Overview & Current Events

Manulife Financial Corporation is an international financial services group that helps individuals and corporations make decisions through its wealth, asset management, and insurance businesses. It also offers annuity products and services. The company operates as Manulife across its offices in Canada, Asia, and Europe, and primarily as John Hancock in the United States. It has 37,000 employees, over 118,000 agents, and thousands of distribution partners, serving over 30 million customers. Manulife Financial is based in Toronto, Canada. The company reports in Canadian dollars, but all figures in this report have been converted to U.S. dollars.

On May 10th, 2023, Manulife Financial reported its Q1 results for the period ending March 31st, 2023. Core earnings (excluding investment gains/losses) came in at $1.11 billion, up 6% compared to last year. The increase in core earnings was once again driven by positive momentum in Asia, with over 50% of Manulife's in-force eligible customers having activated the ManulifeMOVE app, of which 38% proceeded to make an insurance purchase. The company's North American insurance business again positively contributed to core earnings. Core EPS for the quarter was $0.58, 11% higher year-over-year. During Q1, the company repurchased and retired 0.8% of its shares, which also aided EPS growth. For U.S. investors, the exchange rate of CAD against the USD remained relatively stable during the quarter. Hence, FX rates didn't materially impact results. We continue to forecast FY2023 EPS of $2.70. At the current FX rates, Manulife's annualized DPS of C$1.46 implies an annualized rate of $1.08.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028

Manulife Financial has produced a growing net income over the past few years, powered primarily by growth in premiums and annuity revenues, as well as higher interest and dividend income derived from its investments. We expect the company to keep growing its EPS, driven by double-digit growth in its insurance segment in key Asian markets such as Japan and Hong Kong. Manulife should also generate higher wealth management fees going forward, enjoying consistent net inflows that grow its assets under management.

During FY2022, the company achieved net inflows of $2.45 billion, despite the notable challenges in the capital markets. Specifically, the company recorded inflows of $0.07 billion from Retirement and $3.7 billion from Asset Management, offset by outflows of $1.2 billion from retail. We still expect EPS growth of 5% in the medium-term, being cautious of potential FX fluctuations that could sway this figure either way.

The company has grown its DPS annually since 2014 in its local TSX listing, though U.S.-based investors have been slightly affected by currency effects. We expect the dividend to grow by ~7% in the medium-term, lower than the company's latest increase of 11% and closer to its historical average.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/E	10.7	13.0	22.4	12.9	22.1	10.5	8.4	7.4	7.1	6.7	7.1	8.0
Avg. Yld.	3.0%	2.4%	2.8%	4.0%	3.8%	3.7%	4.3%	5.2%	4.6%	5.3%	5.6%	5.5%

Manulife Financial shares have historically traded at a forward P/E in the high single to low single digits, in line with its industry peers. The stock's valuation is currently near the low end of its historical average. Based on Manulife's growth prospects, we believe that the stock is modestly undervalued at its current levels. A forward P/E of around 8.0 in the medium-term should make for a fairer multiple. The company ended the quarter with a book value/share of C$22.01 ($16.29), meaning shares are currently trading just over book value. The 5.6% yield is noteworthy and should bolster total returns.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	32%	31%	63%	52%	83%	39%	36%	38%	32%	36%	40%	44%

Manulife's dividend should be well covered by the underlying income, with the payout ratio currently at 40%. The company enjoys several qualities, such as great brand value due to its obsession with customer satisfaction, a clear long-term underwriting strategy that has shifted smoothly online, and a healthy financial leverage ratio, currently at 27.7%, somewhat close to the company's target of 25%. However, the company faces several risks. A 50 basis point decrease in corporate spreads could positively affect the bottom line by around C$100 million. But for the time being, the ongoing rise in rates benefits the company.

The insurance industry can also be quite competitive, with disruptive up-and-coming companies, such as Lemonade, threatening to capture market share. A recession could adversely affect the company, including deferred premiums, defaults of its debt investments, and lower investment income. Lastly, a surge in claims amid unforeseen reasons could also negatively impact the company.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Manulife Financials is a quality insurer with healthy financials and the potential to grow its earnings moving forward. The stock offers an above-average yield, which, along with reasonable growth metrics and the possibility of a valuation expansion, are projected to result in annualized total returns of 12.2% through 2028. Still, U.S.-based investors should be wary of the possible currency fluctuations between the Canadian Dollar and the U.S. dollar, which could notably impact domestic investors' dividends, and, consequently, total returns. Still, shares earn a buy rating due to projected returns.
