Overview & Current Events

Simon Property Group is a real estate investment trust (REIT) that was formed in 1993. The trust focuses on retail properties, mainly in the US, with the goal of being the premier destination for high-end retailers and their customers. The trust has interests in 230 different properties that amount to 184 million square feet of leasable space. Simon produces about $5.0 billion in annual revenue and has a market capitalization of $46.9 billion.

On February 6th, 2023, Simon reported its Q4 and full-year earnings for the period ending December 31st, 2022. For the quarter, total revenues were $1.40 billion, 5.6% higher than the comparable period last year. Higher revenues were powered by the continued recovery in retail real estate, strong leasing momentum, and elevated occupancy levels.

Specifically, portfolio NOI, which includes domestic properties, international properties, and Simon's investment in Taubman Realty Group, increased by 6.3% compared to the prior-year period. Simon's massive acquisition of Taubman continues to be proven accretive to the overall performance. Further, occupancy stood at 94.9% compared with 93.4% in Q4-2021. Accordingly, FFO/ share rose by 10% to $3.40. For the year, FFO/share was $11.95, up a penny over FY2021.

For fiscal 2023, management's initial guidance points toward FFO/share of between $11.70 and $11.95. We have utilized the midpoint of this range in our estimates. Finally, the company continued utilizing its share repurchase program, buying back $2.8 billion worth of stock during fiscal 2022.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Simon's FFO history has been quite resilient, seeing only a minor dip in profitability during the Great Recession and the COVID-19 pandemic. Simon's focus on high-end retailing has proven an immense source of strength in recent years, and we see that steady performance continuing. However, given Simon's already dominant position in the retail sector, the seemingly unstoppable rise of e-commerce crimping demand for physical stores, and how mature the current economic cycle is, it looks like Simon and other retail REITs will have a harder time with future FFO growth. That said, Simon is still the best retail REIT in the market by many metrics. Its occupancy rates remain high, and it has a base minimum rent of $55.13 per square foot on average, which is tremendously high for the retail space.

Simon has built a niche with high-end retailers over the years such that it has the most desirable spaces and developments and thus sees a virtuous combination of high occupancy and leasing rates. Its recent investment in Taubman seems to be stabilizing as well, with the company likely able to unlock operational efficiencies going forward. Simon was forced to cut its dividend to withstand its weaker performance caused by the pandemic, though management raised it seven times during FY2021 and FY2022. We continue to expect FFO/share and DPS growth of 3% going forward, reflecting the REIT's potential for growth in its square feet and lease rates while still remaining prudent against a shaky macro environment filled with uncertainty.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/FFO	18.4	19	19.1	19.2	15.1	13.9	11.9	8.8	11.6	9.9	10.6	11.0
Avg. Yld.	2.9%	3.0%	3.2%	3.2%	4.2%	4.7%	5.6%	6.5%	4.3%	5.8%	5.8%	5.5%

Simon's valuation has averaged 14.7 times FFO over the past decade. At just 10.6 times FY2023's projected FFO, the stock appears slightly undervalued. We believe there could be room for some valuation multiple expansion ahead to a P/FFO of 11 due to Simon's unique qualities while still considering the ongoing macroeconomic-related uncertainties and risks attached to mall REITs. Further, the stock's current yield of 5.8% remains higher than its decade average of nearly 4.3%, which income-oriented investors are likely to appreciate given the recent volatility in the market.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	53%	58%	61%	62%	64%	65%	67%	66%	49%	58%	61%	61%

Simon's quality metrics have been very stable in the past decade as the company has kept operating metrics such as balance sheet leverage and interest coverage (2.3x) in a fairly narrow range. Profitability should improve further over time, with Simon's capacity to raise prices remaining robust. The payout ratio is currently at a very safe range too

Simon's competitive advantage is in its world-class portfolio of properties that allow it to charge industry-best leasing rates. Another advantage is its low cost of capital that comes from its A-rated balance sheet, enabling it to invest in ways that competitors cannot afford to. That being said, it is not immune to recessions, as proven by its dividend cut during 2020 amid, admittedly, a black swan event for the industry. However, despite the cut, Simon's operations have held up fairly well, and have almost fully recovered already.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Overall, we forecast Simon to produce 8.8% total annualized returns in the coming years, driven by a starting yield of 5.8%, modest growth, and valuation tailwinds. We believe that Simon's shares are attractively valued while offering a hefty yield. The company's healthy metrics, world-class management, high-quality real estate portfolio, and successful acquisition of Taubman should keep translating to robust financials. We rate Simon as a hold at current levels.
