Overview & Current Events

Robert Half International (RHI) provides staffing and risk consulting services for companies around the world. The business' 3 segments are Temporary and Consultant Staffing, Permanent Placement Staffing, and Risk Consulting and Internal Audit Services. These segments accounted for 62.5%, 8.8%, and 28.7% of sales, respectively. Temporary and Consultant Staffing makes up most sales and includes contributions from different sub-segments including Accountemps, which offers accounting help for companies, Office Team, which provides office workers for companies, Robert Half Technology, which helps companies find IT professionals, and Robert Half Management Resources, which helps businesses find senior-level professionals. The staffing industry is benefiting from the current "Great Resignation", where employees are quitting their jobs at record rates. More people are looking to find work than before, and more employers are looking for new hires than before.

On July 21st, 2022, Robert Half International reported Q2 2022 results for the period ending June 30th, 2022. The business reported earnings-per-share of $1.60, up 20.3% from the year-ago period. Revenue increased 17.7% year-over-year to $1.86 billion, but revenue missed expectations by $40 million. Growth was led by the Total Contract Talent Solutions segment, which grew 19.2% year-over-year to $1.17 billion. In the Total Contract Talent Solutions business, the Finance and Accounting services led the segment in revenue growth, gaining 22.1% year-over-year to reach over $810 million in revenue for the quarter. Additionally, Protiviti, one of Robert Half's subsidiaries, generated $497.0 million in revenue for the quarter, up 8.4% year-over-year.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027

Shares	139	137	135	131	128	124	119	115	113	111	109	106

Over the past 9 years, Robert Half International has seen earnings-per-share grow at an average annualized rate of 15.2%. In 2022, we expect Robert Half to deliver $6.20 in earnings-per-share as the industry continues to benefit from the "Great Resignation" and other tailwinds, and we forecast that earnings-per-share will grow at a rate of 2% annually over the next 5 years. We forecast a low forward growth rate compared to historic growth because we believe the business is temporarily benefiting from the current environment, and even though earnings will continue to grow over the intermediate term, this level of earnings may not be sustainable over the next few years.

Over the past 5 years, dividend payments have grown at 12.4% annually. We forecast that dividends will grow at 2% annually over the next 5 years because we estimate that dividends will be in line with the business' earnings. The business can afford to continue growing dividends even more than 2% because the stock already has a low payout ratio. Robert Half has an 18-year track record of increasing its dividend payments.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	Now	2027
Avg. P/E	18.9	20.0	21.1	20.6	15.4	18.7	17.8	15.2	19.9	17.2	12.6	20.0
Avg. Yld.	2.1%	1.8%	1.5%	1.4%	2.1%	2.0%	1.8%	2.1%	2.5%	1.7%	2.2%	1.4%

Over the past 9 years, Robert Half International has averaged a P/E ratio of 18.5. Based on the steady history of valuation multiples, we estimate that a 20 P/E ratio is fair for the business. Today, the stock offers a 2.2% dividend yield, which is low for investors who prioritize dividend income, but investors might consider the company if they're interested in the business' growth and valuation multiple rerating.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

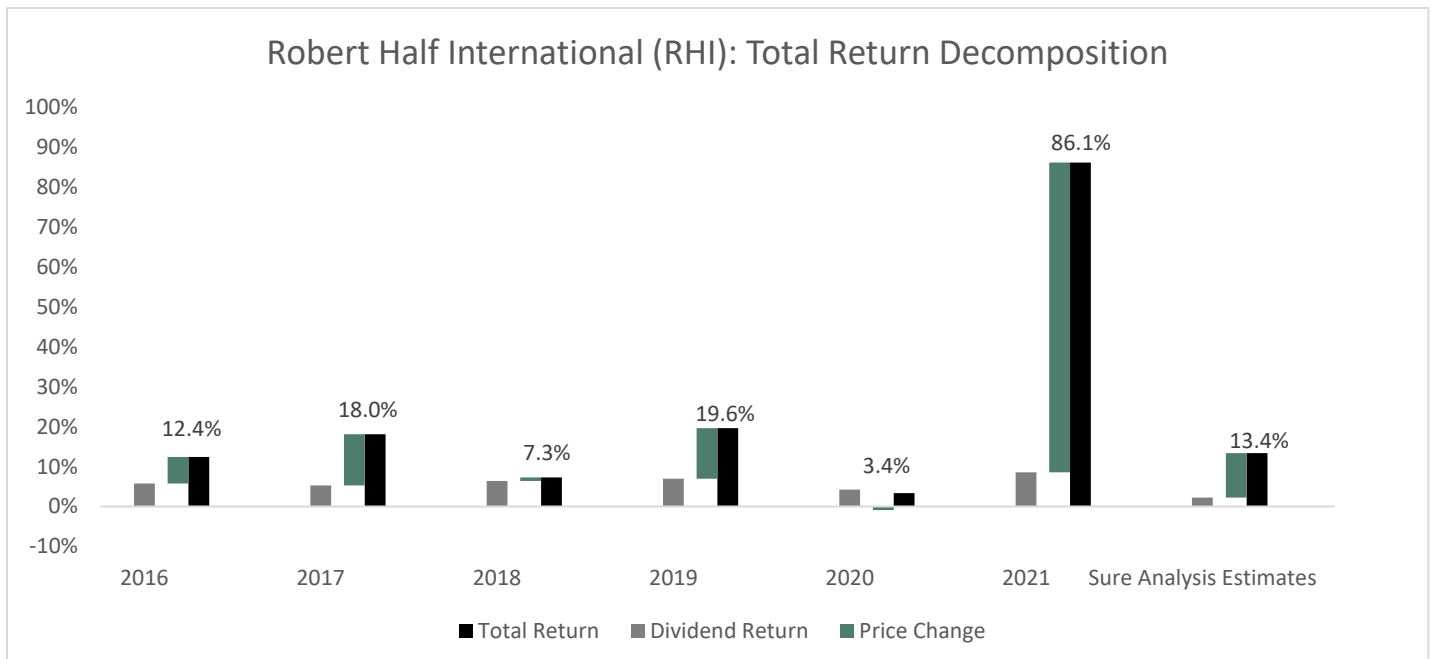

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	40%	35%	32%	30%	33%	37%	31%	32%	50%	28%	28%	28%

Robert Half International has averaged a payout ratio of 34.8% over the past 9 years. We consider this to be a very conservative payout ratio, where dividends are well supported by earnings. Additionally, the business has a very strong balance sheet, with more current assets than total liabilities. Even though the business did see a downturn in 2020 from the COVID-19 pandemic, we think the business offers recession resiliency, because of the company's time-tested business model. Businesses need to hire, and people need to work.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Robert Half International offers investors an opportunity to invest in a business that has seen strong historic growth and stands to benefit from the new changes in employment that have been brought by COVID-19 and the work-from-home economy. At today's price, we rate the stock as a buy because total return prospects come in at 13.4% annually over the next five years. Investors might be interested in this stock because well-managed staffing companies can earn high returns on capital, and this business is benefiting from the current employment environment.
