Overview & Current Events

The Travelers Companies was founded in 1864 in Hartford, CT by two local businessmen. The company began with life and accident insurance but has expanded into other types of coverage in the 150+ years since then. Today, it generates just over $33 billion in annual revenue and has a $37 billion market capitalization. The company offers a wide and deep variety of protection products for auto, home, and business customers. It is also a member of the Dow Jones Industrial Average, making it the only property casualty insurance provider in the prestigious index.

Travelers reported second quarter earnings on July 21st, 2022, and results were better than expected. Adjusted earnings-per-share came to $2.57, which was 60 cents ahead of estimates. Revenue was up 5% year-over-year to $9.14 billion. Earned premium was $8.32 billion, up more than 9% year-over-year, and fractionally ahead of expectations.

Consolidated combined ratio was 98.3%, and underlying combined ratio was 92.8%. Catastrophe losses were $746 million pre-tax, which was up from $475 million pre-tax in the year-ago period.

Net investment income was down 14% to $707 million, as non-fixed income investment portfolio value declined on lower private equity partnership returns.

Adjusted book value was $112 per share, up 8% year-over-year.

We now see $13.45 per share in earnings for this year, following good results in Q2.

After strong growth coming out of the Great Recession, Travelers failed to regain its 2015 high of $10.87 in earnings-per-share until 2021. Conditions were quite favorable in 2021 in that prior reserve developments were unwound, investment conditions were excellent, and losses were lower than normal. This year should result in more normalized conditions, but as a result, we are expecting higher 6% earnings-per-share growth annually in the coming years, noting that insurer earnings are notoriously volatile.

Travelers could achieve this growth primarily from higher underwritten premiums and the buyback program, although margins should play a part as well, as long as there aren't any large catastrophes. We forecast low single-digit gains from higher revenue as well as a similar tailwind from the company's buyback, which has reduced the float by about a third in just the past decade alone. Recent reductions have been smaller in size given the higher share price, but Travelers is committed to reducing its share count over time. Lower operating expenses should also provide a bit of a boost to earnings, but the Travelers story is about higher premiums, lower catastrophe losses, and a lower share count.

The dividend has been raised in the mid-single-digit range annually and we expect that will continue for the foreseeable future. Travelers is not a pure income stock, but its 2.4% yield is still decent by its historical standards, and almost 100bps better than the S&P 500.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	Now	2027
Avg. P/E	10.3	8.8	8.8	9.7	11.2	17.2	14.7	14.5	11.3	11.0	11.6	12.0
Avg. Yld.	2.8%	2.3%	2.3%	2.3%	2.4%	2.3%	2.3%	2.3%	2.9%	2.3%	2.4%	2.3%

Travelers' price-to-earnings multiple stands at 11.6 times this year's earnings estimate. We therefore see the stock as slightly undervalued given that our estimate of fair value is 12 times earnings. That implies a small positive impact to annual returns due to the valuation.

We forecast the yield to stay about where it is today in the mid-2% area.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	28%	21%	20%	22%	25%	38%	34%	34%	32%	25%	28%	28%

Travelers continues to be conservatively financed and does not have significant debt coming due in the next two years, so its balance sheet is in good shape and interest coverage remains robust. We believe the payout ratio should remain around one-third of earnings given that we are forecasting earnings and the dividend to grow at roughly congruent rates. The dividend is, therefore, very safe and we see many more years of increases on the horizon. Importantly, this continues to allow Travelers to buy back hundreds of millions of dollars of its own shares annually.

Travelers' main competitive advantages is in its immense scale and recognizable brand. Its size allows it to underwrite policies that others would not be able to, and its brand is well-known from its long history. Travelers is more susceptible to catastrophes than recessions, as we saw in 2017 and again in 2018. This makes Travelers a defensive play should the economy weaken materially, but we reiterate that insurance companies are susceptible to significant and unforeseen shocks, as Travelers has demonstrated in recent years.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Travelers looks like a safe financial services provider with a decent growth outlook. We forecast total annual return potential of 8.8% in the coming years, consisting of the 2.4% yield, 6% earnings-per-share growth and a small tailwind from the valuation. We're reiterating Travelers at a hold rating as the stock is only slightly undervalued in our view.
