Overview & Current Events

Citigroup was founded in 1812, when it was known as the City Bank of New York. In the past 200+ years, the bank has grown into a global juggernaut in credit cards, commercial banking, trading, and a variety of other financial activities. It has thousands of branches, produces about $79 billion in annual revenue, and has a $96 billion market capitalization.

Citigroup reported first quarter earnings on April 14th, 2023, and results were better than expected on both the top and bottom lines, and by wide margins. The company posted revenue of $21.4 billion, which was up 12% year-over-year, and $1.34 billion ahead of estimates. In addition, adjusted earnings-per-share came to $1.86, which was 17 cents better than expected.

Cost of credit was $2 billion, which was up sharply from $0.8 billion a year ago. This reflected a net build in credit loss allowances, and unfunded commitments of $241 million, with other provisions of $432 million. These were driven by macroeconomic deterioration and growth in card revolving balances.

Operating expenses were $13.3 billion, up from $13 billion in Q4, and up slightly from $13.2 billion in the year-ago period. Net credit losses were $1.3 billion, up from $1.18 billion in Q4 and $872 million in last year's Q1.

Total loans ended the period at $652 billion, down 1% from Q4 and last year's Q1, respectively. Deposits were $1.33 trillion, down 3% from Q4 and flat to last year's Q1.

We've moved our estimate of earnings-per-share down from $6.30 to $6.00 following Q1 results, mostly on the expectation of higher credit losses.

Citi's earnings-per-share history is clouded by the immense struggles it endured following the Great Recession. However, years of hard work have paid off, and earnings have continued to move higher over time. We see Citi producing $6 per share in earnings for 2023, from which we expect 5% annual growth for the foreseeable future. We've boosted our estimate of growth given the earnings base for 2023 is expected to be much lower than the prior two years.

We believe Citi will continue to see higher revenue as its institutional and consumer businesses gather cheap deposits and lend them prudently, leading to reasonable loss rates and favorable margins. Citi is pulling back on lending at the moment due to less than favorable spreads on loans, which was evident in 2020 and 2021. That is a headwind, as it results in higher deposit costs without commensurate lending revenue, crimping top line and margin growth. However, the company's buybacks could be good for a mid-single-digit reduction in the share count annually, as we saw in 2021 and 2022. We note that even in the recent tumultuous interest rate environment, Citi is performing reasonably well. Citi is not as tied to traditional lending as most other banks, so the yield curve is not as critical, but the cost of deposits is important for its massive credit card business. Continued deposit growth that is outpacing lending growth is weighing on margins. This was masked in 2021 by reserve releases, but it appears the bank is back to taking provisions on new loans without the benefit of massive releases, as evidenced in recent results.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/E	11.4	22.8	9.8	9.7	12.3	10.4	8.4	11.0	6.9	6.4	8.3	9.5
Avg. Yld.	0.1%	0.1%	0.3%	0.9%	1.5%	2.2%	2.8%	3.8%	2.9%	4.5%	4.1%	2.8%

At just 8.3 times earnings, Citigroup's price-to-earnings ratio is still quite low. Our fair value estimate has been slightly reduced to 9.5 times earnings, but the stock is still undervalued. We expect the dividend yield of 4.1% to decline as the valuation of the stock rises over time. Even so, this is a solid income stock.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	2%	9%	7%	9%	18%	25%	24%	42%	20%	29%	34%	27%

Citi's payout ratio is only 34% of estimated earnings this year. Citi has spent the past several years trying to build its dividend back to a normalized level, and it is nearly in-line with competitors. We now expect no dividend raises for the foreseeable future, as Citi focuses instead on buying back shares.

Citi's competitive advantage is in its global reach and its large position in the lucrative credit card business. Citi has differentiated itself from the other money center banks in these ways and it continues to serve the bank well. It is very susceptible to recessions as it nearly went out of business in 2008/2009. The 2020 downturn wasn't kind to Citi, although we note that the bank is in much better shape than it was heading into the financial crisis from a balance sheet and business mix perspective.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We are forecasting 10.7% total annual returns over the next five years, which is down from our last report, mostly due to change to the valuation (now +2.7%) and lower earnings estimates. Earnings should be at normalized levels this year, but we've boosted our growth estimate to 5% given the lower base for 2023. The yield is still 4.1%. We think Citi is past the worst of the pandemic's impacts, but that earnings will be impossible to replicate from 2021 levels anytime soon. The total return outlook warrants reiteration of a buy rating on the stock.
