the medium-term. Hence, we rate shares a buy. However, investors must be aware of the company's razor-thin net income margins, which could easily be compressed following incompetence in passing inflationary costs through, limiting the stock's potential returns over this period.
