Overview & Current Events

Sanofi, a global pharmaceutical leader, incorporated in 1994. The company develops and markets a variety of therapeutic treatments and vaccines. Pharmaceuticals account for ~72% of sales, vaccines makeup ~15% of sales and consumer healthcare contributing the remainder of sales. Sanofi is truly a global leader, with a third of sales coming from the U.S., a little more than a quarter coming from Western Europe, and the remainder of sales coming from emerging markets/rest of the world. Sanofi produces annual revenues of about $44 billion. Sanofi is incorporated in France, but U.S. investors have access to the company through an American Depositary Receipt, or ADR.

On April 28th, 2022, Sanofi reported first quarter results for the period ending March 31st, 2022. Unless otherwise noted, all figures are listed in U.S. dollars and constant exchange rates. Revenue declined 2.4% to $10.16 billion, but topped estimates by $157 million. The company's earnings-per-share per ADR of $1.02 compared to $0.97 in the prior year and was $0.10 above expectations.

Pharmaceutical revenues were higher by 7.5% during the quarter. Specialty Care was especially impressive, with 18% revenue growth. Dupixent, which treats patients with moderate-to-severe asthma, was up nearly 46% as both total prescriptions and new patient growth was robust. The product is now approved for use in adults in more than 60 countries and in adolescents in ~20 countries. Sanofi estimates that the product can be launched in ~50 additional countries. Oncology grew 6.8%. Jevtana, which treats prostate cancer that has spread to other parts of the body, remains challenged as revenue fell more than 24%. The remainder of the portfolio, however, continues to show solid growth rates. Rare Diseases inched higher by 1.9%, with gains in nearly all areas. Vaccine revenue was higher by 6.8% as gains in polio, travel, and booster vaccines were partially offset by weakness in influenza and meningitis vaccines. Consumer Healthcare grew 17% as gains were seen in allergy, pain care, cough, cold and flu, digestive, and physical and mental wellness. By region, U.S. sales grew 12.1%, Europe increased 6.7%, and the rest of the world was higher by 7.0%. China was up 13.4%.

Sanofi reaffirmed its outlook for 2022 as well. The company expects earnings-per-share growth in the low double-digit range. Currency is now expected to be a 4% to 5% tailwind to results.

Sanofi saw earnings growth during the last recession, though there has been some variance in results in the past few years. This is the case with many ADRs and is often a result of currency fluctuations. We expect the company's pharmaceutical segment to continue to show growth in the coming years, leading to a 4% annual increase in earnings and dividends per share through 2027. This is below the company's guidance for the current year, but we are comfortable with this as the medium-term growth rate given the high base of earnings-per-share. The fluctuations in dividends received for the ADR is, again, due largely to currency exchanges, as Sanofi has increased its dividend for 27 consecutive years in its local currency. Sanofi pays an annual dividend, usually in May or June.

Valuation Analysis

Shares of Sanofi have increased $1, or 1.9%, since our February 6th, 2022 report. We maintain our 2027 target price-to-earnings ratio of 16, which is in line with peers. Based off of updated guidance for earnings-per-share for 2022, shares trade with a price-to-earnings multiple of 12.6 today. If the stock expanded to our target valuation, investors would see an additional 5.0% added to annual returns through 2027. The stock's 3.4% yield is well-above the yield of the S&P 500.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

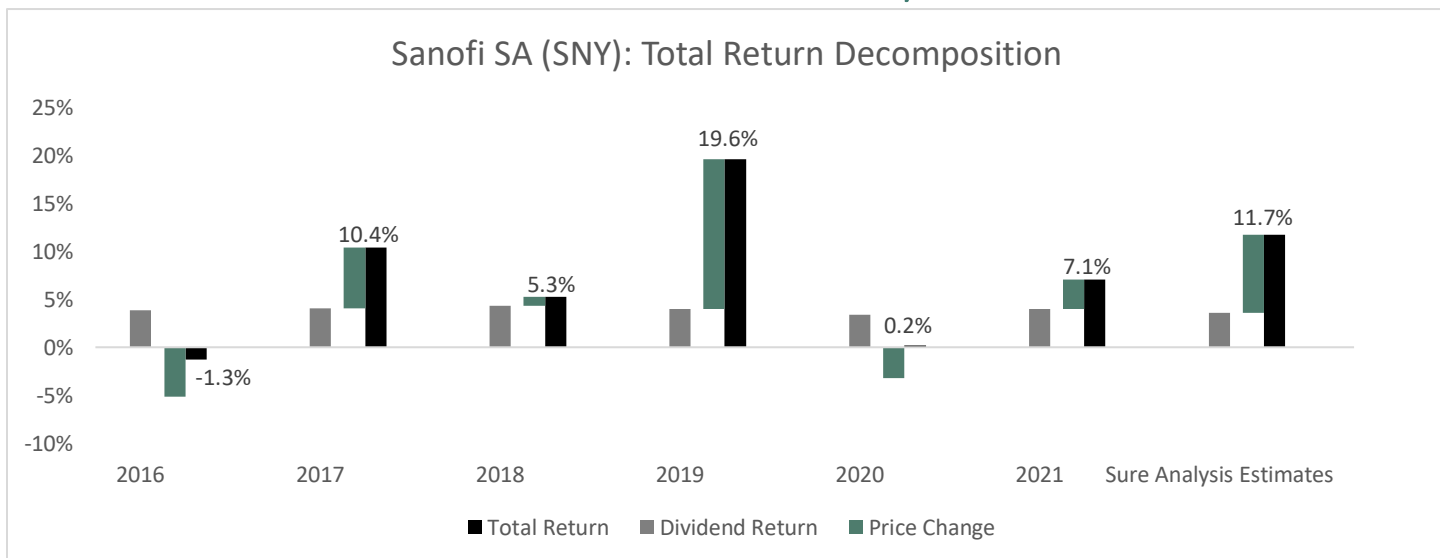

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	65%	85%	96%	89%	93%	70%	58%	52%	49%	50%	43%	43%

Sanofi's specialty care division, especially in the areas of rare disease and immunology, have demonstrated high rates of growth. These areas are likely to be continued sources of strength for the company. Several of these products, such as Dupixent, are just starting to gain traction. Sanofi has also showed a willingness to use acquisitions to fund its growth. Given Sanofi's products are used to treat diseases, and thus, shouldn't be dependent upon strong economic conditions, we see Sanofi as a defensive play for when the next recession strikes.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Sanofi is now expected to return 11.7% annually through 2027, down from our previous estimate of 12.3%. Our projected return stems from a 4% earnings growth rate, starting yield of 3.4%, and a mid-single-digit contribution from multiple expansion. The momentum from the end of 2021 continued into the first quarter where Sanofi saw strong growth rates in most areas. We reaffirm our five-year price target of $82 as well as our buy rating on Sanofi due to projected returns.
