Overview & Current Events

Gilead Sciences is a biotechnology company that operates with a clear focus on antiviral medication and treatments. Its main products include treatments for HIV, Hepatitis B, and Hepatitis C (HBV/HCV), but Gilead has also ventured into other areas such as oncology. Gilead Sciences was founded in 1987, and is headquartered in Foster City, CA.

Gilead Sciences reported its second quarter earnings results on August 3. The company generated revenues of $6.3 billion during the quarter, which was above the analyst consensus estimate. The company's top line grew by 1% compared to the previous year's quarter. Gilead's Hepatitis C franchise continues to decline, but other businesses showed a better performance. Gilead's COVID therapy Veklury (remdesivir), which generated revenues of $1.5 billion during the first quarter, saw its sales drop considerably as competing drugs have come to the market. Adjusted for that, Gilead's product sales would have been up by 7% year over year on the back of strong HIV sales. HIV drug Biktarvy, Gilead's biggest drug in terms of sales volumes, generated an attractive 28% sales increase.

Gilead generated earnings-per-share of $1.58 during the second quarter, which was easily above the consensus estimate. Gilead has updated and increased its guidance range for 2022, now forecasting revenues of $24.8 billion, which is up $600 million versus the previous guidance midpoint. Gilead has stated that its earnings-per-share should fall into a range of $6.35 to $6.75 during the current year, which is below the levels seen in 2020 and 2021, but more or less in line with the earnings the company generated during 2018-2019. This also is a higher earnings-per-share estimate compared to what Gilead had guided for earlier this year.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Gilead's main sales driver for many years has been its HIV portfolio, until its $11 billion takeover of Pharmasset started to pay off in 2014. With its HCV drugs, Gilead was able to grow its top line very quickly. Due to strong operating leverage, Gilead's earnings-per-share exploded upwards. Since its HCV drugs cure patients, the patient pool started to shrink very quickly, which has led to a declining number of patients that start treatment with one of Gilead's HCV drugs. This is why profits peaked in 2015 and have been declining since.

Gilead's HIV business continues to grow, which is why earnings will likely not continue to decline forever; 2019 was a year during which Gilead managed to grow its revenues again, and 2020 was another positive year. Thanks to efforts by Gilead to grow its sales in the future, there is a good chance that the company's earnings-per-share will start to climb again as well, although right now Gilead still has to invest meaningfully into pipeline drugs. Gilead owns the commercialization rights for Filgotinib, developed by Galapagos, which has a good chance of becoming successful in several immunotherapeutic indications. COVID-19 treatment remdesivir has been a growth driver in 2020 and 2021, but it is expected that the impact of remdesivir will be less pronounced going forward.

Valuation Analysis

| Year      | 2012 | 2013 | 2014 | 2015 | 2016 | 2017 | 2018 | 2019 | 2020 | 2021 | Now  | 2027 |
|-----------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|
| Avg. P/E  | 17.3 | 31.1 | 12.2 | 8.9  | 8.4  | 8.5  | 9.4  | 9.8  | 8.1  | 10.0 | 10.1 | 10.0 |
| Avg. Yld. |      |      |      | 1.2% | 2.2% | 2.8% | 3.6% | 3.9% | 4.8% | 3.9% | 4.3% | 4.7% |

Gilead Sciences has never traded at a high valuation, except for 2013, when the steep earnings growth during 2014 was foreseeable. Gilead has been valued at a relatively low valuation since 2015, and shares have given back their gains from the initial stage of the pandemic, when shares were temporarily hyped due to remdesivir prospects.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

| Year   | 2012 | 2013 | 2014 | 2015  | 2016  | 2017  | 2018  | 2019  | 2020  | 2021  | 2022  | 2027  |
| Payout |      |      |      | 10.8% | 18.5% | 23.5% | 34.2% | 38.0% | 38.4% | 39.0% | 44.6% | 46.8% |

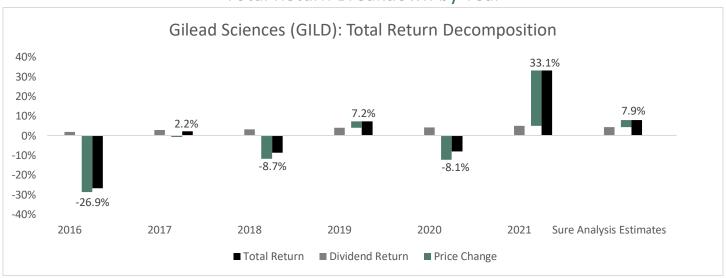

Gilead Sciences started to pay a dividend in 2015. Since then the dividend has been increased annually. Due to a combination of a high-single-digit dividend growth rate and declining earnings-per-share, Gilead's dividend payout ratio has risen substantially over the last couple of years. As we forecast positive earnings growth going forward, the payout ratio will not rise as much during the coming years. The payout looks relatively safe, we believe.

In the HIV market, which continues to grow globally, Gilead continues to be the market leader, holding a large market share. It is unlikely that Gilead will lose its market position, and the major players have no interest in engaging in a price war. Gilead's main problem over the last few years was that the HCV market continued to shrink as more patients were cured. Gilead is not negatively impacted by recessions to a large degree, as demand for medicine is not based on how well the economy is doing. During the last financial crisis, Gilead's profits continued to rise.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Thanks to its strong HIV portfolio and progress in the oncology franchise, Gilead Science's management's outlook for the coming years is not too bad. 2020 and 2021 were years of growing revenues and profits, following several years of declining profitability, thanks to COVID drug remdesivir. 2022, where the remdesivir impact will be smaller, looks like a down year for Gilead, but we believe that at least some growth beyond 2022 is likely. Shares are trading close to our fair value estimate and offer a sizeable dividend yield. We rate Gilead Sciences' stock a hold at current prices.
