Overview & Current Events

Marathon Petroleum Corp. (MPC) was spun off from Marathon Oil Corp. (MRO) in 2011. After the acquisition of Andeavor Logistics in October of 2018, MPC has become the largest U.S. refiner, with 16 refineries and a refining capacity of 3.1 million barrels per day. It also has a marketing system that includes ~7,100 branded locations. In addition, MPC owns a midstream MLP (MPLX), which has gathering and processing assets as well as pipelines for crude oil and light products. Marathon Petroleum Corp. has a market capitalization of $46.1 billion.

In early May, Marathon Petroleum reported (5/2/23) financial results for the first quarter of fiscal 2023. Thanks to the extremely tight supply caused by the sanctions of western countries on Russia, refining margins nearly doubled over the prior year's quarter, from $15.31 to $26.15. Therefore, despite a low utilization rate of 89%, which resulted from maintenance activity, the refining segment grew its EBITDA from $1.4 billion to $3.9 billion and thus the company more than quadrupled its earnings-per-share, from $1.49 to $6.09. Refining margins have remained elevated due to the sanctions of western countries on Russia. We thus expect MPC to post its second-best earnings-per-share in its history this year.

Thanks to its unprecedented earnings, MPC raised its dividend by 30% and reduced its share count by a massive 24% last year. It also has another $9.0 billion for share repurchases, which can reduce the share count by another 20%. Overall, MPC is thriving thanks to the aforementioned sanctions, which have resulted in blowout refining margins. However, we are confident that refining margins will deflate in the upcoming years due to the cyclical nature of this industry.

MPC greatly benefits from the inland location of some of the refineries of Andeavor. Thanks to the oil supply glut under normal conditions, these refineries usually buy their crude oil at a deep discount to WTI, so they enjoy high margins. Furthermore, U.S. refiners benefit from the new international marine rules, which have come into effect since January 1st, 2020. As per these rules, vessels that sail in international waters are forced to burn diesel or ultra-low sulfur fuel oil instead of heavy fuel oil. As the former are much more expensive than the latter, they boost refiner earnings. MPC is properly positioned to benefit from the new marine rules. Thanks to a series of past investments, the refiner can upgrade about 600,000 barrels per day of low-value residue to diesel. As long as the war in Ukraine does not come to an end, MPC will keep thriving thanks to the tight oil market. However, due to the blowout earnings expected this year and the sale of the Speedway business, we expect earnings-per-share to decline -18.0% per year on average until 2028.

Marathon Petroleum Corp. (MPC)

Updated May 10th, 2023, by Aristofanis Papadatos

Due to its blowout earnings expected this year, MPC is currently trading at just 6.5 times its expected earnings-pershare. This valuation level is much lower than its historical average of 11.9. If the stock reverts to its average earnings multiple, it will enjoy a 12.8% annualized gain in its return.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	23.2%	21.0%	21.7%	61.5%	40.3%	34.8%	42.9%		94.7%	9.5%	17.6%	52.7%

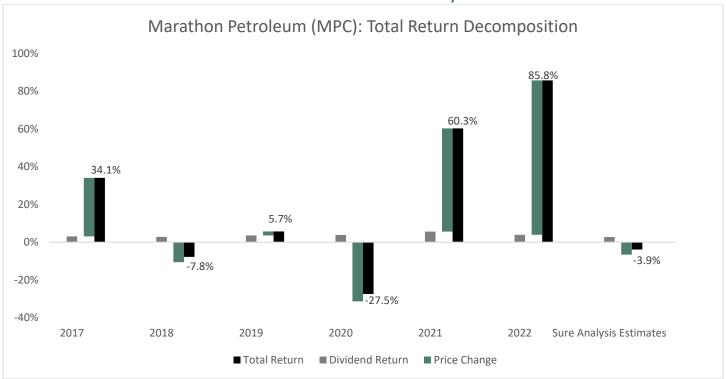

The acquisition of Andeavor has greatly enhanced the geographic diversification of Marathon and its potential to take advantage of fluctuations in price spreads among different types of crude oil and the dynamics of export markets. The acquisition will increase the earnings of the company and its resilience during downturns in the long run.

On the other hand, refining is a highly cyclical business and hence refiners are vulnerable to recessions. This was evident in the Great Recession, when the demand for oil products deteriorated and refining margins plunged. MPC was caught with a significant amount of debt in the downturn caused by the pandemic due to its acquisition of Andeavor. The company solved the problem with the sale of Speedway. Also given the ongoing recovery of global demand for refined products, the dividend has become safe.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

MPC is thriving thanks to the recovery of global demand for oil products and the war in Ukraine, which has greatly reduced the global supply of these products, thus resulting in unprecedented refining margins. With that said, the stock of MPC has more than quadrupled off its bottom in 2020. As a result, we expect the stock to offer a -3.9% average annual return over the next five years, as its 2.7% dividend and a 12.8% valuation tailwind may be offset by a -18% annual decline of earnings-per-share. We thus rate the stock as a sell. MPC is thriving right now, but investors should keep the highly cyclical nature of the refining business in mind. Whenever the war in Ukraine comes to an end, MPC will have material downside from its current level.
