Overview & Current Events

Citigroup was founded in 1812, when it was known as the City Bank of New York. In the past 200+ years, the bank has grown into a global juggernaut in credit cards, commercial banking, trading, and a variety of other financial activities. It has thousands of branches, produces about $75 billion in annual revenue, and has a $97 billion market capitalization.

Citigroup reported second quarter earnings on July 15th, 2022, and results were much better than expected on both the top and bottom lines. The bank reported earnings-per-share of $2.19, which was a staggering 52 cents better than estimates. Revenue was also very strong, growing 12.4% year-over-year to $12.64 billion, more than $1.3 billion better than expected. The top line benefited from growth in both net interest income, and noninterest revenue.

Operating expenses were $12.4 billion, down 6% quarter-over-quarter, but up 8% year-over-year. Cost of credit came to $1.3 billion in Q2, a sharp deterioration of a benefit of $1.1 billion in the year-ago period. The change was primarily due to a net build in allowances for credit losses of $0.4 billion, compared to a release of $2.4 billion a year ago. This was partially offset by lower net credit losses.

The bank stopped share repurchases to meet higher capital requirements, but said it would restart them as soon as practicable. We've updated our share count estimates accordingly.

We estimate $6.80 in earnings-per-share for this year following Q2 results, sharply higher revision than the $6.00 we expected after Q1.

Citi's earnings-per-share history is clouded by the immense struggles it endured following the Great Recession. However, years of hard work have paid off, and earnings have continued to move higher over time. We see Citi producing $6.80 per share in earnings for 2022, from which we expect 4% annual growth for the foreseeable future. We've reduced our estimate from 2021 levels given the billions of dollars the company reported in profits from credit loss reserve releases, which will not be repeated. This year should see normalized earnings again.

We believe Citi will continue to see higher revenue as its institutional and consumer businesses gather cheap deposits and lend them prudently, leading to reasonable loss rates and favorable margins. We believe Citi is pulling back on lending at the moment due to less than favorable spreads on loans, which was evident in 2020 and 2021. That is a headwind, as it results in higher deposit costs without commensurate lending revenue, crimping top line and margin growth. However, the company's buybacks could be good for a mid-single-digit reduction in the share count annually, as we saw in 2021, once repurchases are resumed. We note that even in the recent tumultuous interest rate environment, Citi is performing well. Citi is not as tied to traditional lending as most other banks, so the yield curve is not as critical, but the cost of deposits is important for its massive credit card business. Continued deposit growth that is outpacing lending growth is weighing on margins. This was masked in 2021 by reserve releases, but results should be more normalized starting in 2022. We note the bank is performing extremely well in challenging conditions.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	Now	2027
Avg. P/E	8.4	11.4	22.8	9.8	9.7	12.3	10.4	8.4	11.0	6.9	7.4	9.5
Avg. Yld.	0.1%	0.1%	0.1%	0.3%	0.9%	1.5%	2.2%	2.8%	3.8%	2.9%	4.1%	3.5%

At 7.4 times earnings, Citigroup's price-to-earnings ratio is decently low. Our fair value estimate has been slightly reduced to 9.5 times earnings, meaning the stock is meaningfully undervalued. We expect the dividend yield to remain roughly where it is today, near 4%. We note Citi hasn't raised the dividend since 2019.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	2%	2%	9%	7%	9%	18%	25%	24%	42%	20%	30%	33%

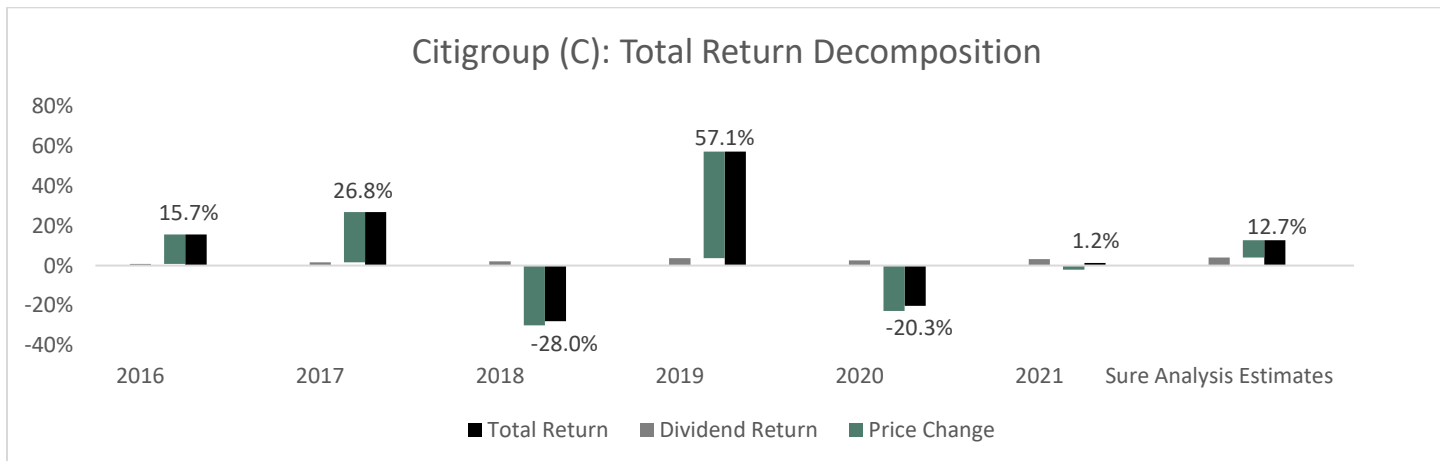

Citi's payout ratio is only 30% of estimated earnings this year. Citi has spent the past several years trying to build its dividend back to a normalized level, and it is nearly in-line with competitors. We still expect dividend raises in the years to come despite Citi taking a pause in doing so.

Citi's competitive advantage is in its global reach and its large position in the lucrative credit card business. Citi has differentiated itself from the other money center banks in these ways and it continues to serve the bank well. It is very susceptible to recessions as it nearly went out of business in 2008/2009. The 2020 downturn wasn't kind to Citi, although we note that the bank is in much better shape than it was heading into the financial crisis from a balance sheet and business mix perspective.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We are forecasting 12.7% total annual returns over the next five years, which is up from our last report, mostly due to the valuation and rising earnings estimates. Earnings should be at normalized levels this year, and we've boosted our growth outlook given the much lower base. We think Citi is past the worst of the pandemic's impacts, but that earnings will be impossible to replicate from 2021 levels anytime soon. The total return outlook warrants reiteration of a buy rating on the stock.
