Overview & Current Events

Novartis researches, develops and markets products to improve patients' health. The company's Innovative Medicines division offers medicines in the areas of oncology, cardiovascular, dermatology, respiratory and several others. Novartis Sandoz division markets generic drugs. Novartis employs 110,000 people and has annual sales of about $53 billion. Novartis is incorporated in Switzerland, but U.S. investors have access to the company through an American Depositary Receipt, or ADR.

On April 25th, 2023, Novartis reported first quarter results for the period ending March 31st, 2023. All figures in U.S. dollars. For the quarter, revenue improved 3.5% to $12.95 billion, topping estimates by $350 million. Adjusted earnings-per-share of $1.71 compared favorably to $1.46 in the prior year and was $0.18 above estimates.

Currency exchange negatively impacted results by 5% during the quarter. All figures in constant currency. Innovative Medicines grew 7% for the quarter. Volume improved 16%, but was largely offset by lower realized prices amid generic competition. Cosentyx, which treats plaque psoriasis and is the company's second best-selling product, was lower by 4%, though sales improved 17% in regions outside of the U.S. Entresto, which is used to treat chronic heart failure and is the top grossing product, grew 32% as the product continues to see increased patient share across all markets. Tafinlar + Mekinist, which treats melanoma, was higher by 18% due to continued high demand in adjuvant and non-small cell lung cancer. Sales for Promacta/Revolade, which helps lower the risk of bleeding, increased 15%, with most regions once again showing growth. Sandoz grew by 4%. Novartis reaffirmed that it plans to spinoff Sandoz into a standalone company by the second half of the year. Novartis repurchased 31.5 million shares at an average price of $88.89 during the period.

We expect Novartis to earn $6.99 in 2023, up from $6.51 previously. This would be a 14.2% increase from the prior year.

Novartis increased earnings at a rate of 5.8% per year over the last decade. The company is also recession-resistant as it saw growth during the last recession. Healthcare companies often perform well during recessions as people will seek out treatments for ailments regardless of the economic climate. Due to continued strength of the company's top selling products, we are reiterating our expect earnings-per-share annual growth rate of 4%.

Novartis AG (NVS)

Updated April 29th, 2023 by Nathan Parsh

Novartis pays an annual dividend, with the company raising its 2023 dividend 4.2% to $3.50 in USD. The company has increased its dividend 27 consecutive years in local currency. The dividend for U.S. investors was maintained in 2016 and 2017 after being cut slightly in 2015 due to currency exchange. Dividends are declared in Swiss Francs.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/E	19.8	21.4	33.3	27.3	24.5	15.2	28.4	24.6	13.9	14.8	14.6	16.0
Avg. Yld.	3.3%	3.1%	2.7%	3.5%	3.4%	3.6%	3.2%	3.5%	3.7%	3.7%	3.4%	3.1%

Novartis saw earnings-per-share decline at the same time the share price accelerated in the 2013-2015 period. We assign shares a fair value price-to-earnings multiple of 16 to help account for the wide variance in valuations over the last decade. This valuation is a premium to most peers, but we feel that the growth in the company's key products, as well as the expectation for new products to produce strong results, warrants the slight premium. Shares of Novartis have increased $16, or 18.6%, since our February 4th, 2023 update. Based off estimates for 2023, Novartis has a multiple of 14.6 times earnings. If shares were to reach our target by 2028, then valuation could add 1.9% to annual returns over this time period.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	66%	67%	91%	97%	83%	57%	49%	53%	51%	54%	50%	50%

The chief competitive advantage for Novartis is its Innovative Medicines division, which has shown impressive growth over the last year. Six different products have reached the $2 billion annual sales mark. Another key advantage for the company is Novartis' willingness to spend on research and development. The company spends close to $10 billion annually on R&D. This level of R&D spending should pay off as Novartis expects to bring to market 20+ different products over the next few years with the potential for at least a billion dollars in peak sales.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Novartis is now expected to return 8.8% annually through 2028, down from our prior estimate of 11.2%. This projection stems from a 4% earnings growth rate, a starting yield of 3.4%, and a low single-digit contribution from multiple expansion. Novartis' most important products continue to see very strong growth rates, but currency exchange remains a headwind. We have raised our five-year price target $9 of $136 due to earnings estimates for the year, but now rate shares of Novartis as a hold due to projected returns.
