Overview & Current Events

Foot Locker was established in 1974 as part of the FW Woolworth Company and became independent in 1988. The company has outlived its former parent, which closed in 1997. The athletic apparel retailer, known for its namesake Foot Locker brand, operates nearly 3,000 stores in 27 countries. Foot Locker is a $3.7 billion market capitalization company that should generate about $8.5 billion in revenue this year.

Foot Locker reported third quarter earnings on November 18th, 2022, and results were very strong. Adjusted earnings-per-share came to $1.27, which was 15 cents better than expected. Revenue was $2.17 billion, down fractionally year-over-year, but $70 million better than estimates. Comparable sales were up 0.8% year-over-year.

Merchandise inventories rose 30% year-over-year, and gross margin fell 270bps from the year-ago period. This decline was due to increased promotional activity across apparel and footwear.

The company raised guidance for the full year with one quarter remaining. Management now expects sales contraction of 4% to 5%, from the prior view of -6% to -7%. Comparable sales are now expected to be down 4% to 5%, better than the prior guidance of down 8% to 9%. Adjusted earnings-per-share is now expected to be $4.42 to $4.50, up from $4.25 to $4.45.

We've updated our estimate to $4.45 in earnings-per-share for this year following the guidance boost.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027

During the Great Recession, Foot Locker's earnings dipped ~20%, but since then they had sharply rebounded prior to 2020. From 2008 through 2018 the company was able to increase earnings-per-share by over 20% annually. However, this was during a time when Foot Locker's net profit margin improved from ~2% to ~7% and the share count was reduced by -25%. Moving forward we are more cautious, albeit still optimistic, on the firm's growth prospects. We note growth in 2019 was much slower, and of course, was negative for 2020.

Share repurchases were restarted in Q3 of 2020, so we see the stock as having that tailwind once again moving forward, although management has been quite cautious thus far spending on repurchases. That said, the new repurchase authorization combined with the massive decline in the share price should see heavy buying in the coming quarters. We're moving our growth estimate from 1% annually to 0% given the guidance suggested by management. The company has rationalized its store base and inventory position, which is helping margins, and comparable sales have been okay, although a decline is expected for this year. A risk is that supply constraints last longer than currently expected, but thus far, Foot Locker has weathered it reasonably well.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	Now	2027
Avg. P/E	12.6	12.3	14.0	16.9	13.4	13.0	11.3	9.7	11.6	6.9	8.8	9.0
Avg. Yld.	2.2%	2.2%	1.7%	1.5%	1.7%	2.4%	2.6%	3.1%	2.9%	1.6%	4.1%	5.1%

Over the past decade, shares of Foot Locker have traded hands with an average P/E ratio of about 14 times earnings. The valuation is now quite low by any standard following Q3 results. Given the stock is at 8.8 times earnings and our fair value estimate is 9, we see a tailwind to total returns from the valuation. With the most recent dividend raise, Foot Locker is now yielding 4.1%.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2027
Payout	27%	28%	24%	26%	23%	31%	29%	30%	33%	11%	36%	46%

Foot Locker's competitive advantage is in its valuable brand names, its decades of experience in athletic apparel retailing and its sizable scale. Moreover, Foot Locker's balance sheet affords the company enormous financial stability, which it is now using to buy back shares.

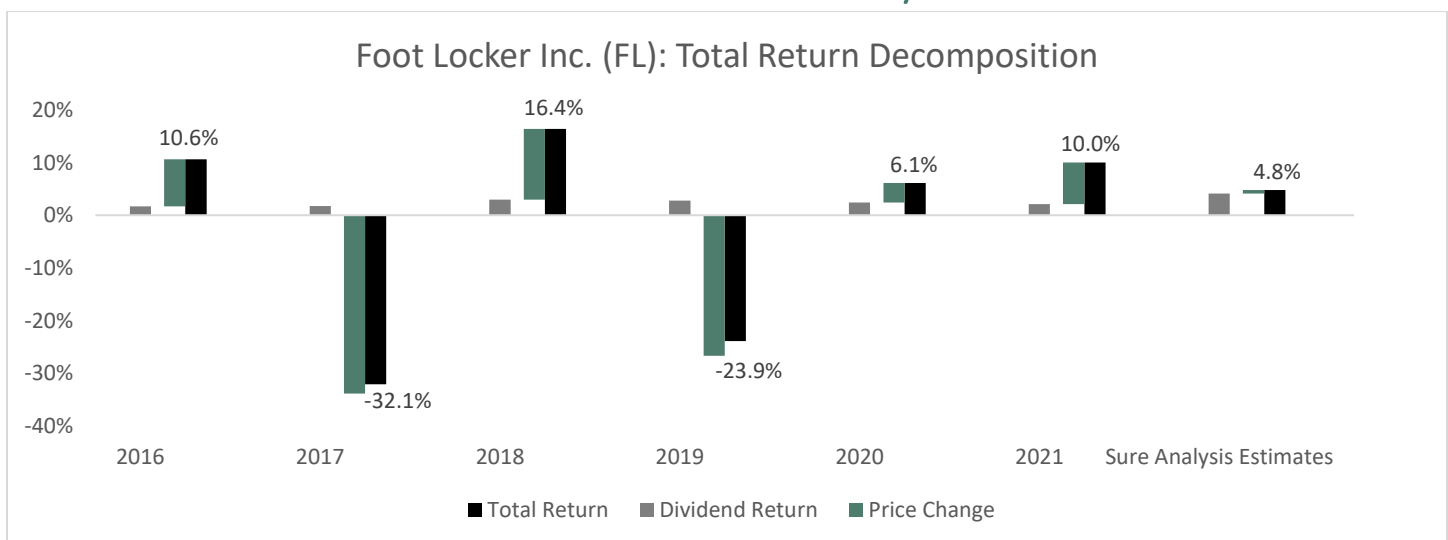

This does not mean that earnings will not deteriorate in tougher times. During the Great Recession, Foot Locker posted earnings-per-share of $0.67, $0.54, and $1.10 through the 2008 to 2010 stretch, while the dividend was held steady. This gives a fair indication of the company's ability to withstand tougher times and bounce back. However, the dividend was suspended and reinstated at a lower rate in 2020.

The new dividend is still low relative to earnings, so the payout should be safe for the foreseeable future. We also see the boost of share repurchases as a vote of confidence from management.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We remain positive on Foot Locker's fundamentals and outlook after Q3 results, but the stock has rallied since our last update. With a yield of 4.1%, plus the 0.5% tailwind from the valuation and 0% growth, we are reiterating Foot Locker at a hold rating with 4.8% estimated annual returns. We note that earnings growth is likely to be difficult to come by on an absolute basis, although share repurchases will help on a per-share basis.
