Overview & Current Events

Avient is a company in the specialty chemicals industry. It primarily produces resins and other plastic additives. The company's PVCs, polymer colorings and other products go into end products such as plastic bottles, flooring, and electronic equipment. Avient emerged in 2020 when its predecessor company, Polyone, acquired Clariant Masterbatch. Polyone itself came about from a merger in 2000 and historically has acquired numerous other chemicals companies to build out its operations.

Following its transformation into Avient, the company's acquisitive streak has continued. Last April, the company announced an agreement to buy DSM Protective Materials for $1.485 billion. To help fund the DSM purchase, Avient recently sold off its distribution business. The company has also been paying down debt recently as it seeks to optimize its capital structure in the current higher interest rate environment.

Avient reported its Q4 earnings on February 15th, 2023. Adjusted earnings-per-share of $0.39 fell sharply from the $0.50 reported a year ago. However, this topped expectations as analysts had expected a larger decline. Revenues of $790 million fell 2% year-over-year. These results were better than expected, but that's arguably because the company had set such a low bar with its prior quarter's guidance. Regardless, Avient warned that industry destocking and slowing demand had caused Avient to see a downturn in "nearly every industry and region" where it operates during the fourth quarter.

Given this sobering outlook, we are now forecasting a downturn in Avient's earnings in 2023. While the company keeps making smart capital allocation moves, in the short-term, it will struggle to outrun unfavorable industry dynamics.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
EPS	$1.30	$1.80	$1.96	$2.13	$2.21	$2.43	$1.69	$1.46	$2.51	$2.69	$2.40	$2.92
DPS	$0.26	$0.34	$0.42	$0.50	$0.58	$0.72	$0.79	$0.82	$0.85	$0.94	$0.99	$1.20
Shares	95	89	85	83	81	78	77	91	92	91	91	91

Avient grew its earnings at a rapid pace between 2012 and 2018, with EPS tripling over that stretch. Since that period, however, growth has been much harder to come by. Earnings declined in 2019 and 2020 before posting a strong recovery in 2021. That momentum quickly faded in 2022 and Avient's latest earnings report suggests that the current downturn will persist well into this year.

Avient had grown its dividend at an appealing rate, managing more than 15% annualized growth since 2013 and 6.6% annually over the past five years. That said, Avient's most recent dividend hike, announced October 13th, was for a more conservative 4% increase. The company has generally maintained its payout ratio in the 20-30% range, although the payout ratio has been climbing in recent years.

Going forward, we estimate 4.0% annualized earnings growth over the next five years. This is a significant deceleration from past earnings growth as industry conditions have turned less favorable. Avient has successfully used acquisitions in the past to bolster growth, but this may be more challenging going forward as higher interest rates may constrain the company's ability to finance deals at acceptable terms.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/E	20.8	21.0	18.3	15.2	17.2	16.7	18.4	19.3	19.7	16.0	17.5	17.0
Avg. Yld.	1.0%	0.9%	1.2%	1.5%	1.5%	1.8%	2.5%	2.9%	2.9%	2.2%	2.4%	2.4%

Avient has generally maintained a stable P/E ratio of around 17 to 21 times earnings. Shares fell to as low as an 11 P/E ratio last year following the company's weak Q3 guidance. However, the stock has rebounded sharply over the past quarter and returned to its traditional valuation range with the P/E currently at 17.5.

Avient's dividend yield started off the in 2010s in the low 1% range. From 2016 and on, the dividend yield started to move up consistently, topping 2% in 2019 and reaching 2.9% in 2020. The dividend yield has dropped back to 2.4% now, and we expect that is around where it will stay in coming years.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	20%	19%	21%	23%	26%	30%	47%	56%	34%	35%	41%	41%

The specialty chemicals industry is known for being highly cyclical. That being the case, Avient's results have been quite strong compared to its sector. Still, as the above payout ratio shows, when earnings dip, such as they did in 2019 and 2020, the company's dividend coverage can slip a notch.

Avient issued $725 million of 2030 senior notes this past August at a 7.125% interest rate to raise cash. This is a somewhat expensive interest rate, though understandable given current market conditions. Management has guided to keeping its net debt to adjusted EBITDA ratio below 3.0x, and the recent sale of its distribution business to H.I.G. Capital for $950 million went a long way toward improving its balance sheet.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Avient reported a much better Q4 report than its prior Q3 results. This has stopped the negative momentum in Avient's stock price. In fact, shares have rallied sharply. Despite that, we foresee at least a few more quarters of weak results out of Avient before it returns to earnings growth. That will limit upside on the stock for the time being. As such, Avient shares earn a hold rating today, and we forecast 5.6% annualized total returns from here going forward.
