Overview & Current Events

Banco Santander, headquartered in Madrid, Spain, is a diversified banking business with operations in Retail Banking, Santander Corporate and Investment Banking, Wealth Management, and Spain Real Estate Activity. The company is truly global, with a presence in Europe, North America, and South America. Santander's top markets by attributable profit include Brazil (26% of profit), Spain (17%), The United Kingdom (13%), Santander Consumer Finance (13%), Mexico (8%), Chile (6%), USA (5%), Portugal (5%), Poland (3%) and Argentina (1%). The $42 billion market capitalization company has 11,200 branches, with 198,000 employees serving tens of millions of customers around the globe. Santander reports results in euro, but all numbers for this report are in U.S. dollars.

Santander reported second quarter earnings on July 29th, 2022, and results were fairly strong. Adjusted earnings-per-share came to 29 cents for the first half, and first half revenue was just over $25 billion. In addition, revenue was almost 11% higher year-over-year. Total customers were up 7.4 million to 157 million.

Nonperforming loans were 3.05%, 21bps lower to the linked quarter, and 17bps lower year-over-year. However, Santander's loan quality remains an issue.

Total assets rose more than 3% year-over-year, while loans to customers rose slightly less than that. Deposits rose slower still, adding 1.6%.

The bank bought back about $900 million in shares during the first half, buying 286 million shares, or 1.7% of the float. Following Q2 results, we now expect 56 cents in earnings-per-share for this year.

Note that all the numbers in this report refer to the Banco Santander American Depository Receipts (ADRs) in USD, listed on the NYSE (ticker: SAN). Keep in mind that the Euro to USD exchange rate has varied over this time. Today, the exchange rate is 1.02 USD per Euro. The company had traditionally paid three cash dividends and one scrip dividend each year (which is why the share count rises over time). However, recent restrictions put into place by regulators have changed that, and the future of the company's share repurchases, and dividends is in some measure of doubt today. The dividend has been restarted, but it is quite variable in both amount and timing, and therefore difficult to predict. Share repurchases have resumed as well, at least temporarily.

Santander's Latin America markets have higher growth rates than their European counterparts. Of course, this is also a point of risk as these markets are not as established and overall credit tends to be more finicky. Due to low rates around the world, as well as high inflationary pressures in many of Santander's markets, we are moving our growth forecast from 2% to 0% annually. Santander continues to struggle with rates and credit quality to an extent, and we don't see that changing given its focus on auto loan origination.

The early-2022 acquisition of Santander Consumer USA should help fuel consumer loan growth in the US in the years to come as well after synergies can begin to be realized.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	Now	2027
Avg. P/E	27.8	16.6	13.3	11.0	11.6	14.3	8.5	8.5	8.3	6.8	4.4	7.0
Avg. Yld.	9.8%	9.3%	8.6%	4.4%	4.2%	4.0%	6.0%	5.9%	---	1.6%	3.6%	2.5%

Santander has somewhat of a peculiar trading history, as the dividend was held relatively steady for years even after earnings collapsed. Eventually, the high dividend payment caught up with the firm and a dividend cut was required. As mentioned, the cash dividend was suspended for 2020. The dividend is back, but we note the payout is variable.

Since the dividend cut shares have been trading in a more normalized range. Our fair value estimate is 7 times earnings, due to the obvious growth struggles the company is facing, in addition to the lateness of the global economic cycle. With shares trading at just 4.4 times our earnings estimate, we see a massive tailwind on total returns in the coming years from the valuation.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	272%	154%	114%	49%	49%	57%	51%	50%	---	11%	16%	18%

Santander has a few advantages over a typical bank, stemming from its top-five deposit market share in countries like Spain, Brazil, Mexico, Chile, and Argentina. The wide geographical base gives the company multiple positions in markets that are not necessarily correlated.

Recession performance and its aftermath are noteworthy. Santander went from earning $1.79 per share in 2008 down to $0.84 in 2011 and $0.29 in 2012. Since then, earnings had rebounded, but not nearly to the same level. We believe Santander should have slashed the dividend much earlier. Despite the material and lasting impact to earnings, the dividend continued along until 2014. Those four years of a near (or well above) 100% payout ratio required significant dilutive action. We see 2020's recession as damaging as well, but a rather swift recovery into 2021 has given way to what should be normalized earnings for 2022.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We are forecasting 12.2% annual total returns going forward. We see Santander as a speculative buy due to unattractive growth prospects, but a decent projected yield and very low valuation. Santander is a risky bank to own, but the tailwind from the valuation, and the nearly-4% yield are attractive.
