Overview & Current Events

Tompkins Financial is a regional financial services holding company headquartered in Ithaca, NY that can trace its roots back more than 180 years. It trades with a market capitalization of $1.1 billion and has total assets of just over $8 billion, which produce more than $300 million in annual revenue. The company offers a wide range of services, including checking and deposit accounts, time deposits, loans, credit cards, insurance services, and wealth management to its customers in New York and Pennsylvania.

Tompkins reported second quarter earnings on July 22nd, 2022, and results were mixed. Earnings-per-share fell from $1.54 to $1.45 year-over-year. Revenue was up, however, almost 5% to $77.2 million. On an annualized pace from Q1 of 2022, revenue was up 3.2%.

Net interest income was $58.3 million, up from $56.6 million in the most recent quarter. The improvement was driven by growth in loans and higher yields on earning assets.

Total loans were $5.2 billion, up $99 million from the prior quarter, or 7.8% on an annualized basis. Paycheck Protection Program loan balances were down to just $3.5 million as the program has essentially wound down. Excluding PPP loans, total loans rose 9.7% on an annualized basis quarter-over-quarter.

Net interest margin was 3.09%, up from 2.91% a year ago. We now see $6.05 in earnings-per-share for this year following Q2 results.

As 2018 earnings greatly benefited from the one-time effect of tax reform, it is prudent to focus on historical growth before that point. Excluding the non-recurring write-off of 2017, Tompkins Financial grew its earnings-per-share at a 6.4% average annual rate during 2008-2017 and a 6.5% rate during 2012-2017. However, we are much more cautious on Tompkins' ability to grow in the near-term given the interest rate environment, and other factors, including what we view as unsustainably high earnings for 2021. Earnings in 2021 were boosted by credit loss recoveries that will not reoccur, and we've come in with a much lower estimate of earnings for 2022 as a result. In conjunction with this, we've lowered our growth estimate from 1% to 0%.

Given the state of the yield curve, we don't see a lot of additional deterioration in margins, but it may take some time before Tompkins sees any material improvement in its lending spreads. Participation in the PPP is producing net interest margin deterioration, making this even tougher, although the loan book is growing as a result, particularly once the PPP loans have fully worked their way off the balance sheet. Given this, the outlook for revenue and margins is somewhat unfavorable. The bank's share repurchase program should help, but only with fractional declines in the float annually.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	Now	2027
Avg. P/E	12.2	12.9	12.7	14.0	17.7	24.2	15.3	15.1	13.2	12.8	12.4	11.0

Tompkins Financial is currently trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of 12.4, which is ahead of where we see fair value at 11 times earnings. With shares trading at 113% of our estimate of fair value, Tompkins' value proposition still isn't particularly enticing, especially with earnings almost certainly having peaked in 2021. The yield is 3.0% as well, which means we see the yield rising as the valuation declines in the years to come.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	45%	45%	47%	44%	45%	53%	36%	38%	40%	35%	38%	42%

Tompkins Financial has raised its dividend for 35 consecutive years, and we don't see this streak in jeopardy by any means. Due to its low payout ratio, it has ample room to keep growing its dividend, even with weak earnings growth, or even earnings contraction from 2021's high base.

The company also exhibited remarkable resilience in the Great Recession. In the worst financial crisis of the last 90 years, when most banks incurred losses or saw their earnings collapse, Tompkins Financial grew its earnings-per-share 17%, from $2.53 in 2008 to $2.96 in 2009. The defensive behavior of Tompkins Financial during economic downturns is particularly important. Tompkins' competitive advantage, if it has one, is its focus on targeted local markets in the Northeast U.S. The local bank feel is something consumers in small communities gravitate towards, which benefits Tompkins. Tompkins performed well in 2020, but credit quality did deteriorate some during the year, unsurprisingly.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We have concerns about Tompkins' ability to grow longer-term. The valuation is ahead of our estimate of fair value, and the yield is now 3.0%. With no growth forecast, we are reiterating the stock at a sell rating given poor projected total returns.
