Overview & Current Events

UMB Financial Corporation is a financial services holding company headquartered in Kansas City, Missouri. Through several operating subsidiaries, UMB offers complete banking, asset management, health spending solutions, and related financial services to commercial, institutional, and personal customers nationwide. The company's most prominent operating subsidiary is UMB Bank, N.A. UMB has increased its dividend for an impressive 31 consecutive years. It trades with a $3.9 billion market capitalization and produces over $1.4 billion in annual revenue.

UMB reported third quarter earnings on October 25th, 2022, and results were weaker than expected on both the top and bottom lines. Adjusted earnings-per-share came to $1.82, which was a staggering 33 cents below expectations. Revenue was up 14% year-over-year at $362 million, but was $11 million light against estimates.

Average loan balances were up $2.5 billion, or 15%, year-over-year. Average deposits were up $2.5 billion, or 15%, year-over-year as well as the bank is aggressively lending with higher prevailing market interest rates. Excluding Paycheck Protection Program balances, which are winding down, average loans were up 22% on an annualized basis from the second quarter.

Noninterest income was up more than 19% year-over-year, and was 35.5% of total revenue. Net interest margin was up 16 basis points from the second quarter. Net charge-offs were just 0.02% of average loans.

The bank boosted its dividend for the 31st consecutive year, this time adding 2.7% to a new annualized payout of $1.52 per share.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027

UMB's adjusted earnings-per-share have compounded at about 9% per year in the past decade. Interest rates have moved sharply higher in 2022, which has helped create better lending margins in the sector. We note 2020's earnings had a huge boost from the bank's investment in TTCF, most of which has since been unwound. We now forecast 1% annual growth from 2022 earnings, which is primarily from a lack of meaningful lending spread growth, as well as the very high base of earnings. We think continued asset base expansion is the key as UMB is working away from fee generation and more towards traditional lending, and a modest boost in fee income. If rates remain unfavorable, it should see some downward pressure on earnings expansion. However, the bank has thus far been able to overcome an unfavorable yield curve by swiftly expanding the amount of lending it is doing, as it showed in 2019, 2020, and indeed 2021. We think this growth will be difficult to replicate as the current economic cycle matures, so we have become more cautious on the bank's projected growth, in addition to that high base of earnings we mentioned.

Updated November 1st, 2022, by Josh Arnold

The dividend could continue to grow at 3% annually in the coming years, rising from $1.52 this year to $1.76 or so in 2027. UMB's 2021 dividend increase was massive by its historical standards, but we'll wait and see if larger dividend increases become a new policy. The increase for this year was much smaller at less than 3%.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	Now	2027
Avg. P/E	15.0	17.0	22.3	21.4	17.7	20.2	18.5	13.3	9.2	12.8	10.2	12.0
Avg. Yld.	1.8%	1.6%	1.5%	1.8%	1.7%	1.4%	1.6%	1.8%	2.2%	1.5%	1.8%	1.7%

UMB has traded in a wide range in the past decade, encompassing 9 times earnings to 22 times. We see the banks as facing interest rate and economic headwinds, so we assess UMB's fair value at 12 times earnings. The stock now trades at 10.2 times earnings estimates for this year, so we see it as undervalued at the moment. We expect the dividend yield to remain below 2% in the foreseeable future.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	27%	27%	34%	39%	31%	28%	30%	24%	20%	19%	19%	21%

UMB's payout ratio is just one-fifth of earnings, and the bank boasts a 31-year dividend increase streak following its last payout increase. Given these factors, we see the dividend as safe with lots of room to grow in the future. We don't forecast a lot of upside to the payout ratio, so the dividend should grow modestly, keeping the payout ratio well under 25% for the foreseeable future.

UMB Financial Corporation's largest competitive advantage is its entrenched position in the financial services sector. Because of industry regulations, it is very difficult for a new competitor to enter the market and take market share from established lenders like UMB. The company's small size is also a potential advantage, as it allows the company to explore smaller, less-competitive growth opportunities that the big banks would not be interested in pursuing. Of course, recessions aren't kind to banks of any size, but we note UMB weathered 2020 quite well, and 2021 showed record earnings. We expect another record for 2022.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We see the stock as trading slightly under fair value, but given low growth expectations of just 1%, a low yield of 1.8%, and the 3.2% tailwind from the valuation, we expect just 5.9% total annual returns going forward. As such, we place UMBF at a hold rating.
