Overview & Current Events

Jabil is a manufacturing solutions and services provider. The company offers comprehensive services including manufacturing circuit board assemblies and systems, from circuit and production design, component selection and automated assembly, and obtaining components from a broad group of suppliers. Their clients are manufacturers in the personal computer, computer peripherals, communications, and automotive industries. Jabil reports in two segments, Electronics Manufacturing Services (EMS) and Diversified Manufacturing Services (DMS). EMS focuses on leveraging IT, supply chain design and engineering, centered around electronics. DMS provides engineering solutions around material sciences, technologies, and healthcare. Jabil trades on the NYSE under the ticker symbol JBL and has a market capitalization of $8.1 billion. In fiscal year 2022, JBL generated $33.5 billion in net revenue.

Jabil reported fourth quarter and FY 2022 results on September 27th, 2022 for the fiscal year ended August 31st, 2022.

The corporation generated $9.0 billion of net revenues in the fourth quarter, a 21.9% increase over $7.4 billion in the same prior year period. The DMS segment revenue grew 13% year-over-year, while the larger EMS segment grew at 32%. Core diluted earnings per share grew from $1.44 to $2.34.

Leadership has provided a first quarter of fiscal year 2023 outlook. Management expects net revenue between $9.0 billion to $9.6 billion in the first quarter. Core EPS should be roughly $2.20 in Q1.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028

Jabil's earnings per share have at times appeared choppy year-to-year, but over the long-term, there has been proven growth in EPS. The nine year average growth rate of 16.5% has sped up and the company's five year average growth rate is stellar at 29.4%. We believe JBL can continue growing earnings at roughly 5.0% in the intermediate term. To note, the corporation has reduced its share count by 2.8% on average over the past five years, which acts as an additional tailwind to EPS. We see continued revenue growth in Mobility, Cloud, Connected Devices and Semi-Cap. Additionally, core operating margins should improve over time, as it grew from 3.2% in 2020 to 4.2% in 2021, and then again to 5.0% in 2022.

The dividend has never been cut in its history since inception in 2006, however it has not grown very much. The corporation has paid the same dividend since 2012 after a 14% dividend increase. Growing earnings have shrunk the payout ratio and we expect the company is due for another bump in the dividend, however, there is no evidence that they are interested in increasing it.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/E	10.2	40.1	12.3	13.3	12.4	10.8	9.1	11.7	9.6	11.0	7.3	10.0
Avg. Yld.	1.6%	1.6%	1.5%	1.6%	1.2%	1.1%	1.2%	0.9%	0.6%	0.6%	0.5%	0.3%

Jabil's price-to-earnings multiple is undervalued based on phenomenal forecasted 2023 earnings. Given the company's current macro headwinds and risks, we believe the company's fair value today could be about 10.0 times earnings. The company has a 5-year average PE of 10.4 and a 10-year average PE of 14.1 (excluding outlier in 2014, average 10-year PE is 11.2). We don't forecast much change in the company's miniscule yield, as they appear to have little to no interest in increasing the dividend.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	17%	65%	18%	21%	15%	12%	11%	11%	6%	4%	4%	3%

We don't see any threat to the dividend as the payout ratio was only 4% in 2021 and is trending to be in the single digits for 2023 as well. The company has a lot of room to grow the dividend but opts to reinvest the cash into the company, and also repurchase shares for cancellation. The company was negatively affected by the great financial crisis, and from peak to trough, earnings fell from $1.19 to $0.40. However, throughout this period the dividend was entirely covered by earnings and there was no dividend cut. Prudent financial management avoided a complete disaster, but we wouldn't say the company has a high recession resiliency. JBL believes that obtaining a significant level of protected proprietary technology may give them a competitive advantage, and they also believe they are extremely competitive on cost, accelerated production time-to-market, high efficiencies, global locations, rapid scale production, advanced technologies, quality, and improved pricing of components.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Jabil has massive revenue and has grown earnings significantly in recent years and we don't foresee it stopping in 2023. The payout ratio is at an all-time low and in the single digits, proving the company has plenty of room to grow this. The company is also active in repurchasing shares. We forecast that JBL trades at 73% of fair value, and has 12.1% in total estimated returns, thus we maintain our buy rating on JBL.
